Truman Back For Parleys; Marshall On Way Here

Chief Executive To Hold Top-Level Talks on Growing Communist Menace

By The Associated Press

President Truman flew back from Florida yesterday to wrestle with Communism's growing menace and get his big domestic program ready again to try out on a friendlier Congress.

Tanned and jaunty after two weeks in the sun at Key West, Fla., the President will plunge today into top level conferences on America's fight to hold the Red line in Europe and Asia. Secretary of State Marshall was flying back from the Paris United Nations conference for the meeting after being delayed by fog at Shannon, Eire.

Mr. Truman will meet separately with Averell Harriman, America's roving ambassador in Europe under the Marshall Plan.

Cabinet Less Pressing

Cabinet problems appeared to be less pressing. An official in touch with the situation said that Mr. Truman expects Marshall to remain as Secretary of State "for some time." Likewise, James Forrestal is expected to remain as Secretary of Defense for a period of a month or longer.

The President, Mrs. Truman and daughter Margaret arrived at 2:50 p. m. (EST) in the presidential plane, the Independence. Several hundred persons cheered as they left the plane. Mr. Truman sported a cane and wore a tan double-breasted suit.

Mr. Truman said he had to go to the White House to unpack, then pack again for his move across the street to Blair House. This Government guest house for visiting notables will be the presidential residence while repairs are being made to the White House.

Forrestal at Airport

Forrestal was at the airport to greet Mr. Truman, but he told reporters he did not intend to confer with the Chief Executive. Also in the crowd was Leslie Biffle, a close personal friend of the President who is expected to be secretary of the Senate in the new Congress.

A broad review of the international situation is in prospect at Mr. Truman's talks with Marshall. They met only briefly during the campaign because Mr. Truman was traveling and Marshall was attending United Nations meetings in Paris.

Army Reported Holding President Of Venezuela

Willemstad, Curacao, Nov. 21 (AP).—Unofficial reports reaching here today said President Romulo Gallegos of Venezuela has been placed under house arrest by a group of dissident army leaders.

Army officers, these unconfirmed reports said, have demanded the resignation of the President, and formation of a new coalition government.

The reported trouble could not be verified from Caracas, the Venezuelan capital. Strict censorship was clamped on in Venezuela yesterday by presidential decree.

(In Washington, Venezuelan Ambassador Gonzalo Carnevali said he had received word by telephone from Caracas that the situation in his country was normal. Private information reaching Washington sources also was that tension was relaxing in Caracas and that the government was in control.)

There have been rumors in Caracas for several days that a new political crisis was brewing because some groups felt they should have representation in the cabinet. Opposition newspapers have accused the government of failing to combat inflation and of yielding to labor demands.

Report Hits U. S. Controls On Business

Brookings Study Says Drift Carries Threat To Private Enterprise

By The Associated Press

The Government was warned yesterday to keep clear of economic controls which involve "assumption of managerial functions."

The Brookings Institution, in a study by President Harold G. Moulton, said that since the 1930's the United States has been drifting toward a "hybrid" economic philosophy which believes that Government should control the operation of the economic system.

That drift, Moulton said, has gone far beyond wise and necessary regulations for business. If Government control is substituted for the decision of business management, he said, operation of a private enterprise system eventually will become impossible.

"Government regulation of trade and industry should be confined to the checking of collusive efforts to eliminate competition," he said.

He went on to say that the new idea has been that the country can depend on the private enterprise system to provide "the driving force for technological advancement" while the Government is controlling the "vital price and profit mechanism."

"The price which people pay for the free choices and the productive incentive of a private enterprise system is found in the profits permitted to those who venture their private capital in business undertakings," he said.

Some "naturally monopolistic industries" like public utilities do require regulation, Moulton said. Also desirable are regulations of working conditions and quality rules for foods and drugs. But, he said, some types of business, like commercial banking, also should have "minimum standards of requirements."

A democracy like the United States could never have a completely unified program of Government control, Moulton declared. Only a strongly centralized national authority—without the traditional United States division of powers—could map and carry out such a unified control plan, he explained.

Byrnes Won't Run For Senate in 1950

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 21 (AP).—Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes said today he will not be a candidate for the United States Senate in 1950.

Byrnes, in addition to having served as Secretary of State, was for many years a United States Senator, Supreme Court justice and war mobilizer.

Coal Asked for Japan

United States exporters have been asked to supply 400,000 long tons of heavy coking coal for Japan. Bids will be taken up to December 14.

Murray Urges Eight-Point Economic Plan

Excess Profits Tax, Price Controls Listed As 'Essential' Moves

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 21 (AP).—CIO President Philip Murray thrust an eight-point "essential" economic program before the Nation today. He said it should be adopted soon in order to avoid a depression when defense spending and European aid no longer serve as props to the economy.

On the eve of the CIO's convention here, Murray issued his annual report in which he urged these things for a "healthy domestic economy":

1. Price controls to prevent "unnecessary" increases and stop the decline of purchasing power.

Excess Profits Tax

2. An excess profits tax to prevent industry from "reaping all the benefits."

3. Inventory controls to see that essential materials get to the proper places.

4. An "all-out-attack" on monopolistic practices to prevent industry from cutting production in order to keep prices high.

5. A Government floor to prevent the bottom from dropping out of basic farm prices.

6. A minimum wage of at least $1 an hour, social security legislation, and other measures to protect workers' welfare.

7. Low-cost public housing.

8. An "all-out-program" of plant expansion to increase the capacity of basic industries like steel and electric power.

Wage Hike Not Demanded

In this report, Murray did not demand a fourth round of post-war wage raises. But he said pointedly that "wages continue to lag somewhat behind rising prices."

And he made this prediction on prices: "There seems to be little indication that there will be any appreciable decline in prices in the coming year."

In all these things, Murray said, lies "the seed germ of the next depression."

Garner to Mark 80th Birthday Quietly Today

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 21 (U.P.).—John Nance Garner, the "Grand Old Man of Texas politics," will quietly pass his eightieth birthday Monday at his home here.

The man who started his career as a Texas cowboy and later became Vice President of the United States hasn't been seeing much of the press lately. "Cactus Jack's" last big "to-do" was when President Truman dropped in to see him on his campaign swing through Texas in September.

Garner's wife, who served as his personal secretary during his political career, died last summer. Since then, the former Vice President has led a quieter life, but he still likes to fish and has never lost his appetite for venison steak.

AFL Urges World Trade Ban on Reds

Proposals Drafted For Conclave Today Also Ask Arming Of Friendly Powers

Cincinnati, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The American Federation of Labor demanded tonight that the United States and other democratic powers halt trading with Russia until she lifts her "barbarous" blockade of Berlin.

It urged this Nation to "arm friendly nations in Europe, Asia or elsewhere" against Communist aggression.

The recommendations, made by the federation's international relations committee, are expected to be indorsed unanimously by the AFL's sixty-seventh convention tomorrow.

Appeasement Opposed

The committee report opposed appeasement of Russia by "confabs between chiefs of state or missions to Moscow"; reiterated support of the European Recovery Plan, and sharply criticized the "Taft-Hartleyism" of American military governments in Japan and Germany.

The long report omitted any direct criticism of Secretary of State George C. Marshall, but AFL officials said the strong language and specific proposals reflected the organization's dissatisfaction with the State Department's handling of Russia and China.

"The present acute crisis," the AFL said, "grows solely out of Russia's attempt to extend and expand its system of totalitarian dictatorship. Here is the real reason for the Soviet rulers' tireless efforts to promote economic collapse and social chaos and foster bloody class war in France, southeast Asia, China, Italy and our country."

"Asiatic Despotism"

The AFL said this country "cannot sit idly by and let one free nation after another become a helpless and hopeless satellite of Asiatic despotism.

"If America had only dollars to give them it would indeed be poor," the report said. "We have a vibrant democratic idealism and faith in human freedom to offer."

The European Recovery Plan, it said, must be administered to rebuild cooperating nations not only to defeat communism but so they "become an economic and a political hope for the oppressed and depressed behind the iron curtain."

Editors' Society Votes to Join World Federation

By The Associated Press

The American Society of Newspaper Editors will affiliate for one year with the International Federation of Newspaper Editors and publishers.

The society's executive board decided at its midyear meeting yesterday to join the Western European group, which includes members from 11 European countries. It has headquarters at Paris.

The board also heard reports on the action of the Baltimore City Courts in restricting publication of certain types of crime news until arraignment of the defendant. It took no action, but a spokesman said it may at a later date.

Crusade in Europe

Eisenhower Tells How Breakout On Right Opened Way to Victory

XVI

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

The first critical objective of the Normandy campaign, which was to establish a secure beachhead with adequate avenues of supply in the area between Cherbourg and the mouth of the Orne, was fully accomplished by the end of June.

From the beginning it was the conception of Montgomery, Bradley, and myself that eventually the great movement out of the beachhead would be by an enormous left wheel, bringing our front onto the line of the Seine, with the whole area lying between that river and the Loire and as far eastward as Paris in our firm possession.

An important point in our calculations was the line from which we originally intended to execute this wheel. This part of our tactical prognostications did not work out and required adjustment. The line that we actually held when the breakout began on D plus 50 was approximately that planned for D plus 5.

This was a far different story, but one which had to be accepted. Battle is not a one-sided affair. It is a case of action and reciprocal action repeated over and over again as contestants seek to gain position and other advantages by which they may inflict the greatest possible damage upon their respective opponents.

Caen Defended Fiercely

In this case the importance of the Caen area to the enemy had caused him to use great force in its defense. Its capture became a temporary impossibility or, if not that, at least an operation to be accomplished at such cost as to be almost prohibitive.

By June 30 Montgomery had obviously become convinced, as Bradley and I already had, that the breakout would have to be launched from a more restricted line. His directive of that date clearly stated that the British Second Army on the left would continue its attacks to attract the greatest possible portion of enemy strength, while the American forces, which had captured Cherbourg four days before, would begin attacking southward with a view to final breakout on the right flank.

This, of course, placed upon the American forces a more onerous and irksome task than had at first been anticipated. However, Bradley thoroughly understood the situation of the moment and, as early as June 20, had expressed to me the conviction that the breakout on the right would have to be initiated from positions near St. Lo, rather than from the more southerly line originally planned. He sensed the task with his usual imperturbability and set about it in workmanlike fashion.

Hedgerows a Problem And Hazard to Tanks

Complicating the problem of the breakout on the American front was the prevalence of formidable hedgerows in the bocage country. In this region the fields have for centuries past been divided into very small areas, sometimes scarcely more than building-lot size, each surrounded by a dense and heavy hedge which ordinarily grows out of a bank of earth three or four feet in height.

Our tanks could help but little. Each, attempting to penetrate a hedgerow, was forced to climb almost vertically, thus exposing the unprotected belly of the tank and rendering it easy prey to any type of armor-piercing bullet. Equally exasperating was the fact that, with the tank snout thrust skyward, it was impossible to bring guns to bear upon the enemy.

Blow at Friendship, Says British Paper

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Conservative Sunday Times today criticised General Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe" as a "blow at British-American friendship and understanding." It said the book makes "surprising and painful reading for his admirers."

The Sunday Pictorial complained "the extravagance of the bouquets he hands to some of the American generals is in strange contrast to the chilly praise with which he so nearly damns Montgomery."

The Sunday Times military correspondent wrote: "One is forced to the conclusion that General Eisenhower considers that the war was really won by America, that every American view was right, every British idea wrong.

"The plain truth is that Britain suffered losses, offered sacrifices and sustained a burden that was unequalled by any other Allied nation, except possibly Russia, and certainly not the U. S.

"History will record that the invasion of southern France was a strategic blunder of the first magnitude, and that it was an American blunder." He said Eisenhower insisted on commanding the land armies himself but said "he is not in any way a battle commander . . . He did not understand how to command in the field."

The writer defended Montgomery's plan for ending the war by the end of 1944 with a concentration of the Allied advance on the left through Brussels and into the north German plains which he said Eisenhower feared "would meet certain destruction."

"This is grossly misleading," the Times correspondent said. "The right flank was to be on the Ardennes and the left flank on the North Sea; over a million men would have been involved in the movement . . .

"Had Montgomery's plan been adopted it would have shortened the war."

British Liners Delayed by Crew Strike

400 Sailors Walk Off In Sympathy With U. S. Longshoremen

Southampton, England, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Cunard White Star Line officers again postponed the scheduled sailings of their luxury liners, the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, today after 400 striking crew members refused to go back aboard the Elizabeth.

The company announced the Elizabeth would not leave for North America before Tuesday. It said that the scheduled sailing on Wednesday of the Queen Mary had now been postponed indefinitely.

With most of the 1600 passengers already on board, 400 of the Elizabeth's 1200 crew members walked off yesterday in sympathy with striking American East Coast longshoremen. The Elizabeth had already been delayed three days by the United States tieup.

Today the strikers rejected an appeal by Stanley Ames, assistant general secretary of the British National Union of Seamen, to return to the ship and scheduled another meeting for Monday at 11 a. m. (6 a. m., EST) to ask for a 100 per cent walkout.

Meanwhile, the estimated 1600 passengers who had expected the Elizabeth to sail yesterday marked time either ashore or on board.

Restaurant Union Quits UPWA Here

By Jerry Kluttz

The United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers has withdrawn from the left-wing United Public Workers (CIO).

Furthermore, the officers of this union have filed anti-Communist affidavits with the National Labor Relations Board which has cleared it as the bargaining agent with Government Services, Inc., and with operators of other cafeterias in Government buildings here. UPWA officials have refused to sign the affidavits.

The union claims upwards of 2000 members here. It's now in the midst of new wage negotiations with GSI. Its withdrawal leaves UPWA limping in this city. Hundreds of members have dropped out because of UPWA's pro-Communist policies. UPWA called a long strike against GSI early this

British Aviatrix' Plane Wrecked In Alaska Crash

Fairbanks, Alaska, Nov. 21 (AP).—The plane piloted by Mrs. Richarda Morrow-Tait, 24, round-the-world British aviatrix, was wrecked in a forced landing today, but neither she nor her navigator, Michael Townsend, was injured.

The landing occurred in 30-below-zero weather, 200 miles southeast of Fairbanks.

Cause of the crash landing was not known, but Mrs. Morrow-Tait had been having engine trouble for several days.

Bad weather and plane trouble had kept the couple grounded at Anchorage since November 12, when they arrived on a foggy night with only enough fuel left for 20 minutes of flight.

Reds Again Pushing Fight Near Suchow

Reports Indicate Nationalists Failed to Smash Enemy Strength

Nanking, Nov. 21 (AP).—Reports of confused fighting around Suchow indicated tonight that the government's great defensive victory of last week had failed to smash the Communist strength in that area on the approaches to Nanking.

Reliable sources in this capital, 200 miles to the southeast, said the Communists had recaptured Nienchuang, 33 miles east of Suchow. This was the scene of last week's battle.

The defense ministry did not confirm Nienchuang's loss, but said the Communists had been attacking there heavily since Friday night.

The army paper Peace Daily said a government column had driven eastward 17 miles from Suchow and was continuing toward Paichi, 13 miles farther east on the Lunhai Railway. It said another government force had crossed the Grand Canal, 40 miles east of Suchow.

It was learned authoritatively that 43 United States Marines have arrived in Nanking from Tsingtao to serve as guards at the American Embassy if needed.

Evatt Hopes To End Crisis Over Berlin In 3 Weeks

President of U. N. Assembly Says Timing Main Point Delaying Accord

Paris, (Monday) Nov. 22 (AP).—The president of the United Nations Assembly, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, said today there are reasonable prospects for a settlement of the Berlin dispute in the next three weeks.

Evatt said in a radio interview (CBS) that the point at issue between Russia and the western powers is "a question of time and not of principle."

The main problem, he said, is to find an acceptable time schedule for the lifting of the Soviet blockade of Berlin and the introduction of Soviet zone currency for the entire city.

Russia wants the two steps to take place simultaneously, while the United States, Britain and France have insisted they will not discuss a settlement until the blockade is lifted.

Evatt said the two sides were close to agreement when the six "neutral" members of the Security Council submitted their resolution last month. Russia vetoed that resolution, however, on the ground it provided for immediate lifting of the blockade as the first step in a settlement.

He said new efforts are being made by the Security Council president, Dr. Juan Atilio Bramuglia of Argentina, to mediate the dispute.

Asked what the chances are for a settlement before the Assembly ends its Paris session, about December 11, Evatt said:

Third Field Boosts Deliveries by Airlift

Berlin, Nov. 21 (AP).—The addition of a third landing field to the Berlin airlift started paying off today.

American and British planes using Tempelhof, Gatow and the new Tegel strip delivered 5405 tons of supplies to this Soviet-blockaded city in a 24-hour period ending at noon.

It was the best single day's performance yet, except for a special effort made on Air Force Day September 18, when 5800 tons were flown in. The airlift began last June 26, three days after the Soviet land blockade was imposed.

American officials are trying to find out who was responsible for a false report that a United States airlift transport had made an emergency landing in the Soviet zone last night.

The false report was said to have been telephoned by unidentified persons to the combined British-American operations section at the Royal Air Force's Gatow Airport.

It said the C-54 Skymaster had landed at the Soviet Dallgow Airport outside Berlin, and that the Russians were willing to release the crew but insisted on holding the plane.

This report was issued to the press but was followed by an admission that the four-power air safety center "has been the victim of a hoax."

Sophoulis Regime Wins Close Vote Of Confidence

Athens, Nov. 21 (AP).—Premier Themistokles Sophoulis' new government won a vote of confidence in Parliament today by the narrow margin of two votes. It also obtained a suspension of Parliament until February 1, giving it a chance for life despite shaky support.

The balloting came after all-night debate. The vote was 169 to 167, with 18 members absent or abstaining.

Because of the closeness of the vote, some cabinet members were of the opinion the government should not take over. This view was not shared, however, by Sophoulis. The Premier pointed out that the cabinet could not be overturned while Parliament was in recess.

Sophoulis won only 25 of the 84 votes his Liberal Party has in Parliament. The Liberals who oppose him are led by Sophocles Venizelos. The previous government fell when Venizelos charged it had not put enough effort into defeating the Communist rebels.

The Populist (Royalists), headed by Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris, gave the new cabinet 124 votes.

Secret Records Disclose:

Bitter Army-Marine Rivalry On Saipan Worried Marshall

By The Associated Press

Long-secret Marine Corps documents disclosed last night that Gen. George C. Marshall, then Army Chief of Staff, was concerned about bitter Army-Marine rivalry in the Battle of Saipan.

A new batch of letters, reports and memoranda taken from Navy files showed that a half dozen top wartime Army and Navy officers became involved in the wrangle which grew out of the discharge of an Army general from his command.

Marshall, now Secretary of State, wrote at one point:

"Information at hand indicates that relationships between the Marine and Army forces on Saipan deteriorated beyond mere healthy rivalry."

Marine Corps historians issued the latest batch of records about a week after Army historians had produced their documents on the well-chronicled "battle of the Generals Smith."

Almost forgotten in the new material was the original argument over the dismissal of Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith from command of the Twenty-seventh Division by the Marine commanding all forces ashore at Saipan, Lieut. Gen. Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith.

In its place, the paramount question semed to be:

Did Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, senior commander of Army forces in the central Pacific with headquarters at Hawaii, have the right to go to Saipan, conduct an inquiry and comment on Howling Mad Smith's conduct?

Admiral Ernest J. King, naval chief of operations and top Navy officer, wrote to Marshall that he didn't think so.

King contended that Richardson "should have known that the investigation would inevitably involve joint command questions that were not within his province." Moreover, King told Marshall, "I note the record of the board includes intemperate attacks on the personal character and professional competence of Lieut. Gen. Holland M. Smith who was given no opportunity to hear the charges against him."

Marshall replied to King in part:

"In appointing an Army board to examine persons and records within his jurisdiction, General Richardson followed Army precedent. The board had no judiciary authority. It served to advise him, as senior Army commander in the theater, on the aspects of the case from the point of view of Army officers."

It was then that he made the

Egyptians Are Attacking In Negev, Israeli Army Says

Tel Aviv, Israel, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Israeli army said today the Egyptians are attacking Jewish positions in the Negev.

Jewish officials protested to United Nations authorities here that the attacks have been carried out for the past three days. They said the Egyptians have occupied at least three heights east of Rafah and damaged a desert pipeline.

It was the first report here of fighting in Palestine's southern desert since the swift Israeli attack last month which hurled the Egyptians back to their frontier and to Gaza on the coastal plain.

It was not disclosed whether Jewish forces had taken any counteraction.

Arab Peace Statement Welcomed by Israel

Tel Aviv, Nov. 21.—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion declared today that Israel welcomed the statement of King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan on the need for peace in Palestine. He pledged that "we will do everything in our power" to help Arab states achieve that aim.

The Israeli leader disclosed that talks were continuing abroad between Arab and Israeli representatives and he asserted that Israel was prepared to meet publicly

1950 Visitors to Vatican City To See Tombs of 16 Popes

Rome, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Tombs of 16 Popes, friezes, mosaics, altars, burial crypts and ancient coins will be shown to visitors to Vatican City during the Holy Year of 1950 as the result of six years of excavation, it was made known today.

Shown for the first time will be rediscovered sculptures by the fifteenth century Florentine Antonio Pollaiuolo, decorating the tomb of Pope Sixtus IV, and Donatello's sculptures adorning the tomb of Pope Paul II.

Excavation of Vatican grottoes which resulted in the finds were carried out between 1940 and 1946. They threatened to undermine the foundations of the great basilica. Since then experts have been cleaning and arranging the finds, and it is believed some additional excavating may have been done on a small scale.

Excavators were unable to find a trace of the tomb of St. Peter or of his remains.

The excavators found in the area mausoleums and statues of two pagans.

One was a girl entertainer, apparently an exotic dancer. The other was a man whose epitaph said:

"Eat, drink and be merry. There is naught after this life."

There were other comments, unprintable, on his tomb.

The pagan mausoleums were found on the lowest level of the excavations. They contain fine examples of mosaics, alabaster urns and other artistic remains.

Soviet Artillery Called God of War

Red Threat Cited

Korea Wants U. S. Troops To Remain

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The Korean National Assembly voted today to request United Nations approval for United States troops to remain in Korea after Prime Minister Lee Bum Suk warned a Soviet-inspired North Korean army already assembled along the border.

The assembly voted 88 to 3 with 22 abstaining to ask the United Nations to approve retention of American forces.

"The Soviets, pretending to have no political ambition in Korea, are withdrawing their troops in the north," the Prime Minister said.

"However, we should not forget that 250,000 North Korean troops, acting under direction of the Communist Party, are waiting to invade the south."

Lee said if the United States should withdraw from South Korea, the northern army would invade with Russia attempting to avoid all responsibility by calling it a "civil war."

Moscow, Nov. 21 (AP).—This is Artillery Day in Russia and Soviet newspapers, in lead editorials, hailed artillery as "the God of War." At the same time, they criticized the United Nations Assembly for turning down Russian disarmament proposals.

Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, minister of the armed forces, issued a special order of the day declaring that the Russian people "mark the successes of artillerymen and the workers' artillery industry in strengthening the fighting power of the armed forces of our homeland.

"Artillery occupies an honorable and responsible position in the Soviet armed forces as the chief shock forces of the Soviet army," said Pravda, the Communist Party organ.

Simultaneously, Pravda declared the rejection of Russia's disarmament proposals by the United Nations Assembly was "visible proof of the aggressiveness of the policy of the Anglo-American bloc."

A Soviet proposal that the Big Five cut their armaments by a third within a year and that the atom bomb be outlawed was rejected Friday, 39 to 6.

All papers today also carried articles by leading artillery generals crediting Soviet artillery with a large share in the most important victories over Germany. Earlier, Lieut. Gen. Anatoli A. Blagonravov, president of the Soviet Academy of Artillery Science, wrote in the Literary Gazette that artillery would remain important in modern warfare despite the atom bomb.

West Pacific Going to Reds, Admiral Says

Sonoma, Calif., Nov. 21 (U.P.).—"Control in the western Pacific is now passing to the Communists," Admiral Charles M. Cooke, Jr., warned today.

Cooke retired recently as commander of U. S. Naval Forces there. He headed all American combat forces in China.

"Russia's position in the western Pacific before the war was not strong," he said. "Incorporation and organization of Manchuria, North Korea and North China in the Communist sphere is bringing about a shift of economic and military superiority from the United States to Russia."

Safety Society to Meet

Safe handling of firearms will be discussed before the Washington Safety Society at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Naval Gun Factory by G. E. Damon, author of "Gun-Fun With Safety" and an assistant professor at the Colorado College of Education. Clyde Smith is the chapter secretary.

Standley Calls Inside Boring Main Red Peril

Shanghai (Monday), Nov. 22 (AP).—Admiral William H. Standley, wartime U. S. Ambassador to Moscow, voiced his conviction today that Russia is "not yet ready for a shooting war." But he warned of communism's danger to the United States through boring-from-within tactics.

He said Russia "neither has the necessary industrial potential nor the intention of going to war to support her aggressive expansion."

"America's greatest danger from communism is neither from China nor from Europe but from within her own borders. The danger is that communism, boring from within, may destroy our strength without open warfare."

Giant 'Wheel' Breakout Is Explained

crews were helpless to defend themselves or to destroy the German.

In this dilemma an American sergeant named Culin came forth with a simple invention that restored the effectiveness of the tank and gave a tremendous boost to morale throughout the Army. It consisted merely in fastening to the front of the tank two sturdy blades of steel which, acting somewhat as scythes, cut through the bank of earth and hedges. This not only allowed the tank to penetrate the obstacle on an even keel and with its guns firing, but actually allowed it to carry forward, for some distance, a natural camouflage of amputated hedge.

Ironic Satisfaction Felt by Soldiers

A feature of the incident from which our soldiers derived a gleeful satisfaction was that the steel for the cutting blades was obtained from the obstacles which the German had installed so profusely over the beaches of Normandy to prevent our landing on that coast.

By July 2, 1944, we had landed in Normandy about one million men, including 13 American, 11 British, and 1 Canadian divisions. In the same period we put ashore 566,648 tons of supplies and 171,532 vehicles. It was all hard and exhausting work, but its accomplishment paid off in big dividends when finally we were ready to go full out against the enemy. During these first three weeks we took 41,000 prisoners. Our casualties totaled 60,771, of whom 8975 were killed.

The July battling all along the front involved some of the fiercest and most sanguinary fighting of the war. On the American front every attack was channelized by swamps and streams and the ground was unusually advantageous to the defense.

Tactical Ability Evidenced by Many

Many of Bradley's subordinates made names for themselves during this period, clearly establishing their right to be numbered among the best of America's tacticians. Our corps and division commanders, to say nothing of hundreds of more junior officers, generally demonstrated qualities of leadership and tactical skill that stamped them as top-flight battle leaders.

Just after the middle of July the United States First Army attained, on its portion of the front, the line—St. Lo to the west coast—from which it could launch a powerful assault. At that moment the weather, which had been bad, grew abominably worse and for the following week all of us went through a period of agonizing tenseness.

Finally on July 25, seven weeks after D-Day, the attack was launched, from the approximate line we had expected to hold on D plus 5 stretching from Caen through Caumont to St. Lo. A tremendous carpet, or area, bombing was placed along the St. Lo sector of the American front and its stunning effect upon the enemy lasted throughout the day. Unfortunately a mistake by part of the bombing forces caused a considerable number of casualties in one battalion of the Ninth Division and in the Thirtieth Division, and killed Lieut. Gen. Lesley McNair, who had gone into an observation post to watch the beginning of the attack. His death cast a gloom over all who had known this most able and devoted officer.

Bradley Discounts Slowness of Start

Progress on the first day was slow, but that evening General Bradley observed to me that it was always slow going in the early phases of such an attack and expressed the conviction that the next day and thereafter would witness extraordinary advances by our forces. The event proved him to be completely correct.

In the following week he slashed his way downward to the base of the peninsula, passing through the bottleneck at Avranches, and launched his columns into the rear of the German forces. At this moment, on August 1, General Patton, with Third Army Headquarters, was brought up into the battle to take charge of the operations on the First Army's right flank.

With a clean and decisive breakout achieved, Bradley's immediate problem became that of inflicting on the enemy the greatest possible destruction. All else could wait upon his exploitation of this golden opportunity, in the certainty that with the enemy destroyed everything else could quickly be set right.

His scheme was to throw every unit he could spare elsewhere directly at the rear of the German forces still in place between Caen and the vicinity of Avranches. In effect, he hoped to encircle the enemy forces, which were still compelled to face generally northward against the Canadians and British.

THE ROLLBACK BEGINS—Map shows how British and American forces, from the line they had established after landing in France, broke through and began rolling the Germans back. In the operation which began with a tremendous bombing of the St. Lo sector July 25, and continued through August 6, American forces slashed down to the base of the peninsula and swung inland to attack the German rear

The battlefield at Falaise, after General Bradley had wheeled around the German First and Seventh Armies, became one of the great "killing grounds" of the war. Forty-eight hours after the Americans had come full circle to close the gap with their British and Canadian allies, General Eisenhower walked across this battlefield and he writes that only Dante could describe the death and destruction he witnessed.

The seventeenth installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published here tomorrow, also describes one of the longest-sustained arguments between General Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill in the course of the war. This was over "Dragoon," the code word for the landing in the south of France. The dispute on this point has never been told before.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book published by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

Egyptians Are Attacking In Negev, Israeli Army Says

"any time, any place" with Abdullah's officials and those of other Arab states.

"Even if we can get more by military force we prefer to get less by peace," Ben-Gurion said.

The Prime Minister thus indicated that Israel, while capable of seizing more territory, would constrain its army in the interests of a final settlement.

Ben-Gurion also expressed a conviction similar to that privately voiced by many Arab leaders—that the quickest way to speed up preliminary talks would be a direct order for negotiations issued by the Security Council. Such an order, it was implied, would give some Arab statesmen the excuse they feel they need to avoid the public onus of treating with the new state.

He expressed the hope that Abdullah's statement would be followed by some concrete action.

C of C Urges Support Of Civil Defense Plans

The United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday called on American businessmen to give full support to civil defense planning.

Plans for a Nation-wide civil defense organization are being studied by defense officials. The Eighty-first Congress may be asked to approve a far-reaching program, emphasizing local community action.

urged "immediate and definite" aid for the Chinese government as a matter of American self-interet, lest the Communists conquer all Asia.

"Let me assure our American friends," the wife of China's President said in an ABC broadcast from Nanking, "that despite recent disappointments, the Generalissimo and I are not daunted in our determination to go on with the righteous war against the Communist who seek to put our country behind the iron curtain."

Expressing thanks for American aid already given, Madame Chiang said "the means and methods" of further aid "should be determined by you," but:

"I only ask this—to tell you that any further aid must be immediate and definite.

"If communism prevails in China, you, my friends will ultimately also be suffering . . .

Service Rows Face Two Senate Probes

Gifts Set Record

ECA Grants In Week Top 650 Million

By the United Press

ECA dipped deeply into its recovery coffers last week to provide Europe and China with record authorizations totaling $650,038,579.

It authorized as outright gifts to 11 European nations, western Germany and China more than twice as much as in the previous top week, that ending November 13, with grants of $263,345,203.

The authorizations, to purchase such recovery items as petroleum products, machinery and equipment, lumber, metals and foodstuffs, brought the cumulative aid total for all countries to date to $3,610,852,178. That leaves ECA with only about one billion dollars to carry it over until Congress votes new funds.

The countries which will benefit include Austria, Belgium, bizone Germany, Denmark, France, the French zone of Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and the United Kingdom.

China, hard pressed by her war with the Communists, was given 14 million dollars to pay for crude petroleum and products which she sorely needs. ECA announced additionally that it was expediting as an emergency measure a program to bring seven major Chinese cities enough rice and flour to give every inhabitant a December ration of 15 pounds of one or the other.

Pakistan Charge Denied

New Delhi, Nov. 21 (AP).—An Indian Defense Ministry spokesman said today Pakistan's allegations that India is planning a winter offensive in Kashmir are "completely untrue."

By the United Press

A group of Senators is preparing for a double-barreled investigation of interservice bickering in the armed forces, it was disclosed yesterday.

The inquiries will center on Army-Navy-Air Force rows and sharp complaints that the 1947 Unification Act has fallen far short of its purpose.

As now planned, the Senate Armed Services Committee will air disputes over military functions such as the Navy versus Air Force quarrel over which shall do strategic bombing.

Many Favor Prompt Probe

The Expenditures Committee, which already is quietly looking into charges of waste in the defense establishment, will branch out to include the interservice battle for bigger slices of defense spending.

It can be stated that many Democrats and Republicans are agreed that "a top-to-bottom" inquiry should be the first order of business of the new Congress in January.

The Unification Act was approved by Congress after months of debate and airing of sharp difference between the services.

Since its enactment, disputes have arisen over functions under the measure and the disputes were heightened by a clamor for greater portions of the defense spending budget.

Air Force Drive Recalled

It was highlighted last year by Air Force Secretary Stuart Symington's successful battle, waged against opposition of both Mr. Truman and Defense Secretary James Forrestal, to obtain funds to begin a 70-air group program.

As Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), put it:

"The new military setup has failed as regards a unified plan of defense and offense, and in effecting efficiency in the services of supply. When we have three staffs, the failure is evident. There is no unity."

Miss Bentley to Accept Suit

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP).—Elizabeth T. Bentley, self-styled former Communist spy, said tonight she "certainly would accept" any summons in a $100,000 slander suit filed against her by William W. Remington, former Commerce Department official.

Miss Bentley involved Remington last summer in testimony before a House Un-American Activities Committee hearing on communism.

Told of a report that persons representing Remington would try to serve her with a summons Monday, Miss Bentley remarked:

"I didn't even know he (Remington) was looking for me."

She added her attorneys already had informed Remington's lawyer they were ready to accept the summons.

Lebanon to Get Vaccine

The American Red Cross announced yesterday that typhus vaccine sufficient to inoculate 450,000 persons is being shipped to Lebanon to prevent an outbreak of the disease among refugees from the Palestine fighting.

Pro-Franco Councilmen Win In Spain's Municipal Voting

Madrid (Monday), Nov. 22 (AP).—Pro-Franco councilmen were elected throughout Spain yesterday in the first municipal elections since the 1936-39 civil war.

The elections were without political importance. They passed quietly with only a few minor incidents.

Voting in the provincial capitals of the larger cities, including Madrid, resulted in victory for the so-called official tickets. These tickets were supported by the appointive provincial and city administrations and the totalitarian Falange Party, the only one permitted in Spain by Gen. Francisco Franco.

The tickets also had the support of the controlled press. Any opposition was purely on local issues.

Interior Minister Blas Perez Gonzalez told a news conference last night that 70.9 per cent of the nation's 6,510,598 heads of families eligible to vote had turned out for the Sunday balloting.

He said returns from 36 of Spain's 50 provinces showed pro-Franco candidates had won without exception.

In a large number of villages and towns the election was decided without any voting. Under the election decree candidates are automatically elected when the number of candidate is no greater than the number of vacancies.

Coed Dies, 10 Injured In Sorority House Fire

Cortland, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP).—Fire swept through a sorority house at Cortland State Teachers College early today taking the life of a 20-year-old coed and injuring 10 others.

Barbara Kelsey, Carthage, died several hours later from smoke and fumes inhaled as she and her companions were rescued from the blazing Arethusa sorority house.

Final Decision on Port Strike In France Due Wednesday

Paris, Nov. 21 (AP).—France's labor picture brightened today after Communist union leaders decided to postpone a scheduled general port strike.

A dockworkers' strike had been scheduled for Monday. The union leaders who decided upon postponement last night said a final strike decision will be made Wednesday.

The postponement was interpreted as a sign of weakness on the part of the Communists. Many observers feel that a strike of unlimited duration would have started if the Communists had been sure of themselves.

It was recalled the Communist-dominated railroad union voted a 24-hour strike recently but never called its members out.

The nation-wide coal mine strike ended its seventh week today. The government said about 85 per cent of the miners have returned to their jobs, but Communist-dominated union leaders have shown no signs of giving in.

111,405 Freight Cars On Order by Roads

By The Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads yesterday reported the November 1 backlog of new freight equipment orders at 111,405 cars. This compares with 126,213 new freight cars on order November 1, 1947.

The railroad industry also had outstanding orders for 1630 new locomotives on the first of this month, compared with orders for 967 locomotives the same date last year.

comment about deterioration of Army-Marine relationships.

Howling Mad Smith set forth his views about Richardson in a letter to Vice Admiral Richmond K. Turner, commander of the joint expeditionary force, written a few days after he had relieved Army General Smith of his command. The Marine general was telling what took place when he visited Richardson's headquarters.

The Marine (Smith) said Richardson "berated" him and that the substance of his remarks was:

"I want you to know you cannot push the Army around the way you have been doing. You and your corps commanders are not as well qualified to lead large bodies of troops as general officers of the Army."

Smith said Richardson "criticized my conduct of the operations, stating that not a single coordinated attack had been made and that we were nothing but 'beach runners,' (who) did not know how to conduct operations beyond the beach."

One of the excerpts made public was taken from a final report on the Saipan campaign by Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, Fifth Fleet commander. The Marine news release said that in its original form the excerpt said:

"With one exception all units involved in the operation and all echelons of command performed in a most satisfactory and commendable manner. There was excellent cooperation, intelligent initiative and the finest fighting qualities displayed throughout the operation. The one exception noted has been made the subject of separate correspondence."

The references to the "exception" were deleted on the recommendation of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of all United States forces in the Pacific, the Marine Corps release said. (A reporter who examined the original document found the references heavily blacked out with india ink.)

U. S. Retains Ties With Peru Despite Regime Overthrow

By The Associated Press

The United States announced yesterday it is continuing normal diplomatic relations with Peru despite the recent overturn of the Peruvian government.

In a revolution regarded here as resulting from domestic issues, Gen. Manuel Odria early this month became the new President of Peru, succeeding Jose Luis Bustamante.

The American decision is in line with a resolution adopted at the Bogota Pan American Conference early this year, stating that "maintenance or renewal of diplomatic relations with a particular government does not in any way imply any judgment as to the domestic policy of such a government," the State Department said.

Crosby Edges Out Miss Bergman in Magazine Poll

Hollywood, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Bing Crosby edged out Ingrid Bergman as the favorite movie star of 1948, according to a poll announced today by Boxoffice magazine, movie trade publication. Miss Bergman had led the parade for the last two years.

Other leaders, in order, were Gary Cooper, Claudette Colbert, Clark Gable, Loreta Young, Cary Grant, Gregory Peck, Betty Grable, Spencer Tracy, Humphrey Bogart and Rita Hayworth.

Roy Rogers and Gene Autry finished one-two in a special Western-star poll.

Votes were cast by press and radio critics, movie exhibitors and representatives of selected civic organizations.

Great Plains Digs Out From Blizzard

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Great Plains region was shaking itself free today from the paralyzing grip of a late fall blizzard.

Six persons were dead as a result of the three-day snowstorm that marooned hundreds of motorists and disrupted communications from eastern Colorado to Minnesota.

In western Kansas, hardest hit by the 75-mile-an-hour winds, the body of Mrs. Hal Laughlin, 30-year-old expectant mother of Jetmore, Kas., widely sought since Thursday, was found one mile south of where her car was parked outside Dodge City.

Some stalled trains began moving yesterday as snow plows battered through drifts as high as 15 feet. At least two transcontinental passenger trains are still stuck today in western Kansas. Their passengers are being cared for in nearby towns.

Motorists, stranded when the storm swung in from eastern Colorado Wednesday night, were either under way today or in improvised havens safe from the weather. A few were in danger of food shortages unless relief crews break through the drifts quickly.

Only U. S. Highway 40 is open into Colorado, and that for one-way travel. A 6-inch snow last night on top of the blizzard-drifted highways kept travel in hazardous condition in western Kansas.

Highway crews today uncovered a man's body in his stalled, snow-covered car on a highway near Oberlin, Kans.

Yesterday two brothers were found dead near Stromsburg, Nebr.; a farmer died of exposure near Lebanon, Nebr., and an elderly man succumbed to a heart attack while shoveling snow at Seward, Nebr.

Joann Canning, 15, died en route to Hutchinson, Kans., Friday, as her parents were taking her to a hospital for diabetic treatment. The trip was delayed by the drifted snow on the highway.

Spanking Child Always Bad, Says Yale Clinic Head

Atlantic City, Nov. 21 (AP).—Spanking a child always is bad, and especially at certain times, Dr. Arnold Gesell, director of the Yale University clinic of child development, told a meeting of the American Academy of Pediatricians here today.

One of these times is when a child is about 2½ years old, he said. Many appear obstinate and perverse at that age, often doing the opposite to what they are told.

But actually, Dr. Gesell said, the child may only be confused. He is just learning the difference between yes and no, yours and mine, and come and go.

He has to obey, but doesn't quite understand. But by the age of 3, the normal child learns to make simple choices within the range of his ability.

Finnish War Leaders Released From Prison

Helsinki, Finland, Nov. 21 (AP).—Edwin Linkomies and Vaino A. Tanner were released from prison today after serving half of a sentence imposed for leading Finland into war with Russia in 1941.

Linkomies, a former premier, and Tanner, a former finance and foreign minister, were sentenced by a special tribunal in 1946 to serve five years and six months in prison.

Romania Communists To Check Party Men

Bucharest, Romania, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Romanian Workers (Communist) Party has decided to carry out a check of its active party members.

The check has become necessary, the official newspaper Scanteia, said, "in order to bring about an improvement to the leading party organs by eliminating elements proved to have been foreign to the working class and party spirit."

Tobin Sees Early Taft-Hartley Repeal

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin said last night he thought Congress would take up repeal of the Taft-Hartley law with "reasonable promptitude."

To fill the void, Tobin said he expected some form of the Wagner Act.

The Secretary was interviewed by Washington correspondents Roscoe Drummond of the Christian Science Monitor, Blair Moody of the Detroit News, and Charles T. Lucey of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, on the "Meet Your Congress" program over Station WINX.

"Mandate for Repeal"

Tobin said the public in the recent election had given "Congress a direct mandate for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law."

On the subject of jurisdictional disputes, Tobin said it "would be grossly unfair" in certain cases if they were prohibited, but the new labor law should provide for their settlement "judicially."

Asked if there should be any labor injunctions, the Secretary said, "in situations of great national emergency the President should have the power to protect the country." He added that the Railway Labor Act has "worked successfully for 26 years" in this respect and its provisions should be made generally applicable.

Views on Affidavits

Tobin said he personally had no objection to signing an affidavit that he was not a Communist, and that "no good laboring man" did either. What labor objected to, he said, was that the requirement made them "second class citizens" when it was not required of management, too. The affidavit should be required of both parties, he said.

The Secretary said the President's proposal to raise the minimum wage to 75 cents an hour represented an increase of only 2 cents an hour, in terms of purchasing power over the present 40-cent scale established in 1943.

He estimated it would affect about three million persons and would be helpful to the economy to raise their purchasing power.

Dock Strike Parleys Go On Again Today

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Negotiations will be resumed Monday in the 12-day-old East Coast longshoremen's strike which has closed the Nation's big Atlantic ports to overseas shipping.

Federal mediators, who suspended talks today, reported progress "in general terms" toward a settlement, after meetings ended last night.

Brother Identifies Man Found Dead In Channel

A 69-year-old man, who was found dead in the Washington Channel near Maine ave. and P st. sw. Saturday, yesterday was identified as Sylvan Ryder, no fixed address.

The identification was made by a brother, Jesse Ryder of Baltimore, Md., whose name appeared in a letter found on the elderly man's body.

The brother told police that up until a few weeks ago, his brother had been employed at the Salvation Army here. Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said he will withhold a certificate of death pending a chemical analysis of stomach content.

Dr. E. A. Stecker To Talk at Center

Dr. Edward A. Stecker, professor of neuropsychiatry of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, will be guest speaker on Friday night at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.

His talk, "Compromise or Chaos," will be the third in the center's current monthly series of guest lectures. The meeting is open to members of local medical societies, faculties and students of medical schools and hospitals, and medical officers of the Army, Navy, Public Health Service and Veterans Administration.

Root to Address Historical Group

Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, will speak to the Montgomery County Historical Society, at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Chevy Chase Library, 5910 Wisconsin ave.

A plan whereby the society will be permitted to use the old tavern at Great Falls to house historical items and to hold meetings will be discussed.

Restaurant Union Abandons Leftist UPWA

year—a strike which nearly broke up the cafeteria union.

SUCCESS STORY: Navy Comdr. William J. Lederer recently had to go on leave to take over his wife's duties of running their home and caring for their two sons. His wife had broken her leg.

Unlike men everywhere, Lederer made his kitchen and nose-wiping stint pay off. He put in Navy rules for his housekeeping chores and wrote a story about it for This Week Magazine. He was paid several hundred dollars for it.

Now he has sold the same yarn to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which will make a movie of it. When he received a big fat check from Hollywood for his story he told a friend he was about ready to go back to the kitchen to stay.

PEOPLE: Charles Coates is handling publicity for the Hoover Commission. He's on leave from General Foods . . . H. Eliot Kaplan has resigned as executive director and counsel of the National Civil Service League. He will become deputy State comptroller of New York State. Kaplan did an outstanding job in his 20 years with the league . . . John Giese, a private flying expert, soon will be leaving Civil Aeronautics.

HOLIDAY: Both Christmas and New Year's will be on Saturday, which results in what seems to be a contradicting ruling on pay for employes who must work on either or both of those days. This is it: if a holiday Saturday is in an employe's regular tour of duty and if he works it, he must be paid double time for that day, but if he has already worked 40 hours, Monday through Friday, he'll only get 1½ time if he works a Saturday holiday.

VA: This is another letter from a VA employe who attempts to throw some light on the delay in handling of veterans' cases:

"I'm an adjuster who handles the type of claims mentioned in your recent columns. All adjudicative personnel are constantly being bombarded with new rules and regulations, technical bulletins, procedures and office memoranda explaining the procedures. These, of course, emanate from the top brass who are busy as beavers justifying their existence.

"However, these changing rules, while more harassing than helpful, are always with us whether we like it or not, and the lowly adjudicator must adhere to them—or else.

"We are aware of the needs of the many claimants for prompt settlement of their cases, and it's often with reluctance we request additional forms or evidence. Yet it's either done according to the many rules or the final award will not be approved and the adjudicator may face a reprimand, or worse.

"The cause of undue delays is the cumbersome system of VA laws, rules and regulations. Unless the VA is streamlined from top to bottom there doesn't seem to be any prospect for relief from the red tape and service to the claimants."

PRIVATE WORK: Another employe writes to say that a VA bigshot has his office staff to do the work of a veteran's group on office time. Bills for dues to the organization, receipts, membership blanks, etc., are handled by his two secretaries on office time, it's charged. The writer believes this private work has something to do with the delay in handling VA's legitimate work. No doubt it does.

POWER CASE: Army Secretary Royall has moved in on the Power case. He has ordered all overseas commanders to make an immediate inquiry into the claims of civilian employes, and he has asked that steps be taken to wipe out delays in handling them.

It's to the secretary's credit that he acted before President Truman ordered an investigation of the case after reading this column. Meantime, Mrs. John Power whose husband, an Army employe, was killed 10 months ago, has been informed by GAO that she will soon be paid her husband's 14-month-old expense account.

County Government Talk

"County Government" will be the subject of a panel discussion by the League of Women Voters of Prince Georges County during its weekly radio program over WGAY today at 9:45 a.m.

Horticultural Club Picks Officers Tonight

Annual election of officers of the Takoma Horticultural Club will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Takoma Branch of the Public Library, 5th and Cedar sts. nw.

A slate of candidates was announced yesterday by Frank S. Pohanka, nominating chairman, as follows: D. G. Duey for president; Joseph J. Sazama for vice president; Mrs. Hannah Brown and Walter H. Gannaway for secretary; John H. Davidson for treasurer and Dr. William Stuart and Dr. Roy Magruder for landscape gardener.

Childs to Address Prince Georges C. of C.

William F. Childs, chief engineer of the Maryland State Roads Commission, will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce tonight.

The dinner will be at 7 p. m. at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, Landover, and will be preceded by an hour-long open house. Childs will speak on "Our State Highway System—Present and Future."

County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman will discuss highway construction plans in the county area.

NO THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking CAMELS!

MAKE YOUR OWN 30-DAY CAMEL MILDNESS TEST. Smoke Camels, and only Camels, for 30 days. Prove for yourself just how mild Camels are!

Hundreds of men and women, from coast to coast, recently made a similar test. They smoked an average of one to two packs of Camels a day for 30 days. Their throats were carefully examined by noted throat specialists. And after a total of 2470 exacting examinations—these throat specialists reported not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking Camels!

But prove it yourself . . . in your "T-Zone" (T for Taste and T for Throat). Let YOUR OWN TASTE tell you about the rich, full flavor of Camel's choice tobaccos. Let YOUR OWN THROAT give the good news of Camel's cool, cool mildness.

Money-Back Guarantee!

Try Camels and test them as you smoke them. If, at any time, you are not convinced that Camels are the mildest cigarette you ever smoked, return the package with the unused Camels and we will refund its full purchase price, plus postage. (Signed) R. For Simplification

Community organization for hospital care is a complicated matter and there is danger of going astray in its convolutions. As the issue comes up for fresh discussion, however, at least two facts stand out. First, the expert survey directed by Dr. Claude W. Munger two years ago came up with serious doubts that the present Hospital Service Agency is worth what it costs. Instead of turning over Community Chest funds to this agency and having it pay the hospitals in part for the care of semi-indigent patients, the experts asked why the entire fund available for this purpose should not go to the hospitals themselves. That question has never been satisfactorily answered. Unless a convincing answer can be given, we surmise that the hospitals will have public sentiment on their side in pressing for change in the system.

Second, the sick people who must rely upon public help for hospitalization ought to have their interest in the situation explored once more. It does not make sense to a sick person who goes to a hospital for aid to be referred to a central screening agency before he can be given help. Time as well as money and patience is lost in such administrative routine. Certainly if the hospitals are able to render the service performed by the Hospital Service Agency, it would be a great convenience to ailing citizens to have them do it. That is another reason why the Metropolitan Health and Hospital Survey cast grave suspicions upon the HSA.

We suspect that the simplified organization and saving of overhead which the survey favored would have been effected long ago except for the civic inertia that afflicts Washington. Now, with the Community Chest unable to reach its fund-raising goal, there is double pressure for any reasonable change that promises a saving. This newspaper hopes that the problem of admitting semi-indigent patients to hospitals will be resurveyed in the light of the community welfare rather than any formalized pattern or vested interest.

Warning Example

The Government has spent many millions of dollars supporting potato prices at 90 per cent of parity. The result has been production of many millions of bushels of surplus potatoes, that had to be destroyed, given away, or converted to nonfood uses. The potato stands as a warning symbol of the folly of the rigid price support policy that has been followed and that a good many members of Congress want to perpetuate by repeal of the long-range flexible support program approved by the last Congress.

Although the flexible support provisions of that act will not become effective for many months, in most cases, potatoes and a number of other commodities harvested after the first of the year may be supported at not less than 60 per cent of parity and not more than the support level of 1948. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has accordingly exercised his discretionary power to apply the minimum support level next year to potatoes. At the same time acreage has been cut with a view to reducing the size of the crop, and only those growers staying within allotted acreage goals will be eligible for price supports.

The potential waste entailed by a price support system of the sort we now have has been disregarded by the American people because in recent years the heavy demand for farm products has, with a few exceptions, outrun superabundant supplies. Potatoes constitute an outstanding exception to the general rule. The monetary cost and the material waste of labor and land entailed by the price support program in the single instance of potatoes constitute a salutary warning of the terrific losses that might lie ahead if a high and inflexible system of price supports is relied upon to maintain farm prosperity.

If farmers can count on receiving high prices for their products, even though they are being produced to excess, there is a lack of incentive to shift production to crops in greater demand. Indeed, as shown by the avalanche of unwanted potatoes produced by intensive use of fertilizers, there is often a positive inducement to increase the output of products for which there is no market at support prices by improved methods of cultivation. To safeguard the people from this sort of wasteful exploitation of agricultural lands, and to protect the Treasury from outlays that might run into billions of dollars if sharp general declines in farm prices were to occur, it is essential to replace the present system with one more adapted to the needs of a rapidly changing progressive economy.

Hands Across The Sea

The striking crewmen of the Queen Elizabeth have made themselves active supporters of an American strike that is depriving millions of their fellow countrymen and other Europeans of goods that are desperately needed. Thus this so-called sympathy strike is in effect a threat to the recovery program, although President Ryan of the International Longshoremen's Association says the strikers are just carrying out trade union principles.

Labor solidarity on an international basis is a fine thing when it implies united striving to gain for workers a higher standard of living by legitimate means. But when the principle of solidarity is stretched to the extent of supporting efforts of an alien union to extort concessions from employers by using weapons of coercion that inflict hardship on millions of people and thwart the efforts of the United States Government to succor needy nations, labor unity becomes a world menace instead of an elevating influence.

It has become a bad habit to attribute to the insidious influence of Communists most of the loss and deprivation caused by widespread strikes that paralyze communications and disrupt economic life. In the present instance, there is an absence of proof to support such charges. President Ryan of the ILA is a professed foe of communism. Yet he is wholeheartedly in favor of using all the weapons in his union's armory to gain victory. He has done what he could by way of reminders of past favors and threats of reprisals to come to enlist the support of Canadian dock workers and prevent the handling of cargoes of ships diverted from New York to Canadian ports. Since Mr. Ryan has also remained deaf to appeals to permit ECA cargoes to be shipped from strike-bound American ports, it is not surprising that he should applaud the action of British seamen who, willingly or not, are helping him to sabotage the recovery program.

The practice of reaching out for allies in a labor struggle is in accord with time-honored rules of the game. The policy is, nevertheless, tragically shortsighted in this instance. For when millions of hapless consumers at home and abroad are victimized by a strike involving a comparatively few strategically placed unionists, the strike leader who puts the interests of his followers above humanitarian considerations is building up deep-seated popular resentments that are likely to undermine the foundations on which his power rests.

Basing Point

A subcommittee headed by Senator Capehart has been holding hearings on the effect of the Supreme Court basing-point decision in the cement case. That decision, along with other cases that have not yet reached the Supreme Court, has created a furor in business circles. Some witnesses before the committee contend that it will necessitate abandonment of all pricing systems that entail absorption of freight costs. That view is upheld by Lowell B. Mason, a dissenting member of the FTC and harsh critic of his colleagues who have engaged in a successful battle against the basing-point system. He is of the opinion that many thousands of establishments will be affected by recent basing-point decisions, since they follow pricing practices condemned by the courts. We could, he says, "make these folks really sweat blood before they get out of our clutches if we sued them."

Other experts maintain that the effect of the basing-point decisions has been grossly exaggerated. They conclude that the courts have not yet passed on the legality of the basing-point system per se, merely holding it to be illegal if there is evidence of a conspiracy or an attempt to impair competition. However, the position taken by the FTC in its fight against delivered-price system gives weight to the charge that the commission regards any pricing system except that based on uniform f.o.b. mill net prices as discriminatory, hence illegal. Moreover, the obiter dicta sprinkled throughout the Supreme Court's discursive decision in the cement case indicates that a majority of the Court is in sympathy with the FTC viewpoint.

Apart from the legal controversy over interpretation of court decisions, violent differences of opinion also exist as to the desirability of retaining basing-point pricing systems. Proponents maintain that its outlawry would restrict competition instead of suppressing it and result in building up local monopolies based on freight advantages. Certainly an enforced shift to f.o.b. pricing would often result in serious industrial dislocations, injurious to labor as well as managements. Congress can, therefore, hardly avoid taking cognizance of the confused situation resulting from the inconclusive basing-point decisions and deciding whether or not to take remedial action. Even if the new Congress is disposed to support the FTC, there remains a crying need for clarification of existing laws. For, as matters stand, businessmen are really up in the air. Legal advice does not help them, since lawyers, including lawyers attached to the FTC, disagree as to the effect of recent basing-point decisions on delivered price systems involving absorption of freight charges.

The Capehart Committee has done a lot of valuable spadework in bringing together pertinent facts and opinions bearing on the subject. Since it is dealing with an issue that is economic, not political, it is to be hoped that the incoming Congress will weigh the committee's conclusions and recommendations with the objectivity that such an important issue demands.

Food For Thought

The Anglo-American air lift appears to be good American propaganda in Germany. It is a propaganda of acts rather than words, and, compared with the bombast that emanates from Russia, it must be pretty impressive. Reports from Berlin indicate that there is real appreciation on the part of the German people of what is as much an act of mercy as protection of our own and Britain's vital interest. But, according to Hitler's thesis, a lie planted often enough gains currency, and the Russians have proved extremely adept at misrepresenting the scope and direction of American aid in Germany.

It is encouraging to see the Army alert to this danger. A three-man team of experts has just been dispatched to advise General Clay on ways to get across to the Germans the truth as to their day-to-day food supply—poor as it is. This is not a job for propaganda in the invidious sense. The facts speak for themselves—Britain and the United States together supply 55 per cent of the food rations in western Germany; the American share is about 37 per cent of the total; and this food is paid for by American taxpayers to the tune of more than half a billion dollars this fiscal year. But the facts must be made available through press and radio for the people to understand them. It is a somewhat sobering thought that despite the magnitude of our program there is a widespread misconception in Germany, energetically abetted by the Russians, that we are shipping potatoes out of Germany when in fact we are sending them to needy areas of Germany itself.

Elsewhere in Europe the ECA has run into the same sort of misunderstandings about American aid. These misunderstandings are being dispelled, though not as rapidly as one might wish. Everywhere the need is for facts, presented in personal terms that the people can understand. The United States need have no reluctance or modesty in publicizing its assistance to Europe, nor in insisting on wide publicity by the recipient governments themselves.

Presidential Pension

The next Congress might well take action on Senator Taft's proposal to give all former President's lifetime pensions of about $25,000 a year. Such action is long overdue; indeed, the need for some form of pension to protect retired Chief Executives from financial worries and enable them to live in dignity and comfort has been in evidence since the days of George Washington. For few Presidents have been men with ample independent means. Those who had been comparatively well off before they took office made inroads on their private fortunes, while others sacrificed opportunities to earn and save enough to provide for old age and family obligations. Thus the pensioning of former Presidents should be recognized as a debt due from the Nation to men who have served their country in an office that exacts heavy toll from incumbents, not only physically but materially.

A suitable pension law would also greatly diminish the danger that a former President, harassed by financial pressure, might engage in unwise or unsuitable business activities that would lower the prestige of the office. The unsavory enterprise in which the impecunious General Grant became innocently involved after he left the White House provides the outstanding example of the sort of dangerous entanglements that an adequate pension might have prevented. To be really adequate, however, pensions for Presidents should also make provision for wives and children under age. General Grant, for example, after the debacle, racing against fast approaching death, painfully wrote his memoirs to make provision for his family. For himself he was past caring.

There could be no better time than the present to enact the needed pension law. For the President's salary is grossly inadequate after his high taxes have been paid and the unavoidable expenses connected with his office have been met. Furthermore, it is desirable to have the question passed on at a time when our only former President is a man of means, so that it cannot be charged that special-aid legislation is being urged in the guise of a compresensive measure. The limited outlay required would be an excellent investment for the Government, since it would enable our Presidents to devote themselves wholeheartedly to the work in hand without worrying about their financial future.

BOY AND BIRD

The small hand clasped around
Bright plumage of the bird
From the tangle of vines on the ground—
Since then it had not stirred.

Between forefinger and thumb
Moved only alert, bright eyes—
Watching the boy's eyes come
Closer, like mimic skies.

The boy was careful to press
Enough to fit the shape
Of the bird—while quietness
Watched only to escape.

He felt a trembling run
Through fibers close to his own
And he operated his hand to the sun—
In a flash the bird had flown.

Between them something had stirred;
Unknowing, the boy possessed
A moment that has no word,
But sings in the secret breast.

Ethical Auto Dealers

Your reporting of the Macy Subcommittee hearings as regards the statement of our president, Mr. Earl O. Baker, on November 16, was quite disappointing. Good journalism should report both sides of a story.

Mr. Baker pointed out that (1) the committee and the press had deemphasized that "some dealers are doing business in an honorable manner." Not only is that true, but it is also true that by far the large majority are doing business in a legal, honorable and ethical manner. (2) It is a matter of opinion as to what is fair profit and that in order to live in bad years, a dealer must reasonably fortify himself in the good ones. (3) The committee release referred to mark-ups of 43 per cent on trade-ins whereas our industry has always operated on a discount basis which would be 30 per cent. The committee likewise did not mention expenses on reconditioning (repairing) the car for sale, advertising, salesmen's commissions, guarantee cost and general overhead. (4) Dealers were selling new cars at much less than prices established by the public on used car lots. (5) He pointed out that many so-called accessories have now been accepted by motorists as necessities, such as heaters, etc.

Slips of a few do not mean that the bulk are of the same stripe. There are many in our industry who have the very highest ethics to be found anywhere.

Lewis Defended

Unemotional analysis of John L. Lewis and his UMW does not, to my way of thinking, justify the tirades of hate the American people and press bring down upon him. Great space has been devoted to the fact that his salary was raised to $50,000 and always with the inference that all sorts of intimidations and pressures were used to obtain it.

Why should it be wrong for a man representing 500,000 men to receive this sum? I hear no objections to the $500,000 salary that Mr. Watson of IBM receives. No, the difference in thinking lies in a deep rooted form of snobbery which will always justify management in practically anything it does, while wherein labor is concerned, the tendency is the exact opposite.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that the miners are assessed $10 per month dues—as though there were something evil about it. But is mention made of the assessments the operators have always forced on the miners? Is it not an assessment far greater to pay the miners less money than they are worth?

Criticism of the miners' strikes as a threat to national security leaves me cold—and I need coal as much as anybody. Should groups of labor, simply because of their importance in our economy be denied full rights to strike? That would be slavery. On the contrary, if the miners are so valuable to the nation, it would seem to me that there should be no question as to the necessity for just wages and benefits and we would do better to take their part and recompense them for their services.

If there can be no balance whereby labor can get fair wages and the operators also get fair profits, the business is simply not operable as a free enterprise. Shall we nationalize the mines and give labor its fair wages or shall we permit capital to make its profit at the expense of 500,000 men? Morally, there is but one answer—the workers should receive the full fruits of their dangerous work.

Continuing Polls

I am writing to advise that one reader does not appreciate your continued display of the Gallup Poll.

The so-called "polls" have mishandled every presidential election for the past 12 years. Each time the Democrats trailed badly until the moment before election—then suddenly the day before election Gallup & Co. narrowed the gap down to a respectable horse race. This time they even convinced themselves and forgot to narrow the gap. If the Democrats couldn't win three times in a row but did win, can this be coincidence?

In the short time that I have lived in Washington, I have been personally contacted by The Washington Post pollsters twice. In the 30-odd years that I have lived in the United States I have never been contacted by the Gallup Poll. Furthermore, I know of no people who have ever been contacted by this farcical Institute.

Cruel Pictures

Many others, I am sure, must have been as appalled as I by the ghoulish pictures of the boys killed in the sand-trap, which appeared in The Washington Post of November 16. In allowing them to be printed, your editors pursued an inconceivably vicious and inhuman course. Pictures such as these, which are horrible to your readers, must be unspeakably cruel to the families of the deceased.

Margarine Tax

The letter by the Rev. Joseph S. Davis of Deep River, Iowa, of November 16, which set forth the reasons why, in his opinion, Midwest farmers voted Democratic is interesting but somewhat unconvincing.

He states, for example, that the farmers believed that a Republican Congress would lower the oleo tax at the first opportunity "and thereby cause a great deal of hardship."

I wonder whether Mr. Davis is aware that repeal of the margarine taxes is a plank in the Democratic platform and whether he knows that the overwhelming majority of Democratic members in the House and Senate voted for repeal at the last session. Furthermore, the Administration, through the testimony of Undersecretary of the Treasury Wiggins, came out flatly for repeal. Surely the farmers knew these facts.

During the campaign, Governor Dewey was quoted as stating that he saw little point in the removal of the tax on margarine.

In the face of the record, I do not see how Mr. Davis draws his conclusions about margarine. To me, it seems that farmers, even the Midwest farmers, are indifferent to the issue, or actually have come to the conclusion that the margarine laws are unfair and un-American—which obviously they are.

Finally, Mr. Davis says Senator Taft, if he had been the Republican nominee, would have had a solid rural vote and would have won easily. Does he know that Senator Taft is on record as favoring repeal of the Federal margarine laws? Senator Taft openly advocated repeal of the margarine laws during his campaign for delegates in Ohio and he won handily over Governor Stassen, who opposed repeal of the margarine taxes.

Fraternity Segregation

As a member of Phi Kappa Psi, I have urged the national executive council promptly to reconsider and revoke its action with respect to the Amherst chapter.

To the best of my knowledge, nothing in the charter or rules of our fraternity bars any man from membership on account of his religion or race. The invitations to membership have been, and are, issued by the local chapters. These local decisions have generally been respected, even though they have given Phi Kappa Psi and other Greek letter fraternities a certain percentage of ne'er-do-wells, along with some superior men and many good, solid citizens. Although I have never seen him and know nothing more about him than has been published in the press, the Negro whom Massachusetts Alpha has pledged and has decided to initiate, even at the cost of suspension by our national fraternity, appears to be an outstanding young man. Perhaps, in service to his country and to civilization he will outdo most of our members. In any event, the desire and judgment of the local chapter should prevail.

I am not unaware of the deep emotions and practical problems surrounding the social mingling of races. They raise many difficulties even for those who acknowledge—as some regrettably do not—that all American citizens are entitled to equal civil rights and to equal educational and economic opportunities. I do not forget that Phi Kappa Psi is a social organization and that it has chapters in all sections of the Nation. The thought of having a Negro "brother" may offend some of our members and embarrass others. In reply, or reassurance, I say that in these times, and those ahead, any white American who cannot meet on the basis of social equality with members of other races is, in that respect, a liability to his country. Certainly, he should not be regarded as a well-educated man, and, least of all, should he be regarded as a desirable member of an organization which is supposed to attract, or produce, good citizens and gentlemen.

The members of the executive council of Phi Kappa Psi are, I prefer to think, less guilty of bigotry than of timidity in the face of old taboos. Nevertheless, the suspension of the Amherst chapter pollutes Phi Kappa Psi and every one of its members with the loathsome taint of Ku-Klux-Klan-ism.

The condemnation, "unfraternal conduct," applied to Massachusetts Alpha, is a grotesque perversion not only of the English language but of all the fine principles for which our fraternity, in common with many others, profess to stand. It should be expunged forthwith. That it will be eventually, I have no doubt, since it convicts not the Amherst chapter but the national membership. By cleansing the record now you can reclaim for Phi Kappa Psi the meritorious distinction of being the first great national college fraternity to extend the hand of fellowship to an outstanding member of the Negro race.

The Mind Of Cathay

A SHORT HISTORY OF CHINESE PHILOSOPHY, by Fung Yu-lan; edited by Derk Bodde. (Macmillan, $5.)

Although the antiquity of the Chinese philosophical tradition has evidently been much exaggerated, it is at any rate as ancient as our own, as we may observe from the fact that the age of Confucius was also the age of Pythagoras, Parmenides, Xenophanes and Heraclitus. Since then, as Professor Fung's book seems to show, Chinese thinkers have expended almost as much cerebration as Western wise men on the great riddles of the universe, which of course are pretty much the same at all times and everywhere. Yet apart from the Confucian classics and the book of Lao-tsu little or nothing of Chinese philosophy is known in the West, save to a few specialists, and it is rarely so much as mentioned in the schoolbooks. Perhaps this deficiency will be remedied by the labors of Dr. Fung, who has a degree from Columbia and another from Princeton, and holds the chair in philosophy at Tsing Hua University in Peiping. The present work, written in English, appears to be a condensation of his much larger work in Chinese, one volume of which has been translated by Professor Bodde. Professor Fung acknowledges many difficulties, the chief of which is language. The Chinese terms have, it seems, no equivalents in English, and thus must be interpreted rather than translated. Another difficulty is the Chinese method of teaching by aphorism rather than by argument.

Professor Fung has an ingenious explanation of the difference between the method of Greek thought—to which, it has been said, the rest of Western philosophy is a mere footnote—and the Chinese habits of reasoning. The Greeks, as a maritime people who lived by commerce, were obliged by the necessities of business to develop an elaborate system of abstract numbers. Thus their reasoning acquired the mathematical character that we call systematic, and this habit of thinking in abstractions, he says, explains why the Greeks were so much vexed by epistemological problems and were obliged to devise extensive terminologies to make sure of what they meant. Again the Greeks, through their wide commerce, were constantly exposed to novel ideas, and innovations of thought held no terrors for them, and thus, as I gather, the Western thought acquired the dynamic quality which has since distinguished it. Finally, the social organization of the Greek polis was of a sort that encouraged argumentation. The Chinese, however, were a continental and agricultural people, and the basis of political organization was the family. Thus the character of their civilization was traditional and hierarchical and more or less static, and the tone of their philosophy didactic. The intimacy with nature led to an exaltation of the natural and sensible, and the language made no distinction between concrete and the abstract. But despite all this the correspondence between various Greeks and Chinese on various fundamental questions, as cited by our professor, are mildly astonishing. There was, for example, Kung-sun Lung, who lived about a hundred years after Plato and produced a very similar theory of universals. There was also a Chinese Heraclitus, Hui Shih, who held that nothing can be the same from one instant to another, and a Neo-Confucianist school of the Sung dynasty which had a doctrine of eternal and unchanging essences of which the soul was said to have innate knowledge. Even the famous dualism of the yang and yin, or male and female principles of in nature, is curiously suggestive of the Aristotelian doctrine of form and matter. But the correspondences are never exact in any given case, and our professor feels obliged to warn us from time to time of the danger of pushing analogies too hard.

The great age of philosophical ferment in China appears to have been in the latter part of the Chou dynasty. The numerous schools flourishing at that time, according to Dr. Fung's theory, had their origin in professional groups. Confucianism, for example, he says, originated among the pedagogues, which accounts for its preoccupation with ethics. The philosophy of yin and yang, and Chinese metaphysics generally, began among the diviners or augurs and represented a conversion of myth into reason and magic into methodical science, as was possibly also the case with the Pythagoreans and their numbers. The long and short yarrow sticks still used by the Chinese philosophers for their symbolic hexagrams to illustrate the properties of odd and even, were, the professor assures us, first adopted to simplify the work of divination. The older method had been to use pieces of tortoise shell or bone which were heated until they cracked. The pattern formed by the cracks disclosed the omen, but the configuration of cracks was often complicated and the danger of error in interpretation evidently considerable. All in all, six rival schools appear to have flourished for some centuries, but in the end the field was left pretty much to the Taoists and the Confucianists, who had by that time, of course, absorbed a great many elements from the others.

At various points in his history Professor Fung makes much of the similarities between our own world and that of Confucius. It has also many similarities to the Greek world after the Peloponnesian War, which is to say to the times of Plato, Aristotle and Zeno. Evidently, ages of strife and confusion are a great stimulus to philosophers and this may or may not explain the sudden interest in metaphysical questions among contemporary Americans.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

After Key West

THE GREAT accomplishment at Key West, it now appears, was to forge a close link between the President and the congressional leaders. The President on holiday took all sorts of good resolutions to rectify one of the great errors of his first Administration, which was failing to keep in touch with the day-to-day conduct of legislative business.

At Key West, he told both Vice President Barkley and Speaker Rayburn that he was determined to enact what his staff calls his "second New Deal." And he promised to work closely with them on this long, complex and arduous task.

If these good resolutions are kept, Key West has answered one of the two big questions about the future of the second Truman Administration. But unless a good many of his Key West companions were utterly misled, the President put off answering the other, even bigger and much more painful question until his holiday was over. His central problem, of staffing the new Administration with men who will command the utmost public confidence, does not appear to have been finally solved as yet.

CERTAIN STEPS have been taken, to be sure. The President evidently concluded during the campaign that if Secretary Marshall had to leave the State Department, Chief Justice Vinson would be the best replacement. This was in his mind, of course, when he conceived the Vinson mission to Stalin. It now seems to be fairly well-established that the Chief Justice was sounded out about leaving the court soon after November 2, and indicated the greatest reluctance to do so. Thus, no doubt, the President's own reluctance to part with Marshall, the man he most admires, was still further increased.

Then, too, there is evidence that the President has already told his two particular cronies in the Cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Attorney General Clark, that he wants them to stay on if they wish to do so. But it is not yet clear whether Snyder and Clark will remain permanently in the Cabinet, or will move on at once to the Bank of America post and the important law partnership they have been respectively considering, or will stay for a while and move on later. The last alternative seems the most likely.

What has happened to date, however, merely makes the President's central problem a bit more thorny. The logic of the election demands that the domestic side of the new Truman Administration be given a much more New Dealish tinge. But this will be far harder to do if the distinctly conservative Snyder and Clark are retained, and are joined by the President's fishing friend, the amiable but entirely second-rate lame duck Governor of Washington, Mon C. Wallgren. Equally, the logic of the election demands that if George C. Marshall, Robert A. Lovett and James V. Forrestal are to resign the management of foreign and defense policy, they must be replaced by men of equal caliber. And this will be immensely hard to do also.

Here the President's problem has been complicated by an extraordinary campaign of rumors directed against Lovett and Forrestal, originating in certain Zionist quarters, and countenanced by some of the less creditable members of the President's own staff. The President has given warm evidence of his distaste for the whole business. His ablest and most important staff member, Clark Clifford, in whose mouth some of these stories have been unscrupulously put, has formally registered his strong indignation. Yet the complication nonetheless remains.

A SECOND COMPLICATION exists in the form of the eager candidacy of Louis Johnson for Forrestal's post at the Defense Department. Johnson has always wanted this job. His claim to it now rests on his service as Democratic money collector during the campaign. His only overt supporter is the President's bumbling military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughn. And while Johnson is an able man, many leading Democrats are deeply fearful of the country's reaction to his appointment.

He is chiefly known for his feud at the old War Department with Secretary of War Woodring, his talents as an American Legion kingmaker, and his large utilities law practice. It is thought that naming a man with his background to the second most important post in the Government, as a frank reward for labor in one of the most sordid areas of the political vineyard, will not be exactly conducive to public confidence. Nonetheless, Johnson's claim will be strong if Forrestal retires.

All these different factors are causing the wiser of the Democratic chieftains now milling about Washington, to wonder whether the President will change his Cabinet so drastically after all. In many respects, his easiest way out will be to keep Marshall, Lovett and Forrestal along with most of the rest of his official family. Perhaps this is wishful thinking by those who regard public confidence as the President's greatest need. But the idea is at any rate as well worth recording as the other theories that are now flying about.

Emergency Action Senate Rule Urged

By The Associated Press

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) proposed yesterday a drastic rule change by which 90 per cent of the Senate could force national emergency legislation to an immediate vote.

Vandenberg, now the Senate's presiding officer, told reporters he is making this suggestion because he fears that under present unlimited debate rules four or five men might hamstring Congress in an hour of national peril by a filibuster.

"In times like these when you can't tell overnight what crisis you are going to meet, I don't think its fair to leave the country at the mercy of a hung jury," the Michigan Senator declared.

He said that, on the other hand, he doesn't favor creating a rule "that can be used capriciously to hamper free and full debate" in the Senate.

For that reason, he suggested that at any time 90 per cent—or possibly even 95 per cent—of those voting desired to act finally on an issue they can be given that power.

Vandenberg made it plain in a prepared statement that he is suggesting the 90-per-cent rule to meet a problem he regards as separate from the civil rights controversy which has plunged the Senate into filibusters in the past.

As a general rule, he said he favors applying present cloture methods—the closing of debate—to any legislative action.

Under present rules, Senate debate can be ended within a limited time on a bill or an amendment when two-thirds of those voting approve the action. But this can't be applied to a motion to take up a bill.

Vandenberg said that because of the loophole allowing unlimited debate on a motion to take up a bill, the existing cloture rule "isn't worth anything."

Open Door

Sabath Plans Pro-Truman Rules Group

By the United Press

Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.) said yesterday he will "insist" on a pro-Truman House Rules Committee in the new Democratic Congress, to guarantee clearance of the President's legislative program.

The 82-year-old House dean, who will take over chairmanship of the committee in January, said he does not believe his group will slam the door on Administration measures the way it did in the Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Congresses.

"I expect to have a majority of members that will be favorable to the President's program," he told the United Press in a telegram from his Chicago home. "I shall endeavor to obtain consideration for any and all (candidates for committee posts) who will be in favor of carrying out our platform and the President's pledges."

The committee, sometimes referred to as "the third house of Congress," decides which bills reported out by other House committees shall go to the floor for a vote, and under what legislative rules they will be considered, such as limitation of debate, bans against amendments, etc.

During the Democratic-controlled Seventy-ninth Congress, a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats on the committee overrode Sabath and forced the pigeonholing of many of Mr. Truman's requests. These included a Fair Employment Practices Commission, mild labor legislation and higher minimum national wages.

The Republican-controlled committee of the Eightieth Congress gave the President's requests short shrift. For example, it killed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill and sidetracked universal (military) training.

24 Policemen Injured By Red Mob in Genoa

Genoa, Italy, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Twenty-four policemen were injured today when a Communist mob hurled stones at police guarding an open-air meeting, officials said.

The meeting was being addressed by Jesuit Father Riccardo Lombardi, an outspoken anti-Communist.

Four demonstrators also were hurt, and 30 were arrested.

U. S. Freighter Sails Minus Seized Cargo

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The United States freighter Flying Trader sailed from Port Said last night for Genoa and home, but 40 cases of tractors and rice seized from it by the Egyptian government remained ashore.

Officials who detained the ship and ordered her cargo removed claimed it was consigned to the Israel government in Tel Aviv.

175 Enrolled In Christian Confraternity

About 175 students of Washington Catholic colleges yesterday were enrolled in the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine in ceremonies at St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Objectives of the confraternity are the religious education of children and youth outside the parochial school system and the offering of instruction on a parish basis to both Catholic and non-Catholic adults. It is an entirely lay organization.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, told the students that the Feast of Christian Doctrine was being observed for the first time in St. Matthew's Cathedral.

The Archbishop cited the statement of the Catholic hierarchy entitled "The Christian in Action" which was released yesterday and said it tells Catholics what they should do to be Christian in actions in the home, education, and economic life.

He urged the students to go forth and teach and by the example of their lives to show what it means to be a Catholic who knows Christian doctrine.

The Rev. Joseph B. Collins, director of the National Center of the Confraternity and a member of the School of Sacred Theology at Catholic University, preached the sermon. He pointed out that the work of teaching is given first place over the administration of the sacraments and over the liturgical life of the church.

Must Teach Children

Father Collins said that 55 per cent of the Catholic children of elementary school age and 80 per cent of those of high school age attend public school. He urged trained teachers, home visitors and helpers to reach these children through the parish unit of the confraternity.

"There is much to be done in the cause of religious education today," he said. "Grave difficulties must be overcome. There is the neglect and indifference of parents, the lack of interest in religion on the part of children and youth when education in general gives it no place in the curriculum.

"There is the pressure and attraction of the world's pleasures, and a relaxation of moral disciplines in the home and outside it, and there is above all a negative attitude, a paralyzing indifference to all religion—against all this must the teachers of religion join in a dynamic, positive offensive," he concluded.

Postlude

Violist Given Enthusiastic Reception

By Richard Keith

Yesterday afternoon at Constitution Hall Norman Lamb, violist, abandoned his customary place as leader of the viola section of the National Symphony to perform the solo part in Berlioz's Byronic symphony, "Harold in Italy." Perhaps because he does not have as yet a great reputation, the audience was a small one, but it received him enthusiastically.

His playing was unostentatious, staying well within the bounds of the part. In solo passages his interpretation showed fine artistry and his tone was warm and often beautifully sensuous.

Berlioz's use of the viola to portray Byron's world-weary hero is a classic example of how perfectly the great French innovator understood the quality of instrumental tone. The viola, even in its brighter registers, always sounds rather sad and restless.

Except for some rough spots and frequent overpowering of the soloist, the orchestra played the first three movements well. At several points, the last movement threatened to turn into a musical orgy rather than the musical description of an orgy which it is supposed to be. It is a difficult movement and probably would have gone much better had some of the precious rehearsal time spent on the totally inconsequential Khachaturian Suite which followed the intermission had been allotted to the Berlioz work.

The program opened with the Christmas Choral, "Wachet Auf," by Bach and closed with excerpts from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

New Instrument Featured

The concert, given last night at the National Gallery by the Gallery Orchestra under the direction of Richard Bales, featured Lucie Bigelow Rosen, who performed on a rather new musical instrument called the theremin.

The tone is produced electronically and sounds, at its best, like an amplified cello being played with only one finger of the left hand. Most of the time it resembles the tone of an amplified musical saw and, at its worst, like an amplified cat suffering great pain.

Two compositions composed expressly for the performer, one by Martinu and one by Berezowsky, were presented. The unusual character of the instrument, first demonstrated in 1920, attracted the attention of the listener to such an extent that it was hard to listen carefully to the music, and one hesitates to evaluate it.

The instrument does blend with orchestra tone though, and if the difficulty of securing accurate pitch can be overcome, it may have some special uses in the music of the future.

Two MPs Beaten By German Mob At Roadhouse

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Two military policemen, Corpl. Charles Cabe, Asheville, N. C., and Pvt. G. S. Duff, Binghamton, N. Y., were beaten unconscious last Sunday by a mob of Germans outside an off-limits roadhouse near Bremen, U. S. Army officials reported last night.

The soldiers were attacked as they entered the roadhouse to check on GIs, the announcement said. Both suffered severe head injuries.

Four leaders of the German mob have been arrested, officials said.

Public Housing Program Seems Assured of Passage

By the United Press

The new Congress' biggest housing fight is expected over the form, not the fact, of public housing.

Administration Democrats are confident of passing a long-range housing program after four years of trying. But Republican housing supporters and some Democrats still don't agree on details.

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) a stanch public housing advocate, yesterday attacked the "outrageous false idea that public housing interferes with private housing construction." He said the argument had been "pounded at length" by the real estate lobby.

To meet the "false argument," he said he would propose "some limitation to keep the public housing program from adding to inflation." He suggested delaying public housing projects in any area until "private building began to diminish."

Meanwhile, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), vice chairman of the Joint Housing Committee of the present Congress, said he would fight again to "admit tenants to public housing on the basis of need." He said present policies "discriminate" against relief clients, "yet their need is the greatest."

Both Flanders and McCarthy are on the Senate Banking Committee which will consider housing bills. Democratic leaders are expected to back a measure being drafted by Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), a co-author of the long-disputed Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill.

Ellender said its public housing and slum clearance provisions will be similar to those of the T-E-W measure. The latter called for 500,000 public housing units over five years and a long-range slum clearance program of Federal grants and loans to local governments.

'Counter-Coalition' In House Suggested

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The novel idea of a "counter-coalition," to hold Southern dissenters in line on Truman New Deal measures, yesterday was suggested by some Northern House Democrats friendly to the Administration.

The suggestion, put forward by Representative Michael J. Kirwan (D., Ohio) and others is that "two can play at the coalition game."

The idea is this:

If Southern members choose to coalesce with Republicans against keystone Administration measures, then Northern and Western Democrats might decide to line up with Republicans against cotton, peanut and other special section legislation vital to the South.

"I don't say that Northern Democrats will do it, or even that it should be done," said Kirwan. "I only say that they have the power to do it. And it would be a weapon more powerful than the other kind of coalition."

Doesn't Believe in Purges

Kirwan, who as chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee called the turn on the election and helped sweep a 263-man Democratic majority back into the House, told newsmen he doesn't believe in "party purges or penalties."

Kirwan said he wouldn't deprive a States Rights Democrat of a single seat or chairmanship due him under the seniority rule. If his advice is followed, he said, there will be no party disciplinary action of any kind.

But he kept getting around to that "counter-coalition" idea.

"You don't have to use it," he said. "It would do more injustice to the South than the other kind of coalition does to other sections. There may never be a need to use it. But it's there. It's a weapon."

Makes Another Forecast

The Youngstown (Ohio) Democrat, who joined Truman in scoffing at polls and predicted last February that a full stomach campaign would win for the Democrats, tried his hand yesterday at another forecast.

It was this: Mr. Truman will get most of what he wants, but Congress, not the Chief Executive, will write the bills.

House Democrats, North, West and South, in order to consolidate their Congressional gains in 1950, will work much more closely as a team than they did in the Seventy-ninth Congress, said Kirwan.

He described the President's program as a "challenge" to Democrats to rise above sectionalism and give the country the program it voted for.

He said these measures ought to be pushed: A new law to replace the Taft-Hartley Act, tax revision, Federal aid to education, increased social security benefits and coverage, extension of reclamation and public power projects, public housing, civil rights, health aids, reciprocal trade extension and aid to Europe.

Wouldn't the domestic measures run into the old, familiar GOP-Southern coalition?

Well, there was always that idea of a counter-coalition.

Will Make Up for Cuts

Kirwan, who will head up the potent House Appropriations Subcommittee on Interior when the Democrats take over, predicted it will make up for the cuts in Western funds voted by the Eightieth Congress.

He suggested the West may be given increased representation on the group as one offset to the West's blackout of committee chairmen under the seniority rule. He said he thought little could or would be done about the seniority rule itself.

Kirwan ran 20,000 votes ahead of Truman in his Nineteenth Ohio District, and led Gov.-elect Frank J. Lausche by 10,000 votes. In addition to calling a Democratic House, he clocked the exact number of House seats his party would pick up in his own State of Ohio—eight.

Use of 'Hill' Office Mailing Address Banned

C. C. McDevitt, publisher of pictorial directories of Congress, has been ordered to stop using Room 151 of the Old House Office Building as a mailing address.

This was announced yesterday by John Andrews, clerk of the House, after it was learned McDevitt had been using the address in soliciting advertising.

McDevitt explained that for the past four or five years he has been permitted to use the room, headquarters for the House Library, in which to store his directories.

McDevitt's practice has been to sell the directories directly to Congressmen, who distribute them in their districts. However, their publication is not a Government project, officials stated.

McDevitt said he gave up the room about a month ago when a question was raised about his using it as a mailing address. He said also he offered two years ago to stop using the room.

Chief difference between his publication in the past and the one planned for next year is that McDevitt expects to enlarge it as an Inauguration edition and has been soliciting advertisements for it. The pictorial directory for the Eightieth Congress did not have advertising.

Andrews said he did not recall the inquiry that led to his ordering that mail not be delivered to McDevitt at Room 151 Old House Office Building. It was learned, however, that at least one advertiser had questioned the solicitation of ads from an address on Capitol Hill.

McDevitt said he has been publishing the pictorial directories for some 28 years. He lives at 140 Randolph pl. nw.

Better Break Asked For the Pharmacist

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The Nation's drugstores are advised today to put more emphasis on training better pharmacists and pay less attention to their "marginal mongrels," liquor, soda fountains and general wares.

The advice is contained in a long-range program report just released by Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president emeritus of Purdue University, who headed a two-and-one-half-year survey on pharmacy problems.

Based on the study covering all phases of the pharmacy profession, Dr. Elliott said his three major recommendations, in order of their importance, are:

1. A more careful and more restrictive selection of students in the Nation's schools of pharmacy.

2. Greater educational training standards of those students enrolled.

3. Attaching of more emphasis in the new curriculum to "the practical aspects of drugstore operations."

The number one objective, Dr. Elliott said, is to provide the Nation with "an adequate supply" of professional pharmacists to man the country's 55,000 retail drugstores and the increasing number of hospital pharmacies. Also taken into account, he said, are increasing demands for pharmacists in the armed forces, other branches of Government, and in drug manufacturing and wholesaling fields.

Survey findings warned against producing an oversupply of trained personnel, "a condition which might deprive some trained men and women of the opportunity for reaping adequate financial rewards and personal satisfactions from the practice of their profession."

The report proposed a "general overhauling" of the present four-year college course of the Nation's 70 colleges of pharmacy. Greater emphasis on the basic pharmaceutical sciences was urged, as well as increased instruction on economic aspects of drugstore operations.

For even higher training, Dr. Elliott urged that adequately equipped and staffed pharmacy colleges institute six-year programs leading to the degree of Doctor of Pharmacy.

Other survey recommendations include: Creation of a commission on pharmaceutical manpower to balance supply against demand for trained pharmacists in peace as well as in national emergency; more effective organization of State boards of pharmacy; modernization of their examination systems for legal licensure.

Also, organization of a national convention for pharmaceutical legislation; more financial support for colleges from commercial and industrial interests; continued raising of standards of teaching staffs; in-serving training of practicing pharmacists, and appointment of a full-time executive officer for the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education, accrediting agency for colleges of pharmacy.

Concerning "marginal mongrels," Dr. Elliott said the survey commission recognized that few pharmacies can exist on prescription counters alone. At the same time, he cautioned, the drugstores have some obligation to the profession to stay within limits of their commercial undertakings.

The survey was begun in June, 1946, financed by the various segments of the profession and the drug industry. Supervision of the survey was entrusted to the American Council on Education, who chose Dr. Elliott. The survey costs totaled $162,000.

Pacifist Proposes Two Methods for 'Disarming World'

Milton Mayer, pacifist writer and lecturer, yesterday proposed refusal to register for Selective Service and nonpayment of taxes as two methods by which "men of great faith" can disarm the world.

Speaking to 150 members of the Washington Pacifist Fellowship in the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw., Mayer said persons who would disarm the world "can't do it by disarming Russia."

"But if we say 'no' to conscription, which never kept anyone out of war, we can disarm the world by one man, and if we withhold taxes, we can disarm the world by a few dollars," he declared.

One-man Theater Is Disappointing

By Richard L. Coe

IN THE SMALL, economical world of the one-performer theater, the ladies always have been conspicuously successful. A hundred years ago that society lady turned actress, Anna Cora Mowatt, turned the trick with neat elan and in our own day such figures as Ruth Draper, Helen Howe and Cornelia Otis Skinner have been able to hold a stage for an entire evening of their miniature dramas with remarkable effect.

Friday night, as part of the Charles Carroll Forum series, Jacques Cartier made what I take to be his first Washington appearance. Mr. Cartier is noted for his position as the leading American male exponent of the unusual art and his reputation drew an overflow crowd to the Mayflower's not very suitable Sapphire room.

Mr. Cartier was a distinct disappointment. Not only is his voice painfully unequal to the task he set himself, he employs only the barest rudiments of acting technique. What is more revealing, in a metier in which the artists habitually write their own material, his "Theater Cavalcade" lacked showmanship. One might excuse his insecurity as a performer had he made the most of a sound idea.

That idea, expressed in his evening's title, "Theater Cavalcade," was to give his audiences a glimpse of drama and its actors through the ages. His program included: a scene from Euripides' "Orestes" in Athens; a visit to Italy's Commedia dell' Arte; a view of Shakespeare during the first performance of "Hamlet;" the Sun King posing for his portrait with Moliere in attendance; the aged Tom Killigrew about to play for Charles II; a sketch of John Wilkes Booth as he determines on Lincoln's death; his brother Edwin dreading his first public appearance a year later and Mei-Lan-Fang's visit to America 20 years ago.

Although a copyright ruling recently killed a plotted scene of the Brothers Barrymore in Mr. Hopkins' "The Jest," the program substantially held promises.

Skilled Makeup

But each episode was over drawn. One expected the curtains to close on every incident sooner than they did. Both the Louis XIV and the Charles II sequences employed the same humor and accent, though they came as succeeding items. The first Booth sequence hardly suggested the actimagined, was overlong and postured.

On the credit side, Mr. Cartier is extremely skilled in his makeup Not only has he gone to rewarding trouble with his costumes, but his facial resemblances to known portraits are fascinating, particularly his Shakespeare and the Brothers Booth. And as a man who began his public career as a dancer, Mr. Cartier is most at ease in pantomime. His Orestes, silent and frenzied, was fine and his care with the Chinese actor masterful. With Mr. Cartier, silence is indeed golden.

But his vocal limitations and his ineptness at purely theatrical dening reputation of the involved conspiratorial insanity of John Wilkes. The second, while cleverly vice—developing a fundamentally sound idea and ending a sequence when it begins to go downhill—defeat him. One has only to think of the sheer writing skill of Miss Draper to miss variety of characterization or to recall the showmanly know-how with which Miss Skinner created such minor pleasures as "The Wives of Henry VIII" and "The Loves of Charles II" to see where Mr. Cartier is unequal to his promising idea.

An Englishman's Technique

While one may be tempted to say that this is primarily a feminine art, I don't think that's the fact of the matter. Last year, at the then receptive National, Maurice Chevalier made a great triumph of songs and witty introductions. And in London a resourceful Englishman, John V. Trevor, has evolved a variation of one-performer theater that should do well in this country where Mr. Cartier appears to shine.

I still think one-performer theater can be engrossing—particularly in a city where a company of midgets playing "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" on our only living theater stage would be a theatrical event of the first magnitude.

THANKSGIVING EVE SPECIAL: "Fighter Squadron," a Warner-Technicolor tribute to the guys in the fast little planes, will have a bang-up Washington opening Wednesday night at the Warner with Air Force chieftains and flight aces in attendance. Robert Stack and James Holden, center and right, have two of the leads in a company which also includes Sheppard Strudwick, Edmond O'Brien, John Rodney and Henry Hull

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, NOV. 21.—Score one for the Redskins' coaches even before the opening kick-off. All week long they've been claiming the Redskins are up for this game and they were never more correct. Here they are, up in Philadelphia.

POVICH

But the Eeagles are also here, perhaps unfortunately for the Redskins, and in no mood to give up their Eastern title. Steve Van Buren just romped 21 yards around right end to emphasize that the Eagles are present.

Tommy Mont learns crime doesn't pay, especially on Sunday against the Eagles. Mont tried to bootleg the ball around right end and was slapped down for a seven-yard loss by Muha, Craft, Wistert, Pihos, Armstrong and Sears.

The Redskins are off to a bad start and are forced to punt from their own 10-yard line, but the 'Skins are playing this game under novel circumstances. It's the first time this season they've performed before a full house, with 37,059 in the park.

6-0, Eagles, and it will be 7-0, just as soon as never-miss Cliff Patton kicks his fifty-third consecutive point after touchdown. Van Buren turned the Redskins' left end on a 5-yard gallop for the scoring play.

With the Redskins trailing late in the first quarter Sammy Baugh is no longer being saved for tomorrow's Touchdown Club luncheon and takes over the quarter-backing. Baugh replaces Mont and one play later, Poillon replaces Baugh because the time has come to punt.

14-0, EAGLES. Coach Greasy Neale sent Vic Armstrong, the Oklahoma end, into the game for one play and struck oil. Before the Redskins could diagnose the play, Armstrong had a 25-yard pitch from Thompson in the end zone.

That was the fifth pass completion by Thompson in his first five attempts, and a sage press box observer comments "that kind of an average will keep him in the league."

21-0, Eagles, and the Redskins can't say they weren't warned. Greasy Neale had Sub Halfback Jack Myers standing by on the sidelines for two minutes blueprinting the scoring play for him on a big white placard before sending him in. The well-coached Myers moved right into the lineup, raced 29 yards outside tackle to a touchdown, and moved right out.

Touchdown, Redskins. There is a Sammy Baugh, and also a Hal Crisler. Baugh floated a beaut 30 yards to Crisler in the end zone where it settled in his arms, a super-drooper.

21-14, an dthe Redskins have another touchdown, and they're back in the ball game nicely. Baugh was never more heroic. Trapped behind the line, he stumbled, got away, and averted a 15-yard loss with a handsome pitch to Crisler, for 79 yards.

VAN BUREN, who has been averaging about eight yards a rush is thrown heavily, and a Redskin rooter among the Washington press announced "his knee is hurt." But it's wishful reporting. Van Buren returns to the Eagles' backfield.

28-14, Eagles. It was a nice piece of craftsmanship on a 4-yard pitch by Thompson. Russ Craft gave defensive halfback Cherverko a bum steer in the end zone and after faking him out of his shoes, grabbed the leather.

Baugh is being rushed on his passes and completes one to an ineligible receiver—Equipment Manager Harry Kelly of the Redskins, who was in the clear in front of the Redskins' bench. It isn't allowed.

35-14 Eagles. Pete Pihos gets into the scoring act on a 19-yard pass from Thompson and takes the ball, Tommy Mont and Hal Sandifer of the Redskin cast the last five yards.

THE REFEREE rules pass interference on Baugh's pitch to Nussbaumer on the Philadelphia 15-yard line. It isn't payday but, Brother, you can hear the Eagles scram at the ruling. In the next four plays the Redskins advance from the Eagles' 15 to the Eagles' 21, and give up the ball.

The 37,059 are still booing the pass-interference decision, claiming the officials are taking everything away from the Eagles except the Negev.

Touchdown, Redskins. Van Buren tries to lateral on the Redskins' seven-yard line and launches a 93-yard run back by Dick Poillon who intercepted the ball in full flight.

42-21, Eagles. Mackrides to Ferrante for 15 yards, into the end zone, with only 25 seconds of the game remaining. The consensus is those Eagles are a lucky club—lucky to have Thompson, Van Buren, Pihos, Pritchard, Wistert and Muha on their payroll.

Rams Give Cards Scrap But Finally Lose, 27-24

By Jerry Liska

Chicago, Nov. 21 (AP).—Fullback Pat Harder scored a touchdown, two field goals, and three extra points as the champion Chicago Cardinals barely shaded the Los Angeles Rams, 27-24, in a National Football League game before 29,031 today.

The Cards needed their season's second decision over the stubborn Rams to keep pace with the Chicago Bears atop the Western Division standings, each with eight wins and one defeat.

Just as in their recent 27-22 win over the Rams in Los Angeles, the Cards had a scrap on their hands all the way at Comiskey Park today.

Los Angeles		Cardinals
11	First downs	19
92	Net yards gained rushing	170
34	Forward passes attempted	25
18	Forward passes completed	13
323	Yards forward passing	210
1	Forwards intercepted by	1
0	Yards gained runback interceptions	21
40.2	Punting average	43
141	Total yards all kicks returned	124
2	Opponents' fumbles recovered	2
30	Yards lost by penalties	20

Each team scored three touchdowns and it turned out that Harder's second field goal, from the Ram 20 in the third period, provided the victory margin.

The Cards, in addition to Harper's 15 points, also counted on Ray Mallouf's 23-yard pass to Mal Kutner in the first period for a 7-0 lead and Charley Trippi's 4-yard smash capping a 79-yard drive in the second period.

Quarterback Bob Waterfield was the big noise in the Ram attack. Sharp-shooting Bob launched two prodigious pass plays of 80 and 58 yards for touchdowns, booted a field goal and converted after all three Ram touchdowns.

After the Cards had halted a Ram threat on their six, the champions rolled nearly the length of the field for a touchdown on Harder's 1-yard plunge early in the fourth period.

That made it 27-17 for the Cards, but the Rams were far from through. Starting on their own 20,

Caps Make It 9 in Row, 80-77

Special to The Post

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The unbeaten Washington Capitols, Eastern Division pacesetters, made it nine straight tonight, 80-77, over the Rochester Royals before a sell-out crowd of 4200.

It was Royals' second loss of the season, both to the Caps, toppling them from the Western Division lead.

The winners led at the end of the first period 21-27; fell behind at the half, 40-38, but regained command late in the third period to hold the advantage, 63-30, going into the final quarter. Although forced to stave off a spirited rally, the Caps never lost the lead again.

Bob Feerick paced the Caps with 19 points, most of them in the clutches.

The game was marred by the officials' tooting, six players leaving the game on personals. In all 74 personal and four technical fouls were called, 34 of the personals were called on the Caps.

Lakers Beat Bullets, 94-81; Mikan Scores 33

Minneapolis, Nov. 21 (AP).—Scoring 17 straight points in a third-quarter flurry, Minneapolis breezed to a 94-81 triumph over Baltimore in a Basketball Association of America game tonight.

George Mikan, the league's leading scorer, tallied 33 points as the Lakers coasted to their fifth victory in nine games before 4,002 fans.

Lions Upset Steelers, 17-14; Dudley Stars

Detroit, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Detroit Lions turned two Pittsburgh fumbles into touchdowns and Merv Pregulman booted a 33-yard field goal today as Detroit nudged the Steelers, 17 to 14, before 16,189 shivering fans in Briggs Stadium.

It was Detroit's second victory in nine National Football League games this season.

Bullet Bill Dudley scored both the Detroit touchdowns, one on a 28-yard run after scooping up Charlie Seabright's fumble and the other on a 19-yard pass from Rookie Fred Enke, after Detroit End Cecil Souders had pounced on Ray Evans' fumble at the Steeler 19-yard line.

Pittsburgh, sticking mostly to a ground attack that churned out consistent short gains, marched 82 yards for one of its touchdowns and 70-yards for the other.

Two fullbacks got the scores on 1-yard plunges, the first by Jerry Shipkey and the other by George Papach.

Detroit lost a 29-yard touchdown pass from Enke to Halfback Joe Marguccl because of clipping.

The Steelers mustered one other sustained march of 66 yards that reached the Detroit 11-yard line, but Jim Gillette intercepted Evans' pass in the end zone to break it up.

Aside from those three marches Pittsburgh was in Detroit territory only once, reaching the Lion 48-yard line in the second quarter.

Chisox Reported Weighing $100,000 Deal for Dillinger

Chicago, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox were reported by a source close to their front office tonight to be considering a $100,000 player deal involving Third Baseman Bob Dillinger of the St. Louis Browns.

In preliminary talks, the Browns are said to have asked $100,000 and three Sox players for Dillinger, who batter .321 last season and topped the American League in base stealing.

The only White Sox player the Browns are reported to have labelled acceptbale thus far is Outfielder Dave Philley.

If the deal is completed it would be the biggest White Sox transaction since the late Lou Comiskey bought Al Simmons, Jim Dykes and Mule Haas from the Philadelphia Athletics for $150,000 in 1932.

A New Twist; Fans Carry Beaten Coach Like Hero

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (AP).—Here's one to ease a football coach's ulcers.

After UCLA went down to a scrappy 20-13 defeat before Southern California yesterday, Bruin backers waited outside the losers' dressing room for Coach Bert La Brucherie.

Bert, who has heard the call of wolves in a seven-game losing season, was slow in coming out.

But when he did, the rooters swarmed over him and carried him away on their shoulders, chanting:

Year's Coach? Bo's Our Man

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Now that they've come up with the two-team system in football, we suggest that the same system be used to select the coach of the year.

Benny Oosterbaan, who directed the Michigan powerhouse to an unbeaten campaign, would represent the "have" coaches—those mentors who inherit a wealth of material and deploy it successfully.

Little "Bo" Rowland of George Washington is easily the choice of the "have nots"—the coaches who start out with practically nothing and wind up hitting the jackpot, comparatively speaking.

Bo took one ace—Andy Davis—a few discards and came up with the football flush of the year, four victories out of a ten-card deck which was supposed to contain only one triumph, over the Citadel, Leah, Bo. You're our man.

What happened to Maryland Saturday against Vanderbilt? Well, it didn't happen day before yesterday. It happened November 13 at Griffith Stadium against North Carolina.

The Terps simply left all their football in the Tar Heel debacle. That was the one they wanted, the game they'd been aiming at for a year. They made every mistake in the book, giving the Tar Heels five of their seven touchdowns. They haven't recovered from it yet.

And if they don't snap out of it by Saturday they'll find coming around West Virginia's Mountaineers, an obstacle tougher than it sounds.

IN SHORT—Rog Antaya, GW end coach, didn't score against the Hoyas Saturday, but he couldn't have been happier if he did because his boy, End Bill Szanyi did. Antaya, one-time Dartmouth guard, had been coaching Szanyi on blocking punts all week and when Bill

Giants Hand Packers Worst Defeat, 49-3

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 21 (AP).—The New York Giants passed and ran Green Bay silly today, winning 49-3 for the worst defeat in Packer history. A slim crowd of 12,639 saw the National Football League game at State Fair Park.

Young Charley Conerly gave the Packers a passing lesson for three quarters, hurling a slippery ball for three touchdowns.

And in the final period Freshman Ray Coates ran the tackles crazy for two more. A pass interception by Emlen Tunnell and a short buck by Conerly netted the other touchdowns and Len Younce kicked all seven extra points.

Green Bay Scores First

Green Bay scored first on a 24-yard field goal by Ted Frisch with six minutes of the opening quarter gone, but that was all.

Here's the way the Giants scored:

Second quarter—9-yard pass, Conerly to Gene Roberts; 42-yard run with an intercepted pass by Tunnell, and a 3-yard pass, Conerly to Bruce Gehrke.

Third quarter—31-yard pass, Conerly to Bill Swiacki, and 1-yard plunge by Conerly.

Fourth quarter—2-yard smash by Coates and a 3-yard crack through center by Coates.

Conerly's passing chart showed 20 completions in 29 attempts and it had been raining steadily here for almost two days until this morning and the ball was wet. Paul Governali took over in the final quarter, when it was almost too dark to pass, and completed four of six. The combined yardage was 334.

Dejected Lambeau Would Like to Unload 10 or More

Milwaukee, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Green Bay Packers tonight asked waivers on a third-year end, and Coach E. L. (Curly) Lambeau said he'd "like to get rid of 10 or 12 more."

"We were disgraceful out there today," Lambeau said in an interview in his hotel suite. "I'd like to get rid of 10 or 12 more squad members, but there are too many cripples and we couldn't get along.

"We have two more games to play and I don't want to look any worse than I have to. It's a case now of picking up what pieces there are left."

The Packers suffered the worst loss in the 30 years they've been organized under Lambeau today, a 49-3 lacing by the New York Giants. The club now has lost seven of 10 league games, the poorest record a Green Bay team ever has made, and has games remaining against Los Angeles and the Chicago Cardinals.

Lambeau said he was notifying National Football League headquarters that waivers are being asked on Ted Cremer, an end from Auburn the Packers acquired from the Detroit Lions in midseason.

Touchdowners Fete Griffith

Clark C. Griffith, Washington Baseball Club president, will celebrate his seventy-ninth birthday for the second time within a span of three days today at the Touchdown Club's 12:30 luncheon.

Maj. Gen. Russell Reynolds, director special services, United States Army, will be the main speaker. Representation from the six-day bicycle races scheduled for the National Guard Armory November 28-December 4 also will attend.

Thompson Tosses 3 Touchdowns, Baugh 2; Poillon Runs 93 Yards

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—That sound of a wet washrag hitting the floor was the Washington Redskins' championship hopes as they absorbed a 42-21 beating by the Philadelphia Eagles here today.

Before a sellout crowd of 36,254, plus 805 "guests," and including some 2000 Washingtonians, the Redskins dropped 1½ games behind the Eagles in the race for Eastern Division honors in the National Football League. Thus the Eagles must lose two of their remaining three games, while the 'Skins win all of theirs to take the title.

The Redskins didn't play a bad game. As a matter of fact, after losing by 45-0 in an earlier meeting with the Eagles, the Redskins can be credited with some improvement.

Washington's trouble was that its opponents played a brilliant game. Behind the running-passing combination of Steve Van Buren and Tommy Thompson, the Eagles romped into a first-period lead and held it all the way.

Van Buren averaged almost 6 yards a try on his ball carrying, with 29 attempts and 171 yards. He came within just a little ground of breaking the all-time record for rushing.

Washington		Philadelphia
6	First downs	22
44	Yards gained rushing (net)	376
25	Forward passes attempted	18
11	Forward passes completed	13
210	Yards gained forward passing	199
2	Forwards intercepted by	2
24	Yards interceptions returned	35
43.4	Punting average	48.3
168	Total yards all kicks returned	193
1	Opponents' fumbles recovered	0
23	Yards lost by penalties	101

Thompson turned in 12 completed passes in 17 throws, amassing 184 yards and three of the winning touchdowns. The effort gave him a total of 18 scoring passes this season and a completion average of 59.5.

Cliff Patton, the Eagles' placement artist, furnished just incidental annoyance for the 'Skins with six straight extra points, giving him a record of 40 straight this season and 58 over the past two years.

Washington, as usual, depending too heavily on Sammy Baugh, finally was disappointed. Baugh hurled two touchdown passes, and made good on 11 out of 25 tosses, but it was far from enough.

The Skins' only claim to fame was that they came from three touchdowns behind to trail by only one, Dan Sandifer set a league record for pass interceptions with his twelfth, and that they weren't beaten any worse.

As it was, the Tribe needed a pair of lengthy passes, for 30 and 79 yards and both from Baugh to Hal Crisler, plus Dick Poillon's last-period touchdown run of 93 yards to keep its head above water at all.

Washington looked like a new team as it came out for the second half, after a rally that brought it from three touchdowns behind to that the score was going to be tied when, on the Eagles' first offensive after intermission, George Cheverko intercepted a Thompson pass for Washington on the Eagle 36.

But on the next play it was turnabout, Van Buren intercepting Baugh's aerial on his own 25. It was all the urging Philadelphia needed to boost its lead. After 50 yards of running, Thompson slanted a shot to Craft over Cheverko's head and the 'Skins rally had its back broken.

Poillon Intercepts, Scores

Midway of the third quarter McHugh ran Poillon's kick back to the Redskin 34 and the stage was set for the count to soar to 35-14. After five plays, Thompson pitched again and Pete Pihos did the receiving for a 20-yard touchdown. The former Indiana ace had to drag Sandifer and Tommy Mont the last 5 yards across the goal.

The final quarter was a nightmare of Eagle threats, one of which backfired. Another was good for the final 6-pointer.

Philadelphia had been stopped at the Redskin 5, but came back and Van Buren was trying for the last 12 yards when he decided to lateral. Poillon was in the way, and after the season's longest runback of a fumble—93 yards—along with a crucial block by Cheverko, Dick found his way into the end zone.

Only 25 seconds were left when Substitute Quarterback Bill Mackrides did the polishing off job. It was on the end of a 70-yard advance, mostly along the ground, that Mackrides flipped a 15-yarder

Bears Play Around With Yanks, 51 to 17

By Bill King

Boston, Nov. 21 (AP).—Flashy Frank Minini scored thrice and Sid Luckman tossed a pair of touchdown passes as the power-packed Chicago Bears romped to a 51-17 victory over the Boston Yanks today before an 18,048 crowd, largest of the local National Football League season, at Fenway Park.

Minini's first trip into the Yanks' end zone was made on a 36-yard sprint after recovering Frankie Seno's fumble. He scored the second time on a one-yard end sweep and then caught a 10-yard Luckman scoring pass.

That veteran Chicago quarterback, who completed nine of his 21 aerial attempts for 69 yards, also hit Jim Keane with a six-yard throw from the five-yard line.

Bobby Layne, who appeared more eager to run than pass, opened the Bears scoring early in the first period with a 17-yard touchdown overhead to Noah Mullins and ended it in the semidarkness of the last three minutes with a 5-yard touchdown romp.

The other Chicago touchdown was a terrific 27-yard burst that mighty Mike Holovak made through

League Races at a Glance

Here's a quick run-down of the conference races:

BIG NINE—Michigan the winner with 6-0. Northwestern 5-1 and Minnesota 5-2.

PACIFIC COAST—Oregon 7-0 and California 6-0, cochampions.

BIG SEVEN—Oklahoma 5-0, the champ. Kansas and Missouri tied for second at 4-1 each. The runners-up meet Thursday.

IVY—Penn and Cornell tied at 3-0 each. They meet Thursday at Philadelphia.

SOUTHEASTERN—Georgia (5-0), Mississippi 5-1, Tulane 4-1, and Georgia Tech 4-2. Georgia plays Georgia Tech, Tulane meets LSU, and Mississippi opposes Mississippi State all in Saturday windups.

SOUTHERN—Clemson 4-0, North Carolina 4-0-1, William & Mary 5-1-1, and V. M. I. 4-1-1. Clemson meets Auburn in nontitle game Saturday and winds up conference slate December 4 vs. The Citadel. A victory over Citadel clinches for Clemson. Virginia Military plays at Virginia Tech Saturday. North Carolina finishes its season with nontitle scrap with Virginia Saturday. William & Mary takes on Arkansas in another out-of-conference game Saturday.

MISSOURI VALLEY—Oklahoma A. & M. 3-0, the champ.

SOUTHWEST—Southern Methodist 5-0. Texas 4-1. SMU, already assured of tie, tackles Texas Christian Saturday while Texas faces Texas A. & M. Thursday.

BIG SIX—Utah 4-0, Colorado A. & M. 4-1. Colorado A. M. finished league season. Utah finishes against Utah State Thursday.

Coast Rose Bowl Mystery Will Be Solved Today

By Murray Rose

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The mystery of which teams will play in what bowls was still far from solution today.

The deepest mystery was over the Rose Bowl nominees. Northwestern (7-2), safely past Illinois by 20-7, seemed "in" for the Big Nine chore. The Wildcats finished second to Michigan's mighty champions, who wound up another all-conquering season by downing Ohio State, 13-3. Under the Big Nine-Pacific Coast conference pact, Michigan (9-0) is ineligible to go to Pasadena again this year.

Who would face Northwestern had the boys in a dither.

The decision between all-winning California (10-0) and once-beaten Oregon (9-1) likely will be decided tomorrow. Oregon, tripped only by Michigan in a non-Conference clash, holds a 7-0 league record compard to 6-0 for California. California barely squeezed by Stanford, 7-6, while Oregon downed Oregon State, 10-0.

Besides Michigan and California, only three other powers still boast perfect marks—Notre Dame (8), Army (8), and Clemson (8). North Carolina (8-0-1) has only one tie to blemish its books.

Here's the way the other major bowls shape up to date:

Sugar, New Orleans—wide open with Georgia (8-1), North Carolina, Oklahoma (8-1), Tulane (8-1), Mississippi (7-1), and Clemson the likely prospects.

Delta, Memphis—William and Mary (5-2-2) vs. probably Utah (7-1-1) and one of teams mentioned for other big bowls.

Dixie, Birmingham—Wake Forest (5-3) vs. many possible prospects.

Sun, El Paso—Texas Mines vs. Lafayette, West Virginia or several others.

Other teams that could figure in the bowl battles include Penn State, Missouri, Georgia Tech, Oklahoma A. & M., Villanova, Vanderbilt, Pittsburgh, Santa Clara and Texas.

Several of the Bowl spots and a number of conference championships will be decided Thanksgiving Day and next Saturday.

While Michigan copped the Big nine penant again Saturday, Oklahoma won the big seven title by humbling Kansas, 60-7, SMU clinched at least a tie for the Southwest by conquering Baylor, 13-6, and Oregon and California deadlocked for the PCC flag with 1.000 percentages. Oklahoma A&M is the Missouri Valley champ, and Clemson, with only weak Citadel in the way, appears to have the Southern Conference race all wrapped up.

Still to be decided are the Southeastern Conference, where Georgia lgads 5-0, the Big Six where Utah is in front, 4-0, and the Ivy where Cornell and Penn are tied with 3-0 each. Georgia needs a victory over Georgia Tech Saturday and Utah the edge over Utah State Thursday. Penn and Cornell battle it out Thursday in Philadelphia.

Picou After 3 Handicap Victories

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

It's about time they were running a Clarence Picou Handicap at Bowie. The 17-year-old kid with the rosy cheeks is sitting pretty on top of the jockey heap at the Prince Georges County track. He is the best bet of the season, according to his legion of backers.

Well, they haven't named a race for him as yet. However, he will have plenty of chance to show his saddle wares during the final week of racing at the "oval in the pines."

Three big money events remain on the agenda at Bowie. As you know, young Picou is doing his No. 1 riding for the Brookmeade Stable and that outfit is heavily represented in each of the trio of remaining handicaps.

The line-up for the last week of major racing in these parts—it's on to Charles Town a week from today—is as follows:

Wednesday—$10,000 added W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap at 6 furlongs.

Thursday—$10,000 added Endurance Handicap at 1 mile and 70 yards.

Picou Handicap Crazy

Picou won the $10,000 Prince Georges Autumn Handicap last Saturday with Brookmeade's Inseparable, and if you don't believe he has his eyes on the total of $40,000 in stakes this week you're nuts.

Under loan to Trainer Preston Burch, Picou must ride for the Brookmeade outfit. Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's trainer has plenty of strength in the three top events.

For the Burch on Wednesday he will shoot with Inseparable, Dart By, Gnu or Sunny Vale. He has three nominations for the Endurance, a test for 2-year-olds. They are: Gnu, Black Chiffon and Floating. On closing day he can send four horses after the Bryan and O'Hara. They are Inseparable, Chains, Dart By and Splash.

Of course Picou will not confine his riding to Brookmeade in other races. He has picked up a wad of dough on outside mounts during the meeting and his handlers are watching every opportunity to put him on "alive" horses.

Others Have Chance

Other owners and trainers are not giving the three handicaps to Brookmeade, despite Picou's ability. For instance, in the Burch the Sloane horses will meet such opposition as Christiania Stables' Alexis, Miss Margie Fisher's Shivaree, Dion Kerr, jr.'s, Flying Weather, Main Chance Farm's Royal Blood, Shamrock's Stables' Air Patrol and Little Harps, as well as others.

In the Bryan and O'Hara, the Brookmeade hopes must face an array of distance horses. The line-up is likely to include: Richard E. Carter's Oriole, Christiania Stables' Alexis and Service Pilot; John H. Hammond's Butler, winner of two handicaps at Bowie in as many years; George M. Jacobson's Big Dial; H. L. Straus' Pilaster and some half dozen others.

It's a big week at Bowie.

Ga. Tech Guard Gets Car Despite No Touchdown

Atlanta, Nov. 21 (AP).—Hays McKinney, Tubby Georgia Tech guard, who wanted a new automobile bad enough to break his leg, is feeling much better today.

McKinney has received a telegram from an Atlanta auto dealer promising delivery of a new car as soon as he gets out of the hospital.

The dealer earlier this year told McKinney that delivery (he'll still have to pay for the car) waited only for the Gadsden, Ala., guard to score a Tech touchdown. Yesterday McKinney broke his right ankle in the Citadel game on an attempt to score—but didn't score.

After X-rays showed the ankle snapped, the dealer wired, "I am among 20,000 friends who felt very badly about your unfortunate injury. Will have your car ready for you as soon as you are able to drive it."

Sugar Radio Bows In Baltimore, 31

Sugar Radio, undefeated leader of the Washington and Suburban Soccer League, was eliminated in the first round of the Stewart Maryland Amateur Cup matches yesterday by virtue of a 3-1 loss to Locust Point in Latrobe Park, Baltimore.

Maryland Sports Club was the only local club to win yetserday, defeating Washington Friends Club, 4-1. The Hancock Club of Washington County sidetracked Marlboro, 3-1. Charles County and Martin's Bakery, also of the Washingon League, drew first-round byes.

Northeast Wins 160-lb. Title, 13-12

Car Credit and Northeast Body Works became the champions of the Metropolitan Amateur Football League yesterday in a doubleheader played before 2000 fans at Griffith Stadium.

For Car Credit, eastern division leaders, it was the second title in a row in the league's unlimited class. Their 25-6 victory over the Anacostia Eagles was the thirty-third straight game they've won and marked the first game this year in which they've been scored upon.

Northeast Body Works, eastern division pacesetters in the 160-pound class which had been beaten earlier this year by Brookland-Woodbridge Merchants, outplayed its favored western division opponent yesterday and eked out a one-point, 13-12 win.

Baumgartner Stars

Jack Baumgartner, a 20-year-old all-Prep quarterback from Devitt, was the big man in the Car Credit triumph.

Baumgartner swept right end for a three-yard touchdown jaunt in the first period and bulled across from the two in the second quarter after setting up the score with a 45-yard pass to Ernie Bertolini.

Baumgartner passed eight yards to Emmet Howard in the next quarter for another touchdown.

Kidwell Scores Twice

Adrian Kidwell, who used to play with Holy Comforter, scored both of Northeast's touchdowns on two 3-yard plunges in the first and third periods. Les Bradshaw kicked the game-winning extra point.

Brookland scored shortly after Northeast's first touchdown when Bob Beck, former all-Prep from Devitt, took a pass from Sonny White, and raced 65 yards to the Northeast goal line. Mike Logan's kick was no good.

The Merchants came close to tying the score in the final quarter when White went over from the Northeast 4, making the score 13-12 but his attempted pass to Jackie Calaghan for the extra point went astray.

First 1000 Ladies Get Orchids at Uline's Tonight

Orchids, those exotic importations from languid Hawaii, will be given free to the first 1000 ladies who pass through the portals of Uline Arena tonight.

They'll be offered with the best wishes of Arnold Skaaland, the latest mangler to turn esthete. The Swedish flower boy will follow his offering with another esthetic exhibition, a 30-minute grapple with Joe Ludlum.

The program becomes more commonplace after that, with an Australian tag team match featuring George Lenihan and George Sikorski against Rocco Columbo and Steve Gob. Added attractions are Wally Dusek against Tarzan Frank Hewitt and Red Kirkpatrick against Olaf Erickson.

PASS BOOMERANGS—George Witmer (left) of Anacostia Eagles, completes a pass, but it's to Tony Auriti, of Car Credit in the second quarter of yesterday's Metro League title game. Witmer's pass was intended for Frank Burbach (right), but Auriti intercepted it on his own 30-yard line. Car Credit won the ball game, 25-6, an dthe Metro unlimited class title. In the other championship game, Northeast Body Works nosed out Brookland-Woodridge Merchants, 13-12, for the 160-pound crown

Shore League Adds 2

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Eastern Shore baseball league will function next year, but it will have to change its name. Chambersburg, Pa., and Frederick, Md., were granted franchises in the class D circuit at a meeting here today. The board of directors will reconvene in Rehoboth, Del., next month to discuss the new name.

Eagles Dampen Skins' Title Hopes, 42 to 21

Van Buren Goes Over

Changing the script slightly from its first meeting with the 'Skins, Philadelphia waited until the second time it got the ball to score as the game started. A pair of inconsequential gains moved the Eagles 7 yards across the midfield stripe and a 37-yard Thompson-to-Muha toss went to the Redskin 6, where Crisler saved the day momentarily with a hard tackle.

On the first try from that point Van Buren skidded around right end, neatly ducked the clutching hands of Hartley at the 10 and went over easily.

Six minutes later, still in the first period, the score was 14-0, favoring the hosts. On their third offensive effort, after Pritchard had been nailed by Freddy Boensch on his own 31, the Eagles marched 69 yards for a touchdown.

Van Buren was picking up small yardage, but in the intervals Thompson was pitching to a pair of first downs on slants of 7 and 26 yards to Pritchard.

At the end, with the Eagles on Washington's 25, Thompson went back to pass, ran into one of his own men but steadied and hurled to Armstrong on the 5. It was George Cheverko's man, but Cheverko was nowhere about and Armstrong went over untouched.

Myers Romps 29 Yards

Baugh tossed a couple of first-down passes as the initial period ended, but the second frame was barely started when the Eagles started marching again from their own 28.

It was 21-0 when they finished that time. This time running plays were all they needed, Van Buren, Craft and Pritchard romping to the Redskin 29, where Myers took over.

The former UCLA star hit the left and weak side of his line. Hartley had a chance to get him at the line of scrimmage. Sandifer had a chance on the five. Neither did. Patton followed up with his third straight conversion.

Something happened to the 'Skins about then. At least they took Muha's next kickoff and got real serious about making some points. Eddie Saenz carrying the ball for Washington the first time this season after breaking his ankle in training, went 21 yards with the kickoff and the 'Skins traveled 72 yards for a touchdown.

Crisler Scores on Baugh Pass

Baugh passed once to Sandifer for 11 yards, again to Todd for 10. Sandwiched in was Poillon's 14-yard sprint through center, and a couple of small gains by Quirk. There were 30 yards left to go when Baugh faded, waited patiently, saw Crisler's wave from the goal line, and finally heaved. Nobody was near Crisler as he gathered in the ball and chalked up six points.

Washington got back in the ball game, only one touchdown behind at 21-14, immediately after Muha's quick kick carried 68 yards into the end zone. Two Redskin plays good for 1 yard. On the third, Baugh was back of his own 21 when he tried to pass and was trapped.

Sammy was tackled and almost flat, but he came up and got the ball away. He hurled with everything in his lanky frame and Crisler was waiting at midfield. When long, galloping Hal was through running the 'Skins had a touchdown on a 79-yard pass play. They felt much better about going to the dressing room with a mere 21-14 deficit.

Outstanding sports leaders, and enthusiasts of the Alexandria, Northern Virginia and Washington areas will attend the grand opening of the new Alexandria Arena, Montgomery and St. Asaph sts., tomorrow night.

An all-star program of roller skating competitions, and exhibitions will be featured between 7:30 o'clock and midnight.

Central Seeks Interhigh Loop Title Today

Three interhigh games postponed by last Friday's rain will be played today on local high school gridirons.

Major interest will be focused on Central Stadium, where the undefeated Vikings can clinch the interhigh championship by getting past Western.

Western, pointing for the game as the one that can make up entirely for three earlier losses, hopes to snarl the title picture with a victory. A Western victory would force Central into a playoff game with whomever finishes up in second place.

Anacostia and Eastern are tied for second place. McKinley Tech could join them with a win over Coolidge this afternoon at Tech field. Roosevelt plays at Wilson in the third interhigh game today. All three start at 3:15.

they moved relentlessly on Jim Hardy's passing and struck for their third touchdown on Hardy's 16-yard flip to end Tom Fears, who scored twice.

Waterfield Effective

Los Angeles piled up a whopping 323 yards passing, much of it coming on Waterfield's two lengthy tosses.

The first came with the Rams trailing, 10-0 in the second period. Waterfield fired from his own 20 to Fears on Chicago's 40, and the Ram end scooted the rest of the way to pay-dirt.

Then, after the Cards moved in front, 17-7, still in the second period, Waterfield booted his field goal and a moment later fired a scoring pass to Don Currivan, covering 58 yards.

That knotted the count, 17-17, at half-time, but Harder's 10-point performance in the second half made the final difference.

The Bears also were highly impressive in the kicking department. Allen Lawler contributed a 23-yard placement field goal and Johnny Lujack converted six of his seven extra point tries.

The Yanks, out-first downed 24-9 and out-rushed 290 yards to 150, came up with two touchdown passes thrown by Gene Malinowski. One was a beautiful 68-yard toss to Seno and the other a 5-yarder to Winger Bill Chipley in the first and last quarters.

Nick Scollard booted two extra points in addition to a 30-yard placement field goal in the second session after the Yanks held the Bears for downs on the latter's 24-yard line.

Browns Roll Over Yankees By 34 to 21

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Cleveland's Browns used their pet weapons, Otto Graham and Marion Motley, today to whip the New York Yankees, 34 to 21, and keep secure their grasp on the top rung in the western division of the All-America Football Conference.

It was the eleventh consecutive victory this season for the Browns.

First Graham, the Dead-Eye-Dick passer, would spread the Yankee defense with aerials. Then Motley, a rip-snorting 235-pound fullback, would barrel through with the grace of a 10-ton truck.

The twin Cleveland annihilators combined on their first touchdown, which came before many of the 52,518 spectators had settled in their seats.

Graham passed behind the line to Motley, who rambled 78 yards to score. Four minutes later Ara Parseghian swiped a New York pass and sprinted 68 yards to the New York club's 3 before he was thrown. Three plays and Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones was over for the second market.

New York got its first two markers almost as quickly in the second period, during which Lou Groza also kicked two field goals for the winners. The first Yankee tally was on a 29-yard flip from Pete Layden to Bruce Alford and the second came on the 40-yard runback of an intercepted pass by Otto Schnellbacher.

A 67-yard drive, during which Motley went 21 yards once and then romped the final 12, gave Cleveland its third-period tally, while New York closed the scoring with one in the fourth that Bob Kennedy blasted over from the 1.

Colts Lose on Last-Minute Field Goal, 17-14

Agajanian's 17-Yd. Kick Decides It

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—Toeless Ben Agajanian kicked a field goal from the 17-yard line with 35 seconds to play to snatch a 17-14 victory today for the Los Angeles Dons over the Baltimore Colts before 25,228 fans in Babe Ruth Stadium.

The loss jolted Baltimore's chances for the Eastern Division title of the All-American Football Conference. Idle Buffalo went into a half-game lead while Baltimore and New York were being beaten to tie for second place.

Lu Gambino's fumble, one of several which helped spell defeat for the Colts, set up the winning field goal, the fourth of the game tried by Agajanian. The Colt fullback dropped the ball on his own 6 and Halfback Bill Reinhard of the Dons fell on it.

Dobbs-Tittle Duel

Two of Glenn Dobbs' passes were incomplete and another caught by Herman Wedemeyer resulted in a 3-yard loss. Agajanian who previously missed field goal attempts from the 37 and 45-yard lines and had one blocked, came in to decide the game with a perfect boot.

The touchdown, scoring was largely a personal duel between Dobbs and Y. A. Tittle, the conference's leading offensive players. Both of the Dons' touchdowns were on passes by their thriple-threat while Tittle's tosses accounted directly for one score and paved the way for the other.

Baltimore struck in the first quarter when Tittle lobbed a screen pass to Billy Hillenbrand who ran 58 yards to the opposite 31. Two plays later Stormy Pfohl sprinted 25 yards to tally, Rex Grossman converted the first of two extra points.

Los Angeles, stymied offensively for the first quarter, jumped on two scoring opportunities in the second quarter for a 14-7 half-time lead.

Clay Romps 32 Yards

After Right Guard Knox Ramsey fell on Grossman's blocked field goal try from the 35, the Dons went 50 yards in four plays. Dobbs flipped a short pass to Fullback Walter Clay, who lumbered 32 yards to tally.

A few minutes later the Dons were in position again when the ubiquitious Ramsey fell on Tittle's fumble on the Colts' 28 and lateraled to Bob Reinhard, who advanced it to the 19. Dobbs hit Joe Aguirre over the goal with a four-yard pass.

Baltimore tied the score with less than a minute to play in the third quarter, going 80 yards after Agajanian's second field goal attempt was wide. The scoring play covered 46 yards. Tittle tossed to Lamar Davis on the Dons' 30 and the end sidestepped his only would-be tackler on the 10.

Lindsay Stott Wins Santini Bowling With 874

Lindsay Stott, a Caruso duckpinner, won the Tony Santini Open over the weekend at the Greenway Bowling Alleys, setting a new event record with 874 pins for six games.

Stott knocked down 200 in his first game, the highest game score recorded here this season. Stott left only one box in the game unmarked, rolling four strikes and five spares. His other game scores were 152, 130, 119, 116 and 157.

The other winners were Lee Seim of Baltimore, 816; Marvin Wolf of Washington, 783; John Ressa of Washington, 778; Billy Stalcup of Washington, 775; Leonard Zerhusen of Baltimore, 772, and Mel Pitts of Baltimore, 771.

Lafayette Invited

Easton, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP).—Lafayette College's football team has been invited to play in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., January 1.

Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison, Lafayette president, said last night no decision on the invitation had been reached.

Albert Leads 49ers, 63-40, Over Dodgers

By Joe Reichler

Brooklyn, Nov. 21 (AP).—Frankie Albert, San Francisco's brilliant T-formation quarterback, scored two touchdowns and passed for four others to lead the Forty-Niners to a 63-40 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today as the two All-America Conference teams set a professional football scoring record.

The victory, witnessed by 9,336 Ebbets Field fans, left the Forty-Niners with a chance to catch the Cleveland Browns for the Western Division title. The 49ers meet the Browns next Sunday and need a victory to tie them for first place.

Records fell by the wayside like so many duckpins as the two teams piled up 103 points to better the previous conference high of 80 set by Cleveland and the Dodgers December 8, 1946. The National League mark of 98 was established by the Chicago Cardinals and New York Giants earlier this season.

Score in Every Period

Not a period went by without each eleven getting at least one touchdown. The Forty-Niners collected at least two in each period. Albert, who completed 16 of 23 passes, good for 219 yards, plunged over from the four-yard line in the opening minutes of the first period for the first score. He threw a 10-yard pass to John Strzykalski for the second minutes later.

The southpaw passer went over from the 1 on a quarterback sneak and threw a 15-yarder to End Alyn Beals for another TD in the second quarter. Alberts flipped two more TD passes to Beals in the third period, one from the 6 and the other from the 4.

Joe Perry, Norm Standlee and Forrest Hall accounted for the other San Francisco touchdowns. Perry ran a Dodger kickoff back 87 yards for a score, Standlee raced around his left end from the 3, and Hall broke through the scrimmage line for a 63-yard payoff romp.

Chappuis Tosses 3 Scores

Bob Chappuis, who passed for three touchdowns, completed 11 of 19 heaves for 313 yards. One was a spectacular 81-yard aerial to Mickey Colmer. Another was a 37-yard toss to the same Colmer, who capped off a great offensive exhibition by ramming over from the 1 for his third touchdown of the day and tenth of the season. Chappuis also threw a TD pass to Ray Ramsey. This one covered 50 yards.

Cooper Fights Le Brun At Turner's Tonight

Jimmy Cooper's third revenge brawl in the past year sends the local bantamweight against Leo LeBrun tonight in a scheduled 10-rounder at Turner's Arena.

The wiry little windmill has come back twice since last summer to flatten fighters who made him look bad in earlier bouts. First he redeemed a decision he lost to Joe Kay and later conquered Puggy King after an earlier draw.

LeBrun, from French Canada, was the latest to dent Cooper's reputation, and is considered the toughest of the three in Jimmy's comeback string.

The eight rounds distance of their last battle was considered an advantage to LeBrun's age. Tonight's affair, two rounds longer, gives Cooper a little more time to wear the veteran down.

Cooper will just about have to pull the trick of beating a former conqueror again if he's to keep his stock solid with Washington fans. Another loss to LeBrun will cut his stature down locally.

Three five-rounders and a pair of fours support the Cooper-Le Brun battle. The fives match: Holly Mims against Johnny Holt, Washington middleweights; Burt Wicks against Red Gaddis, local featherweights, and Walter Rowan, Richmond, against Leslie Harris, Baltimore, lightweights. In four-rounders, Jimmy Green meets Rocky Barber and Bobby Suma faces Puggy Lyons. The show starts at 8:45 p. m.

It Was Fun At Horse Show Season Finale

Yesterday's final outdoor event of the season sponsored by the Washington Bridle Trails Association, the ninth annual Gymkhana—games on horseback, to the uninitiated—was a thoroughly enjoyable affair as show horses and riding school mounts met on an equal footing.

Lee Stanly Jones, well-known Washington horseman, took the leader's part on Mr. and Robert Watson's Goldacious in the "Follow My Leader" event. Twenty entries started and Mr. Jones found that he was hard put to think up enough stunts to discourage his followers. Finally removing the saddle and at the same time taking a jump, the leader was able to eliminate the last hanger-on, Joe Burns on Charmint.

Mrs. Frank Christmas received the laughing plaudits of the assembled crowd when at one point in this event the rider was required to slide off the rump of the mount and sit on the fence. Anne on a strange mount did just this, but her steed having had enough of the nonsense nonchalantly strode off the field, leaving Mrs. Christmas a typical railbird.

Potomac Riding School's Rex with Gay Cunkelman riding won the hole-in-one event by virtue of his ability to balance a golf ball in a spoon while racing, better than other contestants. Mary Ann Eichhorn and Blue Mist scored a win in the difficult Whistling Birdies in which contestants were required to flap arms and blow whistles while racing from point to point.

Summaries:

WHISTLING BIRDIES—1, Mary Ann Eichhorn's Blue Mist; 2, Pegasus Stable's Littlest Knight, ridden by Barbara Goodell; 3, Joan Aldrige's Forest Eagle, ridden by Joe Burns; 4, Joe Burns' Charmint, ridden by J. S. McWilliams.

Bloomsburg Gets Bid

Bloomsburg, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP).—Bloomsburg State Teachers College says it has received a feeler from promoters of the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

"Give us the tools . . ."

FOR HIGH WAGES, FULL EMPLOYMENT
Business Must Have Better Tools . . .
AND MORE MONEY TO PAY FOR THEM

We are delighted to extend permission to companies, associations, or individuals to quote from or reprint all or parts of these editorial messages, with or without credit mention.

This is the 70th of a series.

So far we have escaped the post-war depression predicted by leading government economists. How can we continue to frustrate gloomy prophets who see only depression ahead?

At the end of World War II the federal Director of Reconversion saw depression immediately ahead. He said we would have 6,000,000 unemployed four months after VJ-Day and 8,000,000 a few months later.

But we did not have depression. We did not because:

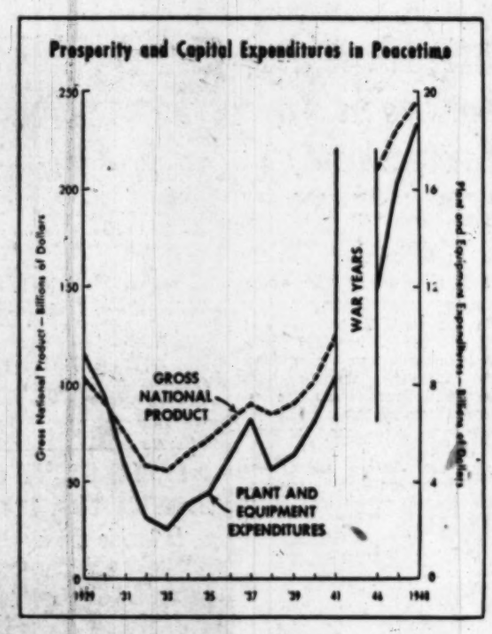
First, the American business man, sensing the obligations of a vastly more important post-war America, went ahead to build his plant and equipment to meet expanding domestic and world markets—markets bigger, actually and potentially, in terms of world-wide trade and profits than any previously envisaged.

Second, the American businessman was able to get the money to go ahead. Since 1945 he has spent $50 billion building new plants and buying new equipment.

There may be other reasons why we missed a depression in 1946. But—make no mistake about it—what has powered our present prosperity is the $50 billion spent by businessmen since VJ-Day to improve their plants.

It provided jobs directly for 5 million people. It paid for more than half of our record-breaking steel output. It put in place the foundations of great new industries such as television. It strengthened the foundations of the chemical, machinery, plastics, steel and oil industries. It has expanded and improved our power systems throughout the country.

This spending has made the difference between prosperity and slump, between industrial strength and serious deterioration.



In fact, we know now that what business spends for new plants and new tools always makes the difference between prosperity and slump, the difference between national strength and weakness.

The chart above tells the story. When we have spent heavily for new plants and equipment, we have had prosperity and strength. When we have not, we have been in trouble.

We would have been in trouble since VJ-Day except that business used its war reserves, plus two-thirds of its profits, plus borrowed money to improve and expand its facilities. This year industry is spending $19 billion this way.

Has this great postwar expansion actually made our economy a "mature economy"? Have we come now to the saturation point the New Dealers mistakenly said we had reached in the '30's?

The answer is no!

Proof of that answer is being developed through a McGraw-Hill national survey of "Business' Needs for New Plants and Equipment" details of which will be given in this editorial series in coming months.

We have a bigger nation, more people, to serve right here at home. Further we must meet human needs which the war created around the world. Also, we must sustain a world position such as this country never assumed before.

Here are immediate things crying to be done.

1. Business still needs billions to expand production because our country and our needs are growing rapidly. Example: To meet the demand for power, electric utility companies must nearly double their present generating capacity in 10 years. That will cost more than $7.5 billion. To fill increasing needs for oil and gasoline, oil companies must spend at least as much.

2. Business still needs billions to get its plants up to date and overcome wear and tear. Examples: Over half a million of our freight cars, a third of the total, are more than a quarter of a century old. About two-thirds of the looms in the textile industry are more than 20 years old. Half of our coke ovens, basic equipment for iron and steel production, are more than 20 years old, and only half as efficient as modern ovens.

3. Business still needs many billions to do new things in dramatic new ways. Example: Machinery that will cut out 80% of the dirty, dangerous work of mining soft coal has been perfected. A new automobile engine plant will reduce the work that goes into engine-building by three-quarters.

Hundreds of similar things that our scientists and engineers have developed could be cited. They can be found in every industry. They hold immeasurable promise of adding to the abundance of American living. In fact, there is hardly a step along the whole route of industry—from rough-ing out raw materials to delivering finished goods—where there are not new and better ways of doing things standing ready for general use.

But the crucial question now is: Where is the money coming from to put to work these new and better ways of doing things?

Business has used its own resources so far . . . profits and reserves. The stock market, where industry traditionally has raised money from people willing to risk their savings, has been limping along, giving business no chance to get enough money on satisfactory terms. Business now must look primarily to its own earnings for the money to carry out the improvements which are necessary if America is to keep itself strong and efficient. The next editorial in this series will deal with this new and crucially-important role of profits.

But business can not count on profits alone to do the job. Profits are too uncertain.

From now on finding the money . . . to put new ideas and new equipment to work . . . to go ahead with the expansion and improvement that will thwart depression and build industrial strength . . . calls for the support of all Americans everywhere.

This comes right down to you . . . for at stake is your chance for steady work, for better pay, for new things like television, and for more of the every-day things, like coal and clothing, of better quality and at less cost.

By helping business get new and better tools, you will help yourself—and you will help build a more sound, more prosperous, better America.

Auto Kills Pedestrian; Hit-and-Run Arrest Made

Herndon Farmer Faces Manslaughter Charge in Death of Motorcyclist Nov. 14

A 72-year-old pedestrian was killed early yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in the 1400 block of Maryland ave. ne.

Mr. Nanni

The victim was Raffaele Nanni, who for the last 12 years had resided with a friend, Tony Santini, at 18 Florence st. ne. The accident occurred at 2 a. m. and Nanni was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital. Deputy Coroner Richard J. Murphy said he had died instantly of head injuries.

Police said Nanni had stepped about 4 feet out from the center island in the street when he was struck by an auto, operated by George P. Eldred, 41, a machinist, of 1620 E st. ne. Eldred was released on personal bond for his appearance at a coroner's inquest later.

Native of Italy

Born in Italy, Nanni came to this country when he was a small boy. For many years he operated a restaurant in Wilmington, Del., and came to Washington when he retired from business 12 years ago. He is survived by a brother, who lives in Wilmington.

Fairfax County police yesterday charged a 29-year-old Herndon, Va., dairy farmer with manslaughter in the hit-and-run death of a 19-year-old motorcyclist November 14.

The farmer was identified as James R. Sinchum of Route 3, Herndon. He was arrested early yesterday by Front Royal, Va., police on a lookout broadcast by Fairfax authorities. Sinchum was also charged with unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Killed Near Centerville

The moforcyclist was Robert Lee Wells of 6 E. Swann ave., Alexandria, Va., who was killed instantly when struck by a truck on Route 211 about 1½ miles east of Centerville.

First clew to the identity of the truck and driver came from Carter Magill of Herndon, owner of the truck and employer of Sinchum, police said. Magill was out of town over the weekend. When he noticed the right front fender and grill of his truck were damaged and bloody on his return last Monday morning, he reported the matter to police, they said.

Danish Editor, Who Opposed Nazis, Joins Embassy Here

Kai Johansen, a fighting Danish editor who opposed Nazi bayonets with his pen, has arrived in Washington as press attache at the Danish Embassy.

Johansen, a stocky, stubborn-chinned man of 45, told how he barely missed capture virtually at the start of his career as a resistance leader.

"The Germans rounded up the entire staff with the exception of me in the fall of 1944," he reminisced. "I happened to be out of the city (Copenhagen) on an assignment at the time."

Thus to Johansen fell the task of operating the publication, Information, and of rounding up a new staff.

"We moved our headquarters often — sometimes daily — always with the feeling that the eye of the Gestapo, roving everywhere, was about to center on us," he said.

"Once we operated in Copenhagen's most fashionable hotel, through the patriotic cooperation of the management. Most of the other guests were high Nazi officials and Gestapo agents. But never did they suspect that from our room flowed 1000 copies daily of a 10-page mimeographed paper carrying the news of resistance to the allied capitals."

On one occasion, Johansen, riding in a car with a "colleague," was stooped by Gestapo men making a routine search. A revolver was found on the "colleague." A capital offense.

But the resistance had prepared for such eventualities. The "colleague" presented a perfectly forged German army permit. The Nazis waved the car on not bothering to look under the seats where an entire day's issue of the paper lay hidden.

KAI JOHANSEN
Danish Press Attache Here

For relaxation from the strain of carrying on underground war, Johansen used to visit Elsinore Palace, habitation of Hamlet.

Although the palace was heavily guarded by Nazi troops, the editor had no trouble gaining admittance. His uncle, a Danish army officer, was governor of the estate, part of which had been converted into a museum and part into an army cadet school. So credentials were not hard to get.

The editor stayed in New York for about three weeks before coming to Washington recently. Gotham is all right he said but "it is too much city." Johansen lives with his wife and two children at 420 Dexter st. nw.

No Chest Gifts Made By 100,000

Leaders of Some Units Optimistic As Goal Is 37.7% Above Last Year's

About 100,000 employed persons in Greater Washington have not yet given to the 1949 Community Chest campaign, General Chairman Chauncey G. Parker said yesterday.

At the same time, leaders of several Chest units, mindful that this year's $4,566,790 quota represents a 37.7 per cent increase over last year's goal, expressed optimism about Red Feather results.

The Chest so far has reached 71 per cent of it goal.

Government Chairman C. Girard Davidson, whose unit has a record of 90.67 per cent of its $1,524,557 quota now, said he was "very happy" over unit prospects.

He said he had asked leaders of the 15 Government divisions which are under the unit's average, to "get busy."

$80,000 More Than in 1947

Davidson estimated that Government volunteers had collected about $80,000 more in pledges this year than last from 15,000 fewer potential givers.

Special Gifts Chairman E. Cortlandt Parker said his unit has already collected about $100,000 more than it took in last year, with 50 to 100 pledge cards not yet returned. Special gifts contributions are distributed throughout the nine other Chest units, rather than reported separately.

Another optimist was Milton S. Kronheim, assistant general chairman of the Small Business Unit, which to date has filled only 40 per cent of its $364,390 quota.

"Our great trouble has been in getting coverage," Kronheim said, attributing his hopeful attitude to the fact that "we've had the promise of more workers in both the Southeast and Northeast sections."

Big business chairman Herbert J. Rich, whose unit has filled 65.36 per cent of its $1,785,271 quota, struck the gloomiest note among Chest leaders.

"It's hard to get them interested," he said, referring to business leaders and employes. "We figured on 90 per cent participation and we haven't got it."

About 62,900 big business employes have contributed to the Chest so far, out of 154,000 potential givers.

"They just don't seem to realize their responsibility to the community," Rich stated.

A series of six special radio appeals for the Red Feather drive will be broadcast this week over Radio Station WRC. First speaker will be Dr. Norman Gerstenfelc, rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, at 6:25 p. m. today.

Teen-Agers Hold Their Own Horse Show

CHEERING THEIR FAVORITE—Three pretty rider-spectators give enthusiastic encouragement to their favorite during the teen-age horse show held yesterday at Difficult Run show grounds, near Falls Church, Va. Girl, 10, Wins Honors in Va. Horse Show

Twenty teen-age equestrians romped and raced their way through a horse show yesterday at which a diminutive 10-year-old miss stole top honors with ease.

A rodeo, scheduled to follow the horse show, was abruptly canceled when 10 not-so-ferocious bulls escaped from their improvised corral. Twenty horsemen, with rebel yells, rounded up the escapees which by this time didn't appear to be in the mood for more action.

Laura Lee Shreve, astride her pony "Chico" and with blonde pigtails flying, led the field of entries through eight events and won the grand champion ribbon of the Future Horsemen of Fairfax County's first horse show.

Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Shreve of Falls Church, Va., had an edge over her youthful competitors inasmuch as she has been riding since she was 5. Dressed in a complete riding habit, she put her pony through the intricate paces at the Difficult Run Show Grounds with veteran ability.

The young horsemen were slightly appeased when Robert Van Pelt, 15, of 1211 Ellison st., Falls Church, riding Peg o' My Heart, carried off second honors.

More than 100 persons attended the first show of the Future Horsemen, an organization formed early this year for teen-agers who wished to gain riding experience. Chairman George Wilcox of Peacock Station, Va., said the club plans another show next year and will accept as members youths under 20 years of age who live in Fairfax County.

Paul E. Rheinhart, owner of the show ground property on the Leigh Mill road, near Falls Church, donated horses and equipment for the event. Proceeds will be given to the Community Chest fund.

Metropolitan Park Group Adds Areas In Counties

Extension Program For Capital System Is Announced by Planning Chairman

The valleys of Paint Branch and Oxon Run in Prince Georges County, and Little Falls Branch, Willets Run and Paint Branch in Montgomery County have been added to the master park plan for the metropolitan district.

The additions were announced yesterday by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission through its chairman, Irwin I. Main. Approximately $2,850,000 is available under the Capper-Cramton Act of 1930, and amendments, for development of these extensions to the park, parkway and playground system of the National Capital and its environs. The metropolitan district boundaries were amended to include two of the new areas which were outside them.

Makeup of Park System

The general park plan was adopted for Montgomery County in 1932, and for Prince Georges in 1939. The park system originally included the valleys of Rock Creek and Cabin John Creek in Montgomery, Anacostia River and Indian Creek in Prince Georges, and Northwest Branch and Sligo Creek in both counties. A 1946 amendment added the valleys of Oxon Run in Prince Georges, Little Falls Branch and Willets Run in Montgomery, and Paint Branch, which extends from Prince Georges into Montgomery County.

The Maryland General Assembly in 1947 eased limitations on park commission indebtedness for acquisitions in both counties, and added additional areas in Prince Georges to the commission's control.

Much of the general park plan adopted heretofore has been realized in each county. According to Vice Chairman E. Brooks Lee, who also is Park Commissioner for Montgomery County, about 680 acres have been acquired for Rock Creek Parkway, 65 acres for Cabin John Parkway, and 160 acres for Sligo Creek Parkway, with Capper-Cramton Act funds.

Other Land Reserved

Additional land has been reserved or is under option in the critical areas in Little Falls Branch, Northwest Branch, and Sligo Creek, where real estate development threatened extension of the park system. Important portions of the Montgomery County system, particularly in Rock Creek and Sligo Creek, have been developed for recreational purposes.

In Prince Georges County, where acquisition began in 1940, nearly 800 acres, comprising Units 1 and 2 of Anacostia River Park, have been acquired. Parts of areas in valleys threatened by development have been reserved in anticipation of further Federal funds.

Franco Spain Defended by Dean Guthrie

Franco Spain was warmly defended yesterday by the Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., dean of the Georgetown University Graduate School, who declared "Spain stands for the same triumphs we hope to see triumph in a disordered world."

Fr. Guthrie

Father Guthrie, who has just returned from a seven-week trip to Spain, spoke at the fall convocation of the Graduate School in Gaston Hall before a predominantly student audience which also included Jose F. Lequerica, Spanish Ambassador-at-large, and German Baraibar, charge d'affaires here.

Without specifically asking for resumption of diplomatic relations, Father Guthrie said that withholding our friendship for Spain is a "short-sighted and vicious policy, for the day may not be distant when the civilization of the West makes its last stand on the peaks of the Pyrenees."

In that hour, said the dean, "it would be well to have Don Quixote on our side."

Father Guthrie said he is honestly convinced that the present government "expressed the will of a comfortable majority of the people." Spain's civil war, he declared, was fought to "regain a liberty which was being sold out to foreign interests," and liberty is "as fiercely cherished in Spain today as anywhere else in the world."

In fact, Spain tolerates a dictator today "precisely because she wants to retain that liberty," said the dean.

"Today we have an infallible yardstick to measure the liberty and independence of any nation," he continued, "and that yardstick is the hatred of the Russian government and its deluded sympathizers. In that hit parade, Spain is well out front."

The convocation audience of some 500 faculty members, graduate and senior college students and guests were first addressed by Dr. Louis J. A. Mercier, professor of comparative philosophy and literature, on "The Christian American Scholar."

Balmy Sunday Lures Drivers Into Country

Spring-like weather yesterday sent "Sunday drivers" for rides in the country and brought fair-sized crowds to parks.

The beautiful, sunny weekend may be the last for a while, as occasional rain today is forecast by the weatherman. It'll be mostly cloudy, with a high of about 52, he said, compared to yesterday's high of 61 at 2 p. m. Low yesterday was 39 at 6 a. m.

While Washington enjoyed a mean of 50, or 5 degrees above normal, it was snowing again in Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas and Wyoming, with high winds and temperatures well below freezing. The weatherman refused to concede that yesterday was anything unusual here. The record high for the date is 79, set in 1900, and the mercury dipped as low an 18 on November 21, 1872.

Park Police said the Zoo, Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and other meccas for visitors were well patronized. Park roads were well traveled for a November Sunday, but there were fewer picnickers than on the previous, warmer Sunday.

Allied Civic Group To Devote Session To Charter Study

The Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, Md., embracing 20 civic associations, will devote its meeting today to a study of how the newly adopted charter form of government for Montgomery County will operate.

Mrs. Ralph Himstead a director of the charter committee and former president of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters, will speak to the session at 8 p. m. in the hearing room of the Liquor Control Board Building, Colesville rd.

All members of local civic groups in addition to the delegates will be welcomed, Victor Richter, president, said. ACG will also discuss recommendations to the charter committee's slate of candidates in the January 6 election for the county council.

Reports will be made on parking restrictions and traffic signals in Silver Spring.

India Is Using U. S. Know-How, Envoy's Wife Says

In the year since its rise to dominion status, India already has begun to draw upon American industrial and scientific know-how to develop and expand, Lady Bengal Rama Rau, wife of the Indian Ambassador, said yesterday.

Speaking yesterday afternoon on the Americans-All program on radio station WOOK, Lady Rama Rau revealed that 2000 Indian students are enrolled in American universities. Numerous Americans, she said, have been appointed consultants to the national India government in fields of engineering, education and in scientific research.

Asked by Dr. Tomlinson D. Todd, director of the program, to explain the feeling of India's people since the country gained its independence from Great Britain, Lady Rama Rau said the feeling is "jubilation and relief—a feeling similar to what you Americans had when you broke away from the yoke of England."

Shots Fail to Halt Rail Yard Thief

A Pennsylvania Railroad policeman fired three shots at a man found rifling a freight car about 6:40 p. m. yesterday in the yards near 6th st. and Virginia ave. sw., but the man escaped with three boxes of cheese.

Police broadcast a description of him and asked hospitals to be on the lookout, in the chance he may have been wounded. The railroad officer, Elvis M. Allen, jr., said the man was about six feet tall, weighed about 200, pounds, wore a three-quarter length Army field jacket and dark trousers.

Nearby Va. Inducts First Group Today

After reporting this morning to draft headquarters in Fairfax and Arlington Counties and Alexandria, they will be transported to the Army and Air Force Recruiting Station, 113 South Columbus st., Alexandria, for induction.

Fairfax County Board, No. 39, with a call for three men this month, has been able to certify but one registrant available for military service. He is James H. Crist, 25, of Route 5, Alexandria, a pipefitter.

Two Arlington County men also will be inducted today. They are Wesley E. Decatur, 25, of 319 15th st. S., an employe of W. H. Webb Co., 1500 Jefferson Davis hgwy., Arlington, and Gerald B. Marshall, 22, of 404 S. Adams st., drugstore employe.

Tuesday the first inductees of Prince Georges County Board Nos. 56 and 57 will enter the Army

Printers Get Report on Wage Parleys

Members of the Columbia Typographical Union met yesterday in the Pythian Temple to hear a report of their scale committee on progress in negotiations with the Washington Publishers Association.

Under study is a contract which expired November 11. Agreement has been reached between the publishers and the union that retroactive date of the new contract will be November 11 if a settlement is reached in 30 days.

James J. O'Connor, president of Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 said after yesterday's union meeting that a representative of the International Typographical Union will arrive in Washington within the next few days to review status of the negotiations.

He said that any recommendations made by the ITU representative will be submitted to the executive council of the ITU and later to the union membership.

The union seeks higher wages—from $85 to $100 for the day shift, $90 to $110 for the night shift and $95 to $110 for the third shift. Other demands include a reduction in hours for third-shift workers, an additional week's vacation, sick leave and a pension plan.

Ceremonies Today To Mark Arrival Of Kitty Hawk

Arrival here of the Wright brothers' original airplane, the Kitty Hawk, will be marked by a brief ceremony at 2 p. m. today in front of the Freer Gallery of Art, on grounds of the Smithsonian Institution.

Principal speaker at the ceremony will be William P. MacCracken, holder of the Civil Aeronautics Administration No. 1 pilot's license and first chief of the Division of Civil Air Commerce of the Commerce Department.

The Kitty Hawk, flown by Orville and Wilbur Wright December 17, 1903, has been displayed for 20 years at the Kensington Museum in London, where it was sent by Orville Wright because of a dispute with the Smithsonian. Instructions found after his death, directed its return here. It will be officially accepted and exhibited by the Smithsonian December 17.

Legislation For Children To Be Subject

Legislation for children that will come before the Eighty-first Congress will be previewed at a conference sponsored by the American Parents Committee Tuesday at the Willard Hotel. Sessions will be held from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m. A similar conference will be held in New York City on November 30.

Among legislation to be discussed are Social Security Act revisions, Federal Aid to Education, child labor proposals, appropriations for the National School lunch program and the National Child Research Institute bill.

Taking part in the meetings will be the American Public Welfare Association, National Education Association, National Advisory Committee on Local Health Units, Committee for the Nation's Health, National Citizens Council for Migrant Labor, National Public Housing Conference, National Child Labor Committee, American Library Association and the United States Committee for the Children's Fund.

Corcoran Opens Area Art Show With Split Billing for Rejects

Art! Who comprehends her? With whom can one consult concerning this great goddess?
—Ludwig Van Beethoven.

The third annual exhibition of Greater Washington artists, which opened yesterday at the Corcoran Gallery, turned out to be a double feature.

First, there was the "official" exhibition of 20 works picked by judges. Then, there was a special "reject" exhibition of artistic efforts at which the judges had thumbed their noses.

Which was the feature attraction? The "oh's" and "ah's" and "huh?'s" of nearly 800 spectators indicated that hardly anyone was sure what was what.

The special exhibition, one gallery official said, "is the only possible answer" to the furor which arose in local art circles when results of the judging were announced. Of the 396 artists whose entries did not strike the judges' fancy, only "20 or 30" declined to exhibit them in the reject showing, he added.

Which adds up to the fact that until December 18, when the exhibition ends, Corcoran's first and second-floor walls will be lined with canvases.

Said one middle-aged critic, who declined to identify herself other than to state she was a schoolteacher: "A lot of this stuff looks like the sketching of children."

"I think it's a pitiful exhibition," she declared, warming to the subject. "There is no appreciation of form and color and the perspective is false so often." The criticism applied, she said, to the official showing as well as the reject exhibition.

Others, less stern, opined that some of the works turned down by the judges were the equals of those they approved.

John P. Leeper, a gallery lecturer, termed the public's reaction to the two showings "bewilderment." He said that "everyone feels there are things of the same excellence in the special exhibition" as those approved by the judges.

Associate Curator Eleanor B. Swenson added that "the quality of this year's entries is just about the same as that of last year in my opinion." A year ago, she said, the judges approved 120 works.

In disagreement with Leeper and Miss Swenson was Artist Merle Foshag of No. 2 Westwood dr., Westmoreland Hills, Md. Compared with last year, this year's show "is not as good as a whole," she said, adding, "A lot of these things are just too amateurish."

Hagerstown Almanac Predicts Bad Weather for Inaugural

The venerable publication, 1949 edition, fearlessly predicted that January 20 will be "unsettled, followed by rain or snow." And it has some 152 years of more or less accurate predictions to back up its forecast.

The Almanac says there will be snow flurries on January 17 and 18, unsettled weather on the next two days, followed by four days of rain or snow.

Published nearly two weeks before the election, the Almanac didn't pull the universal boner on "the next" President of the United States.

In an ode to "Our Presidents," the Almanac winds up the Washington-on-down list with:

"Roosevelt called in time of need,

Shattering all precedent preceding—

Roosevelt for third-term country leading.

Fourth term "Roosevelt Immortal" not dead.

Truman succeeds as our Country's head."

Aside from the national political scene the Almanac has quite a few bits of information to impart.

For instance, pigs do not sweat. They do not have any sweat glands. Hogs may "drop dead if they are driven too hard in the hot sun."

The Almanac also points out:

"Better pasture is always just on the other side of the fence; at least that is what a lot of cows seem to think. An electric fence will effectively stop this habit of reaching through the wires."

D. C. Need of Laboratory Tests For Drunken Drivers Debated

On whether blood, urine and breath tests for drunken driving should be required in the District, a pathologist and an assistant corporation counsel disagreed last night with two practicing attorneys.

They gave their views on the District Roundtable, a discussion-forum broadcast over WINX.

Reliability of the tests in determining drunken drivers has been proved to the satisfaction of the American Medical Association, the National Safety Council and the FBI, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, pathology director for Doctors and Sibley Hospitals, pointed out.

And argued Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King: "The tests are used today for benefit of the innocent as well as for the guilty," even though in the District they are not compulsory. He said he had had drunken-driving charges dismissed on basis of laboratory tests.

In traffic cases, declared Munter, the effect of alcohol on the individual's brain, rather than his blood, urine or breath should be the important factor.

F. Joseph Donohue, attorney and representative of Washington liquor dealers, charged efforts to make the tests compulsory would, in effect, "substitute laboratory tests for the findings of a judge and jury."

Besides, he added, there remains controversy in the medical field over the exact effect a certain percentage of alcohol in the blood may have on an individual.

Harry W. Goldberg, another attorney, was moderator.

Firemen to Rescue Of Sinking Barge

Firemen yesterday pumped 324,000 gallons of water from a barge, which had threatened to sink in the Anacostia River after seams developed leaks.

Police said John Morgal of Morgal's Boat Yard, 17th and M sts. se., noticed about 11 a. m. that the boat anchored in 18 feet of water near Sousa Bridge, was listing.

The District Fireboat and harbor police responded. Water was pumped from the barge for more than two hours at the rate of 1900 gallons per minute. Morgal then caulked the seams.

The barge, owned by the Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corp. was loaded with steel and a crane used in construction of the new twin bridge across the Potomac.

While laying a hose into the boat, Pvt. E. H. Bradley, 30, of the Harbor Police Precinct, suffered a back injury, but remained on duty.

Dr. Hall Heads Surgeons

Dr. Custis Lee Hall, 1801 I st. nw., was elected president of the International College of Surgeons at the college's thirteenth annual convention, which ended Saturday in St. Louis.

Rear Admiral Clifford A. Swanson, Surgeon General of the Navy, was awarded an honorary fellowship.

Three District surgeons were elected certified fellows: Dr. Edward J. Gordon, orthopedic surgeon, 2025 I st. nw., at 34 the youngest of the class of 178 so honored; Dr. Wendell A. Parker, general surgeon of St. Elizabeths Hospital, and Dr. Harry S. Weitzman, general surgeon of 915 19th st. nw.

Dr. Catharine Birch, nose and throat specialist, 1835 I st. nw., also was elected a fellow of the college, and Dr. Claude W. Mitchell, Silver Spring, and Dr. Theodore R. Coleman, 1835 I st. nw., were elected associates.

Morals Suspect

Two National Park policewomen arrested a man on a charge of indecent exposure at 4 p. m. yesterday on the Washington Monument grounds between 13th and 14th sts. nw.

The officers, Mrs. Grace Judy and Mrs. Violet Markle, said George Joseph Young, 29, of 615 E st. sw., exposed himself to them and to four children who were between 4 and 11 years of age.

Young was identified as a Capital Transit Co. pitman.

Rare Scotch Stolen

Eighteen cases of rare Scotch whisky and liqueurs valued at $1492 were reported stolen from a locked basement room in an apartment house at 3808 Davis pl. nw., police said yesterday.

Richard H. Jenkins of Apartment 301, said he discovered a lock had been forced and the 8-to-21-year-old potables carried off in a trunk and two suitcases, when he returned home at 12:30 p. m. from a trip to New York. Police said he is Washington representative for and a vice president of a New York engineering firm.

Hit With Own Baton

A policeman investigating a trouble complaint at 1109 New Jersey ave. nw., a rooming house, was struck over the head with his own baton yesterday.

The policeman, Pvt. Charles B. Roper, 41, of 2958 2d st. se., who was not seriously hurt, arrested Charles G. Redmond, 36, a roomer at the New Jersey ave. address, and charged him with disorderly conduct and assault on a police officer.

Police said Redmond grabbed Roper's baton while Roper was talking to another resident and struck Roper on the left side of the head.

Dr. Kelly Cites Nation's Debt To God in Sermon of Thanks

There are many things for which all nations can thank God, Dr. John Bailey Kelly said yesterday in a Thanksgiving sermon at Georgetown Presbyterian Church, 3105 P st. nw.

He urged appreciation of our own blessings while recognizing our responsibility for those less fortunate.

There are many things in this world which are hard to take, he said and many people look only at the misfortunes of life. But, he added, there are also many fortunate and happy things and it is well to dwell upon these.

"Boundless Opportunities"

"Our common blessings include life itself, such measure of health and strength as we possess, and the well-nigh boundless opportunities which are ours," Dr. Kelly said, adding:

"There is food enough for all if we are only wise enough to see that it is properly distributed."

"We as a people have been blessed above all nations," Dr. Kelly declared. "We escaped the devastations of a devastating war. We have abundant harvests, better this year than usual. And we have a high standard of living not attained by any other people anywhere."

"We ought to thank God not only for these blessings but for our institutions which guarantee the rights of man, for our ideals of progress and peace, for our heritage of Christian faith and for our possibilities of leadership," he continued.

"These blessings we need to safeguard and perpetuate, especially our liberties which must be preserved and shared with other peoples, and our opportunities which must be extended alike to every citizen and, so far as possible, made available to men everywhere.

"Above all we need to preserve and perpetuate our Christian faith which is the basis of all these blessings and without which our present situation would be impossible," he concluded.

General Weir, 57, Dies at Walter Reed

Brig. Gen. John M. Weir, 57, USA (retired), of 1869 Wyoming ave. nw., died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

General Weir, who death was attributed to a heart condition, had entered the hospital three days earlier.

During World War II he was assistant to the Judge Advocate General, and had been designated by the Secretary of War to be director of the United States War Crimes Bureau about two years before his retirement for disability, November 30, 1946. He had lived in Washington since 1941.

General Weir was born in Indianapolis, Ind. He received a bachelor's degree from Indiana University in 1914 and a master's degree from Stetson University, Florida, in 1917. That year he was commissioned a captain in the Army and served in France during World War I. In 1928 he was transferred from the infantry to the Office of the Judge Advocate General.

General Weir is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carin H. Weir; a son, Capt. John G. Weir, United States Air Force, who is stationed in Washington, and a granddaughter, Beverly Weir. Also surviving are his father, Judge C. E. Weir of Indianapolis, and a sister, Mrs. Cyril Cass of Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Boutin Dies at 92 in Chevy Chase

Mrs. Julia Crawford Boutin, 92, member of a pioneer American family, died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Richard W. Mayo, 401 Rosemary st., Chevy Chase, Md. She had been ill about 10 days.

Mrs. Boutin

Mrs. Boutin, born in Norwich, Canada, in 1856, traveled with her family in a covered wagon as a young girl to reach Hampton, Iowa, where she spent most of her life.

In 1874 she was married to Samuel Boutin, a Hampton contractor, and moved to Washington several years after his death in 1930. Until two years ago she made her home with a daughter, Mrs. Claude R. Porter, wife of the Interstate Commecre commissioner, who died in 1946.

She leaves four children, Mrs. Porter of 3752 Kanawha st. nw. and Mrs. Lottie Duckworth, Charles W. Boutin and Dr. Ralph G. Boutin, all of Cape Girardeau, Miss. Fourteen grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild also survive.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Webb Dies; District School Aide

Mrs. Ruth Kincer Webb, 5111 42d st. nw., director of the first division of District elementary schools, died yesterday at George Washington University Hospital after a brief illness.

A writer on and teacher of child education and psychology at George Washington University and Maryland University, in addition to her school work, Mrs. Webb had looked forward to receiving a doctor of education degree this year at George Washington, where she received her bachelor and master's degrees.

Wife of William Thayer Webb and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burton Kincer, 4112 Fessenden st. nw., Mrs. Webb was born in Wytheville, Va., and had lived in Washington since 1908, serving 28 years in the District schools.

She was a graduate of Wilson Normal School, now Wilson Teachers College, and did undergraduate work at the University of Chicago as well as GWU.

Starting as a first-grade teacher in Janney School, Mrs. Webb planned and organized the opening of Horace Mann School, was head teacher at Rose Lee Hardy School, taught in the laboratory school at Wilson and was administrative principal of Curtis-Hyde School.

Beside her husband and parents, Mrs. Webb leaves a daughter, Mrs. Mary Webb Courtney; a son, William T. Webb, jr., three grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Joshua Davies, New York City. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery after services at 11 a. m. today at Hines funeral home, 14th and Harvard sts. nw.

South's Educators Give Views on Equal Facilities

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—The result of a survey released today shows 69 per cent of the faculty members in a majority of Southern universities favor removal of racial bars in graduate and up professional schools—if desired courses are not offered in State-supported schools for Negroes.

The survey was conducted by the Southern Conference Educational Fund, and ballots were mailed to every faculty member in 11 Southern State universities, Aubrey Williams of Montgomery, Ala., president of the organization, said.

Williams is former head of the National Youth Administration and now editor of the Southern Farmer.

Only 28 per cent voted for the plan of segregated regional schools for Negroes as proposed by the Southern Governors conference, Williams said.

C. W. Zimmer, Tax Auditor, Is Dead at 57

Clarence W. Zimmer, 57, of 3819 T st. nw., an auditor in the Internal Revenue Bureau's income tax unit, died yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital. He had been admitted to the hospital about two months ago with a stomach ailment.

Mr. Zimmer had been employed by the revenue bureau for 30 years.

A native of Dodgeville, Wisc., he came to Washington about 1916. During World War I he served in the infantry. He was a member of Lincoln Post, American Legion, and received a Bachelor of Commercial Science degree from Benjamin Franklin University.

In 1920 he married the former Miss Violet M. Frain of Washington. She, and two children, Arthur R. and Culver F. Zimmer, survive him. Also surviving are four sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Clara Keyes of Cobb, Wis.; Mrs. Adeline Fennel, Quincy, Calif.; Miss Ione and Miss Alice Zimmer, Astoria, L. I.; Hugo Zimmer, Dubuque, Iowa, and Daniel Zimmer, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Thomas S. Holt

Federalsburg, Md., Nov. 21 (AP). Thomas Simpson Holt, founder of the Holt Oil Co. and former minister and highway builder, died today in his Federalsburg home. He was 76.

A native of Cecil County, Holt was a Methodist minister in Federalsburg and other Maryland communities until he lost his voice about 30 years ago.

He was former president of the First National Bank of Federalsburg and a member of the board of governors of Western Maryland College.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl's Friends Exhort Her Not to Sit Home, Moping and Waiting for Frankly Fickle Beau; "Unfortunately I Love the Heel," She Says

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: During the last few months I have fallen hopelessly in love with Jeff, who has been paying me much attention in this time and acts as if he cares for me; in fact, he says he does.

However, he also tells me that he doesn't want to marry, that he desires complete freedom to go where he pleases, with whom he pleases, and he lectures me about the folly of getting serious. He says if he were to marry, he probably would start looking around and become unfaithful after a few months.

Being quite handsome, Jeff gloats in approving glances and smiles from women, which he construes as evidence that they want to go out with him; and when meeting new women he speculates about what they're like, whether he would enjoy going out with them, and so on. Even so, he is at my home nearly every evening, or has been with the exception of a fortnight recently, when he got the urge for other company.

Man Makes Boast of His Conquests

HE CAME back of his own accord, expecting to find me waiting with open arms, and told me about the trail of broken hearts he had left behind. It seems he had gone off for a visit with his family, taking along a woman (from another city) in whom he'd been seriously interested at the time he met me. But before they got to their destination he decided he didn't care deeply for her, after all; and during his stay he went out with other girls.

My friends exhort me not to sit home moping for Jeff, but unfortunately I am in love with the heel; and having gone through much the same situation once before, I fear the outcome. In this small town there are no other desirable men, hobbies don't interest me, I am unemployed at present, have too much time to think, and my nerves are becoming steadily worse, so that I sometimes feel I am going crazy. Please advise me. C. C.

This Isn't Love; It's Counterfeit

DEAR C. C.: Those whose sentimental relations are more prolific of misery than joy would do well to study Alexander Magoun's refreshing book, "Love and Marriage" (Harper & Brothers), which in Chapter I discusses "the nature of love" and defines the difference between the real article and various counterfeits mistaken for it.

The author interprets love as abiding desire on the part of two persons to produce together the conditions in which each can be and spontaneously express his real self; an intimate relatedness based on mutual approval and affirmation of the character and integrity of each. This theme is developed at book-length.

From his instructive list of counterfeits, I shall cite a few, to-wit: Parasitic attachment to another, because too weak or fearful to stand alone. Sexual desire; intent on self-gratification, aroused by another's attractive physical attributes. Compulsive need to exploit another's capacity to amass money, prestige or power. Craving for worship, for rapturous reassurance that one is glorious, wonderful, "ideal," etc.

Both Are Seeking Respite From Fear

THE AUTHOR further mentions woman's dread of being an old maid, also her quest for a meal-ticket; and a man's unconscious intent upon conquest of a woman to mother him. In none of these cases is there love—i. e., passionate sincere outgoing purpose to produce with the other person the conditions in which each can flourish, more joyously and creatively, than either could alone.

Dr. Magoun tells us, "Love knows not underlying fear and uncertainty," and he reminds that two mutually infatuated persons can want each other desperately without love, and without sensing the emotional insincerity which consumes them, as they blindly seek for reassurance or for the spurious delight of being treated as if they were perfection itself.

Now, go back to the several categories of counterfeit "love" cited above, and see for yourself that your doleful attitude embraces most of them. To change your luck, you've got to stop clutching, clinging and moping and become self-reliant and happy "as is,"—and Dr. Magoun's book should help you get going.

As for Jeff, he seems to be mother-fixated, essentially fearful that he lacks male competence, and hostile to women—because hostile to his mother—even while playing Casanova to cloak his sissy-personality from the world and himself. M. H.

'Crying It Out' Not Best Way To Let Baby Fall Off to Sleep

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Parents develop bad habits in their children and then wring their hands because they cannot end them. In the beginning, the bad habit was introduced to end some other undesirable situation, and then became something to deal with itself.

Mrs. A. E. S. writes, "My baby was 8 months old when he began screaming each time he was put in his bed for nap or bedtime. He'd carry on something awful. After a few nights of this I made the bad mistake of giving him a bottle at these times. It worked wonderfully and the evenings and naps were no longer troublesome.

"Now he is 15 months old and still wants the bottle. I have tried everything but nothing seems to work. If I give him a cuddly toy he throws it out and actually does everything to hurt himself in order to get attention. Should I just let him scream it out? This is really making a nervous wreck of me."

The picture is a very fuzzy one, for I should know what he gets to eat now at each meal and how much milk as well as how long a nap, all things which relate to the particular problem.

It seems incomprehensible that if the baby were getting a good diet and three or four glasses of milk a day, that he would want two bottles in addition. If you wait to give him the bottles until you put him in bed, you are using these as soothers not as nutrition, but he might refuse them himself if he got enough milk at the regular meal.

Check to see that he has a satisfactory diet. Don't insist on naps over two hours long in daytime. Maybe he doesn't want to sleep that long and would go to bed more quietly if he didn't.

When you put him in bed sing to him, or read a repetitious Mother Goose rhyme, thus harnessing his attention and helping him to relax. Give decreasing amounts of milk by bottle so that in a couple of weeks there will be just an ounce or so to be taken from this utensil.

Just don't stick him in his crib and go off, demanding that he go to sleep. Put him in the mood for sleep and then ease yourself out of the room. I never believe that "screaming it out" is the answer to any problem.

Mrs. McKee Stone On Short Visit Here

Mrs. McKee Stone made a flying visit to Washington last week and returned yesterday to New York after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke.

Mrs. Stone—Francie to her friends—is so busy manufacturing and distributing her new Safety-Site windows for convertibles, that she will have little time for her Washington friends this year.

Holiday Dances Planned for Servicemen Here

Among these is a formal dance Tuesday at the service club at Andrews Air Base. Miss Betty Mattox, special services and recreation director at the base, announces that invitations have been extended to members of the 260th and 113th groups of the District National Guard.

Also at Andrews Base there will be a tea dance on Thanksgiving Day, 3-6:30 p. m. Members of the 163d and 293d groups of the National Guard are invited.

Service Club No. 1 at Fort McNair will be the scene of another dance on Wednesday evening. Government girls and students have been invited to attend these parties. For free transportation call Columbia 0735.

Advice on Pictures

Artist Warns Of Malarkey Of Decorators

When acquiring pictures for your home, hang whatever your heart desires, Thomas Craven, noted art critic, advises. And he especially warns picture-buyers to beware of the "psychological malarkey" of interior decorators.

"Three popular fallacies have done great harm to the enjoyment of pictures," Mr. Craven says in "Don't Let the Decorators Choose Your Pictures," in the Saturday Evening Post. "First, the specious sales talk that only certain kinds of pictures can be lived with; second, the snobbery that limits the appreciation of art to a handful of connoisseurs, the self-constituted cult of God's elect; third, the deadly propaganda that pictures should be chosen as adjuncts to architecture or as integral units of a domestic setting. These fallacies are the inventions of hide-bound museum directors, dealers and interior decorators."

Mr. Craven charges that the interior decorator regards a painting as of no more value emotionally than a roll of wallpaper, a hooked rug or a slip cover. "Her aim is decorative, first and last, and she measures pictures as she measures the drapes—by the front foot," he declares. "When specifying pictures for the denizens of streamlined apartments and flat-roofed houses, the decorator talks glibly of formal relations spatial manipulation, geometrical design and other qualities in which abstract paintings abound to the exclusion of human values . . . For the innumerable housewives with cultural yearnings and not much knowledge or initiative, she has another line of talk. It is fluent and impressive, but it is malarkey just the same."

The French Bohemians have extracted all the humanity from art, Mr. Craven declares, and he is critical of the "groveling of American artists" before the leaders of the School of Paris.

Mr. Craven's own collection of paintings is "painful to the decorators, but not to friends and visitors engaged in forming their own preferences," he says. "Not one of them goes with anything else, but all go beautifully together," he writes. "Not one was chosen to keep company with the curtains, and when visitors come, they do not ignore my pictures or take them lightly. They look at them more than once, and enjoy, argue or reprove. I have only one rule in putting pictures on my walls: I never hang them upside down . . ."

An Apple a Day and Ways to Serve Them

To brighten salad dressing, add a crisp, fragrant Delicious apple, grated, to one cup mayonnaise. Especially good for fruit salads, or as a spread for griddle cakes.

Left-over chicken or turkey will combine well with crisp, juicy apples which lend flavor and zest to the meat. Combine two parts of diced chicken or turkey with one part diced, unpeeled Delicious apples and one teaspoon grated onion. Dress with mayonnaise and watercress, if desired. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Apple growers in the State of Washington, who produce a third of the Nation's apples, recommend that the fruit be stored in the refrigerator until ready for use. Cool temperatures help to keep apples crisp and flavorful.

Beauty note for Waldorf salads: To add a festive look to Waldorf salad, select ripe-red Delicious apples. Core, but do not peel. Slice apples (instead of chopping) and mix with celery and walnuts. Top with mayonnaise and serve on a bed of lettuce.

Doubly delicious is this Swiss apple cake, delicious to taste, made with crisp Delicious apples. Pare and slice apples, about four cups. Blend three tablespoons butter or margarine with two thirds cups sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon and one and one half teaspoons lemon juice. Prepare plain muffin mix and spread in greased pan. Place apple slices in rows on top and spread with sugar mixture. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 30 minutes.

How to Brighten Discolored Copper

I have a very large copper kettle which holds over 3 gallons, used by my father-in-law, an old Pennsylvania Mennonite, for making apple butter out-of-doors and for other family things. It is black and dirty. What can I use to clean it to make it look bright? I saw a smaller one at an antique dealer's marked $30, so suppose that mine is also an antique and probably worth more. J. A. S.

There are a good many excellent metal cleaning products on the market. A good product can be made at home by mixing as much salt in vinegar as will dissolve. For the preliminary cleaning, dip a soft cloth into this salt-vinegar solution, then into a scratchless cleaning powder, and scrub the surface with it. When most of the heavy discoloration has been removed, polish it with one of the metal creams or metal polishing cloths on the market.

I have painted my living room woodwork a medium shade of gray and the walls are a lighter shade of gray. I am thinking of buying a gray wool twist (plain) rug for the floor. Would that be too much gray?

I am also buying a new rug for my dining room which has gray woodwork. Should I buy matched rugs for the two rooms? The dining room does not open into the living room. My furniture in the living room is a wine red with mahogany tables and desk. Would the gray walls and gray rug make my rooms appear larger? C. D. S.

If the living room is not large, your choice of unfigured gray for the woodwork, walls and floor is good. If you wished to relieve the plainness somewhat, you could use a rug which has a design made by the difference in pile treatment or a tone-on-tone gray rug. With this background gray, I suggest you choose colorful drapes with bold designs. You could use a design with wine predominating and perhaps some gold or yellow for accent.

It does add to the spacious feeling in a home if the dining and living rooms are carpeted alike. You could even use the same color scheme in the two rooms, perhaps having yellow or gold as the predominant color in the dining room and wine for accent.

Is it correct to use my engraved informal cards which have my name on the front to acknowledge baby gifts? F. N. S.

It would be most appropriate for you to write your notes of thanks on these cards.

What is proper where monograms are involved? I have several pieces of linen which were added to my hope chest before I was married that carry my maiden initials. Now that I am married and want to add some towels and sheets to my linen closet, what initials do I use? My maiden initials, or my married initials, or is it just a matter of preference? C. C. A.

Use your married initials in marking the linens. This is done by brides nowadays. Yesterday's etiquette of marking all silver and linens with the bride's maiden name proved as useless and confusing custom and has been abandoned by most people.

CHOCOLATE PARFAIT

1/3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 egg white
Dash salt
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ tablespoons cocoa

Cook sugar, water and cocoa until it threads when dropped from a fork. Beat egg white with salt until stiff but not dry. Pour sirup on slowly, beating constantly. Cool. Fold whipped cream into egg and sirup mixture and add vanilla. Freeze in refrigerator tray.

My daughter spilled some mineral oil on a taffeta covered chair. I tried to wash it out immediately with soap and warm water, but when it dried, there was still a large stain mark. Is there any way to remove this? W. R. H.

This may help: Mix carbon tetrachloride with corn starch until it is moist but not wet, and place on the stain. Rub it into the fabric and let stand to absorb oil. When dry, brush away. This treatment may be repeated as long as improvement is seen. It may not be possible to remove the stain completely by home methods because the oil may have soaked the padding under the taffeta.

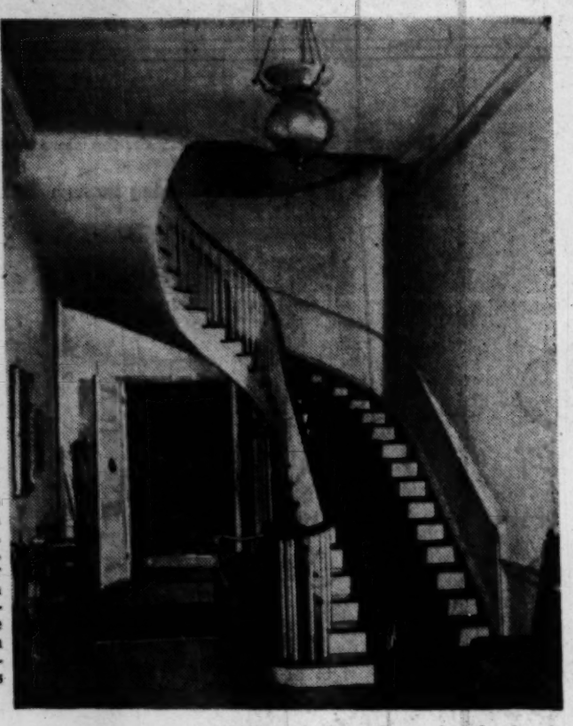
Shall Woodlawn Be Lost as a National Shrine?

"SAVE Woodlawn for the Nation" is the keynote of a Nation-wide public appeal launched by a group including officials of patriotic, historical, city planning and other societies, groups and organizations, to preserve as a national shrine the historic Potomac estate which George Washington deeded as a wedding present to Nellie Custis, his adopted daughter, and Maj. Lawrence Lewis, his favorite nephew.

It is the plan of Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc., a group recently organized to purchase the Woodlawn estate from the guardians of the late widow of former United States Senator Oscar Underwood, to establish Woodlawn as a public shrine linked with Washington, his traditions and times.

George Washington personally surveyed the original 2000 acres on which Woodlawn stood. He himself sketched the rough plans for the historic dwelling in which his beloved adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, and his nephew, Maj. Lawrence Lewis, dwelt for a number of years. Dr. William Thornton, architect of the National Capitol, inspired by the site for the Woodlawn Mansion and its exciting views of the Potomac, finished the General's plans.



Situated on a wooded hill overlooking the verdant banks of the Potomac, Woodlawn affords a view which so impressed George Washington that he had his friend, Dr. William Thornton, design a home befitting such surroundings as a wedding present for Nellie Custis and Maj. Lawrence Lewis. The charm of the mansion's Georgian architecture is reflected in this view of the entranceway.

NELLIE CUSTIS was one of the famous beauties of her time. Lewis was Washington's nephew and aide. In a letter to Lewis, Washington described the lands which he was deeding as a wedding present to the couple in these terms: "Few better sites for a house than Gray's Hill and that range, are to be found in this country or elsewhere."

Nellie and Lawrence Lewis lived in Woodlawn for 35 happy years. With its nearness to Mount Vernon, Arlington, Gunston Hall, and Belvoir, Woodlawn became the center of a brilliant social life. Early guests included the Marquis de Lafayette and other European notables. Woodlawn has been the home of many men and women prominent in the Nation's life. It has been a hospitable home, symbolic of American culture and living at their best.

The estate was recently about to be sold through the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, Virginia, for uses which would preclude its dedication to the public. The sale was on the verge of completion when Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc., a nonprofit corporation, was formed to raise funds, buy the property, and "devote it to the interest of the American Nation."

THE FOUNDATION petitioned the court for time within which to buy the property and was granted until January 3, 1949, to raise the funds and complete the purchase for public use. The purchase price of $170,000 must be raised by the foundation by January 3. Many contributions have been received from members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Society of the Cincinnati, the Sons of the American Revolution and other patriotic and historic organizations throughout the United States, as well as from schools and educational groups.

Subscriptions to the "Save Woodlawn for the Nation" are being received at the offices of Woodlawn Public Foundation, Lincoln Museum, 511 10th st. nw., Washington 4, D. C.

Discussing the foundation's plans George Maurice Morris, president of the Woodlawn Trustees, said, "Woodlawn and its preservation for the public as a national shrine is a project which has caught the imagination and warmed the hearts of men and women who would cherish, protect and pass on to future generations a significant part of America's heritage.

"WOODLAWN is a basic landmark in the development of American history. It is a physical and spiritual link to the ideals, standards, and traditions of the Father of Our Country that turns our thoughts to the blessings of our American heritage.

"American civilization as we have inherited it, will not perpetuate itself automatically. We go forward more confidently when we are continually kept aware of our past. An informed America is a strong America. Woodlawn can be an important educational and inspirational factor that will stimulate a better understanding and a keener appreciation of the American way of life.

"Woodlawn Foundation, Inc., urges individuals and groups throughout the country to respond to the appeal to "Save Woodlawn for the Nation" by January 3, 1949. It will be for all the public, and should be enthusiastically supported by all the public."

TRUSTEES of the Woodlawn Public Foundation include:

Mrs. Vogel Gives Supper Party; Brennans Feted at Reception

By Marie McNair

Former Senator Henry F. Ashurst, for 30 or more years a member of the Upper House, has lost none of his gift of oratory.

At the buffet supper given by Mrs. Martin Vogel on Saturday evening, for Mme. Prud'homme, he sat amidst an enthralled circle taking them back through half a century of politics. He told of the fabulous Senator Taber of Colorado whose life read like an Horatio Alger book, and his marriage to "Baby" Doe; of James G. Blaine's campaign and some of the naughty slogans composed by the opposition party.

There was music, too, by Washington's gifted pianist, Evelyn Tyner, and the soft melodious voice of Nan Garcia. And both music and conversation sparkled like the champagne cup which guests sipped before sitting down to supper.

The Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, were there and Lady Rama Rau, in a beautiful burnt orange sari, without her husband, the Indian Ambassador, who returns tomorrow from New York.

Speaks of India

Lady Rau, as eloquent in her own way, as Mr. Ashurst, spoke feelingly of India, of her wonderful opportunities now that she's won her freedom, and of her regret that she's not there to watch her country's progress.

Justice and Mrs. Wiley Rutledge were in the gathering, one of a series of supper parties that Mrs. Vogel will give this season. And then there were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Henderson, Capt. and Mrs. Beverly Robinson, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Schofield, Pablo Merry del Val, Consejor of the Spanish Embassy; Mrs. Edgar Ansel Mowrer and Alexander Boker, young and handsome writer.

Others who enjoyed this pleasant party were Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, Capt. and Mrs. John P. Jackson, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. George Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Stackelberg, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Charles O. Bunker, Mrs. Sailing Baruch and her son, Donald; Mrs. Edward Treglown, Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Miss Bertha Joseph, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja.

Then there were bachelors Pendleton Hogan, Marvin Braverman and Marvin Coles; Arthur Saul, George Williams, A. K. Boysen.

Party for Brannans

Yesterday afternoon there was a reception for the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan at Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith's home on Macomb st., with guests culled for the most part from the victorious Democratic Party.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Brannan wore black frocks, the hostess in a bouffant tulle gown sprinkled with tiny gold stars.

Among those who had been asked were Presidential Assistant John Steelman and Mrs. Steelman; Presidential Special Counsel, Clark Clifford and Mrs. Clifford; Donald Dawson, administrative assistant to the President, and Mrs. Dawson.

Then, the Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, Gen. and Mrs. Kester Hastings, the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Undersecretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Albert J. Loveland, Gen. and Mrs. W. R. McReynolds, and Gen. and Mrs. Emerick Kutschko.

Inaugural Head There

Melville Hildreth, who's chairman of the Inaugural Committee, and Mrs. Hildreth, were among those who had been asked, and still others were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, Mr .and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mme. Grace Espallat, Col. and Mrs. Consuelo Seoane, Comdr. and Mrs. Edward R. Holloran, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Saugstad, and Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajaigas.

Assisting Mrs. Smith serving coffee and champagne cup were her sister, Mrs. J. Van Ness Ingram; her daughter, Mrs. Donald Lathrom; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. A. C. Smith, jr., Mrs. Donald Dawson and Mrs. A. C. Burrows.

Julia F. Myrick Is Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Myrick of Washington and Santa Barbara, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Julia Foster, to Gordon Allen, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Allen of Boston, Mass.

Miss Myrick, the granddaughter of Mrs. Herbert Myrick and the late Mr. Myrick of Santa Barbara and Springfield, Mass., is in her junior year at Radcliffe College. She also attended the Katharine Branson School, Santa Barbara Girls School and was graduated from Maderia School.

Mr. Allen, a veteran of service with the Seventy-ninth Division of the Army in the European Theater, is in his senior year at Harvard College where he is a member of the Hasty Pudding Club, Institute of 1770 and the Delphic Club. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kendall and the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Augustus Holyoke Allen and he attended Milton Academy and Darrow School.

Miss Jeanne Miles, Bride-Elect, Feted At Luncheon

Miss Jeanne Miles who will be married next Saturday to Robert Hollingshead, jr., was guest of honor at a luncheon on Saturday given by Miss Helen Malone at The Parrott. Miss Malone will be a bridesmaid at the wedding.

Other members of the wedding party who attended were Miss Nell Hackney, maid of honor; Mrs. Dwight Martin, Mrs. John D. Meana and Miss Martha Hollingshead, bridesmaids.

Also there were Miss Mary Ogden, Mrs. Richard A. Vickrey, Mrs. James T. Malone, and Miss Betty Murphy.

Miss Emily Arnold Sets Wedding Date

Miss Emily Arnold, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, has set her wedding date for February 26. She will become the bride of Parkman Joseph Halsey Clancy at 8 p. m. at the chapel at Fort McNair and a reception will follow at the officers club.

Mrs. St. Lewis Heads Ticket Committee

Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, chairman of the ticket committee for the United Nations seventh anniversary ball on December 3 at the Statler, will entertain members of her committee at luncheon tomorrow at the United Nations Club.

Tickets for the ball may be obtained from Mrs. St. Lewis or from other members of the committee which include Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mrs. William Henry Watson, Mrs. Willoughby Saul, Mrs. C. R. Hurt, Mrs. Edward Williams, Mrs. John Shields, Mrs. A. Peter Dewey, Mrs. Samuel Biddle, Mrs. John Lawrence Barnard, Mrs. Thad Brown, jr., Mrs. Lee Murphy, Mrs. Herbert H. Woodward, Hon. Katherine Edgar Byron, Mrs. George Allen and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim.

Net proceeds of the ball will go to CARE overseas food packages and other welfare activities. Among the door prizes which have been donated for the ball are a portrait to be painted by A. Tasev whose portraits of prominent Washingtonians are now on exhibition at the club; a necklace of cultured pearls; an Elizabeth Arden overnight case; Amelia Earhart luggage, and a dress by the designer, Castillo.

Guests for Next Weekend

Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith Sigmund will have as their guests over Thanksgiving weekend Mrs. Sigmund's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Breslau of Trenton, N. J.

For a Sleek Silhouette

Exercises to Bump Away Excess Poundage on Hips

By Ida Jean Kain

SKIRTS may vary to suit the individual—so say the stylists. Well and good, but there is no longer any guess as to whether it's hips or heft. Padding is passe, and the naturally slim silhouette distinguishes the chic clothes; so the girls with slim hips are not going all out for billowy skirts. Any added fullness is directly in the back which leaves the side hipline sleek and molded.

We can like it or lump it—or take action. Everyday activities do not bring the muscles that round off the sides of the hips into direct action. Consequently, little pincushions of fat park there and cling like a bunch of burrs. But fat and muscle can't stay in the same spot.

The following exercise stirs up the circulation in the fat pad, and that's the first step:

Position: Half reclining on floor on left side, weight partially supported on left forearm, left leg straight down on floor but turned sideward so that weight falls on fat pad on outer thigh. Place right hand in back as brace, and have right knee flexed with foot on floor to act as lever. (These exact directions may seem complicated, but all it amounts to is to maneuver into position to thump the fat pad.

Movement: Bounce, bounce, bounce up and down, smack on the fat pad. About 25 bounces, then get into the same position on the other side and bounce. Make it a brisk, spanking movement.

Movement: Swing the leg back and forth, directing the swing clean through the fat pad. Keep it up for 12 to 25 counts—then change sides and swing again. Don't get off the beam—hit the right spot with a controlled, vigorous swing.

Add a curve.

Position: Same as in preceding exercise. One hand may be placed on chair back for balance.

Movement: Again directing the action through the bulge, swing leg forward, around, back, down and forward again. Resist with palm of hand to make exercise more effective.

Hips can't hold out against direct action. Send for the leaflet "Hips, Hips Away!" enclosing a long, stamped addressed envelope.

Novel Shades For Lamps Easy to Do

There isn't a homemaker in America who doesn't want to add novel decorating touches to the lighting fixtures in her home. She reasons that with the longer evenings and colder weather, more time will be spent indoors and good lighting is more than a decorative asset.

The November issue of American Home Magazine contains a "reference type" article—one which can be clipped for the home scrapbook for future use—on "Lamps and Shades to Make."

The article stresses the point that lamps need not be purely functional and that they can be attractive to look at as well as useful to see by.

Good lighting saves vision and bright shades which diffuse light and look cheerful and artistic are expensive to buy. So the question arises, "Why not make them?"

If you have old shades around the house, strip them. The shade base is a cost-free item that has magic in its skeleton. Maybe somewhere around the house there are a couple of skeins of wool—or, if necessary, two skeins can be bought much cheaper than can a new shade. It is a simple trick to wrap the old frame with knitting wool. It's a process of winding round and round the wire skeleton and achieving an unbelievably lovely effect. You can match your color schemes exactly, and if care is exercised in winding the wool without stretching it, the shade can be doused in soap and water for a thorough cleaning.

American Home patterns tell the neophite how to make bases that are beautiful, inexpensive and variable. Maybe there's an amateur carpenter in your house who can make molds so that you can pour plaster of Paris in them for a graceful column lamp. Maybe that same favorite home carpenter can saw a hole in the base of a small wooden salad bowl which can be inverted and the plaster column inserted for a sturdy, steady lamp base.

And if there's artistic talent in the family, wouldn't it be fun to let these artists make the decorative designs for putting on the plaster base?

There are some people who can do everything—except draw—and for them the patterns include designs for tracing on lamp shades and lamp bases.

Once upon a time, it is said, a hopeful Greek named Diogenes looked the world over for an honest man. From all reports it seems his lamp was not only ancient but quite ordinary. Maybe if he had a lamp, such as you can make, he would have found his man!

The Time Not to Bake

When the housewife has had a very busy week and is extremely tired at the end of it she is very foolish to attempt her usual weekend baking in that condition. That is the time to try that cake at the baker's you have been wanting to try or have a bought dessert you have heard about. The bought things will taste good for a change. nd if the family likes mother's better, they will appreciate your efforts just that much more next week.

Helpful Hints When Cooking

Dishwashing is easier if saucepans and other utensils are filled with water and allowed to soak while the meal is being served; the water should come up to the line made by the cooked food.

It is handy to remember that there are 4 cups of flour in one pound of flour and that 2 cups of granulated sugar weigh one pound.

In using a double boiler it is usually best to fill the bottom part about one third full. If too little water is added it may boil away before the preparation in the top part has finished cooking.

A salad children enjoy is made from banana halves sprinkled with chopped roasted peanuts. Arrange the bananas on salad greens and sprinkle with a little mild dressing if desired.

In using hard-cooked eggs for a garnish, the whites may be chopped and added to the dish. The yolks can then be put through a fine sieve with a spoon.

In order to test a baked potato for doneness, hold it in a pot holder and squeeze it lightly. If it yields to the touch and feels soft, the potato is ready.

Make the best possible use of left-over vegetables by using them in salads, casserole dishes, sauces and soups. Or combine them with a cream sauce and some left-over meat or fish and serve over toast.

Mushrooms do not need to be peeled before cooking. They should be thoroughly washed, however. Cook them whole or slice them.

Do not overfreeze desserts made in the refrigerator; serve them as soon as possible after they are firm.

Add a few tablespoons of finely minced parsley to regular dumplings for stew.

For a Welsh rarebit add a cup of grated yellow cheese to a cup of thin white sauce and season with dry mustard, celery salt and paprika; serve over crackers or toast.

In running a spatula around the edge of a cake to loosen it before turning it out on the pan be sure that the spatula touches the bottom of the pan.

Fill a graham cracker shell with fruit and whipped cream for a quickly prepared festive dessert. Use apricots or peaches, orange segments or pineapple for the fruit.

A small amount of minced onion and parsley added to scalloped potatoes improves their flavor.

Dip fish fillets in cornmeal before frying for an attractive, crisp, good-tasting crust.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Sarcasm

No one can deny that at times children need to be corrected. They make mistakes, say and do things about which parents must do something. Most youngsters are sensitive, too. It is hard for them to be criticized or punished. Resentment over what seems unfair treatment is not uncommon. Conscientious parents have a hard time knowing what is best to do.

Of one thing we can be sure. Sarcasm may be effective in squelching the young sprout when he seems to be getting too big for his britches but it wounds too deeply to justify its use.

Such comments as "You really think you're something, don't you?" when Junior has been proudly telling of some exploit at school, or "What a wonderful help that was!" to the youngster who drops a dish that he was washing, are examples of the kind of sarcasm that has no place with children.

So, though you're tempted when something irritating happens, it will pay to put the curb on sarcasm. If it's used often, the child's self-esteem will be badly battered.

I can't either. But Don Lief informs me that it happened (on records) on a recent WQQW broadcast.

First a Beethoven piano concerto was played, then a transcribed Toscanini raised his baton and lead the orchestra through the first 2 minutes of the Brahms symphony.

Suddenly the announcer interrupted. "Dozens of phone calls are coming in. We are informed that we forgot to play the end of the concerto."

So there was nothing to do but have the Maestro stand down from the podium, while the last record of the concerto was played.

When it was over, Brahms and Toscanini were permitted to continue their rendition, unmolested.

MISCELLANY

Irving M. Day, jr., of 414 Whitestone rd., Silver Spring, Md., sings the praises of the fellows at the Carver & Jenkins filling station (13th and Upshur sts. nw.) who help schoolchildren across the busy intersection there . . . The gang headed for Roosevelt High School and McFarland Junior High doesn't even have a painted crosswalk for protection . . . Mrs. Kathryn W. Hughes of 223 Holly ave., Takoma Park, Md., needs more help if she's to make Christmas dolls for all the girls at Children's Hospital this year; the heavy toll taken by polio has left many of its little victims still hospitalized, and those dolls will certainly help to brighten their Christmas Day . . . With the legitimate theater dormant here, maybe you'd like to know that the Barter Theater Players are putting on "Papa Is All" tonight (8 p. m., Washington-Lee High School, Arlington, Va.). The Arlington Civic Federation is sponsoring the show, and you can get your tickets at the Willard Hotel or at the Arlington Sun . . . Chesed Shel Emmes holds it annual charity event tomorrow night (8:30, 4810 Georgia ave. nw., 50 cents) and you can get tickets from Mrs. Lillian Vogel, Taylor 1708, or at the door . . . Neilsen B. O'Rear, Alabama '27, and more recently of the Bureau of Mines, says we must make sure that everybody understands that the University of Alabama Alumni Club's Thanksgiving Eve party (Wednesday, 8:30 p. m., Heurich Brewery, 26th and D sts. nw.) is not restricted to club members only. There'll be dancing, television, refreshments and even plenty of parking space . . . C. B. McDonald of the Penn-Daw Hotel, Alexandria, Va., says that if auto "tippers" have so much loose cash, "they ought to be fined for being suckers". . . As Major Barrett worded it: "That would set a bad precedent," Mac. If you start fining suckers, we'd all have to pay up eventually. Is there anybody who's so smart he's never been "taken" by somebody just a little bit smarter?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Female police dog, 10 months old; very affectionate with children, but needs large yard." (ATlantic 2869).

GRIM REALITY

The current edition of the Woman's Home Companion says that the average woman considers a fur coat a "practical" Christmas gift. The magazine comes by this information through a nationwide poll which it conducted.

I hate to disillusion either the magazine or the ladies, but folks who count too heavily on polls are often disappointed.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Why don't the manufacturers of men's suits and dressing gowns and such include a label stating the size, so that females would be able to buy Christmas gifts without turning detective?

Lillian L. Brook,
1629 Newton st. nw.

Dear Lil:

I dunno. I think dressing gowns (like pajamas) come only in a few sizes—small, medium, large, and sloppy.

As for suits, I notice that the inside pocket of my suit coat has a size label sewn on the other side of the brand label. But the space marked "size" has not been filled in. It stumps me, too. As soon as I pay my bill at Woody's, I'll demand an explanation.

Bill.

PERSONAL NOTES

William H. M. Reynolds, 1205 New Jersey ave. nw.: I'm sending your sketch and suggestion along to Capital Transit. If they make you a vice president, promise that you'll cut fares to a nickel.

Mrs. C. Fisher, 700 Arlington Mill dr., Arlington, Va.: I'll send your letter along, too. Maybe they can use two vice presidents.

Paxton Holden, sr., 4923 42d pl., Hyattsville, Md.: I'm forwarding your letter to Dorothy Kilmer and asking her to communicate with you.

CONVERSATION PIECE

When the telephone was answered, I said, "Is Mr. Jones there?"

"There's nobody here named Jones," came the reply. "What number do you want?"

I told him the number, and he said: "You've dialed the wrong number. But say—aren't you Bill Gold?"

"Yes," I acknowledged. "Who is this?"

"Oh, you don't know me. I just recognized your voice from the radio. But you've still got the wrong number, bub."

And down went the receiver.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

NEW YORK.—Bob Flaherty's movie, "Louisiana Story," will be shown this week at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Arts & Letters. This is the first time that a movie will be shown there, the first time the Acedemy is recognizing the movies as an Art form.

This week the New York public library, as part of its 100th anniversary celebration, will display 100 of its most precious possessions. One of the treasures which will not be shown is the library's copy of Barnardin de Saint Pierre's "Paul et Virginie," the only existing copy of the original printing. It's brought tragedy to all who were associated with it . . . In 1830 the printers sent this copy to the Conciergerie in Paris, as a gift to Marie Antoinette. It arrived after the Queen had been beheaded. Then it was acquired by Prince Galitzen of Russia. The Czar beheaded him . . . Czar Nicholas had it in his Tsarkeseloe Library, until he was shot. In 1936 it was bought for the Ney York public library with funds bequeathed by William Spencer, who lost his life on the Titanic.

Otis Elevator Co. will announce an electronic device which reduces the waiting-for-an-elevator time . . . Graham Greene, whose novels at last have become best-sellers, will write new ones at the rate of one every 5 years. "This," he says, will give the public a chance to discover some of the old novels of mine" . . . Edison Marshall, author of "Castle In the Swamp" and "Yankee Pasha," introduced his agent, Paul Reynolds: "He is the captain and crew, the hull and sails of my literary career." "And where do you come in?" Marshall was asked, and replied: "Oh, I furnish the wind."

Bob Trout, the radio commentator, was the White House announcer for CBS during the Roosevelt administrations. He campaigned with the President and introduced him to radio listeners whenever the train stopped long enough for Roosevelt to make a speech. At a Middle West town, when the train pulled into the station, Trout broadcast: "In a few minutes, ladies and gentlemen, the President will appear on the rear platform of the train and begin speaking." He waited, but Roosevelt didn't appear. Trout spoke desperately for 15 minutes, until the train finally pulled out . . . "I'd been listening to Trout on the radio," Roosevelt later explained, "heard him introduce me—and then I just wanted to see what Trout would do if the President failed to make an appearance."

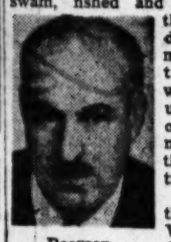
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Barkley to Be Active in New Post

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson says: Alben Barkley will be an active Vice President; Senator McCarthy "gets religion" on public housing; France shows appreciation for American aid through "Merci Train."

At Key West, happy, humble Harry Truman and his faithful sidekick, Alben Barkley, swam, fished and loafed. But though they didn't talk much shop, they left with a clear understanding of Barkley's new role in the Administration.



It was agreed that the new Vice President will serve as Senate majority leader and take an active hand in reorganizing Senate committees—right up to the day before inauguration. Barkley will be needed for any purge of the Dixiecrats—if there is one.

After January 20, it has been decided, the new Vice President will operate as a working liaison between the President and Congress. He will do more than sit in the presiding chair for all tourists to look at, but will mingle actively in the corridors and use his influence in putting over Truman's program.

Senator Gets Religion

Wisconsin's Senator Joe McCarthy has really got religion when it comes to public housing. Joe is now working among Republicans who blocked the Housing Bill in the Eightieth Congress to swing them around to public housing and slum clearance.

Perhaps, like the Supreme Court, the Senator from Wisconsin has read the election returns, but anyway he has now written Senator Robert Taft for help to round up Republican votes for a bipartisan housing program—which would give the Democrats all they are asking. This is a little funny in view of the fact that Taft was an original author of the Housing Bill and at the last session tried to get McCarthy to vote for it.

However, McCarthy has a couple ideas of his own which he wants to add. He will try: (1) to assign public housing units to needy families solely on the basis of need, as determined by social workers; (2) to relieve the Public Housing Administrator of all extra duties and permit him to devote his full time to public housing; and (3) to grant a 100 per cent secondary market for veterans' cooperatives so they will have no trouble obtaining loans.

French 'Merci Train'

Isolationists frequently argue that Europe does not appreciate American aid; claim we are pouring food and dollars into an ungrateful bottomless European pit.

Touring France today, however, are 49 boxcars, relics of World War I in which American troops traveled, which comprise the Train of Gratitude or "Merci Train" to the American people. The Merci Train is picking up gifts from the French people to the American exactly as the Friendship Train toured the United States one year ago, and the French train is a gesture of appreciation for the Friendship Train.

It is significant that the chief organizers of the Merci Train are French veterans. Spearhead of the movement is Commandant Guy de la Vasselais, French liaison officer to General Patton during the war.

But every cross-section of the French population is participating. President Auriol personally is contributing 49 porcelain vases of the famed Sevres variety. The French Minister of Agriculture has collected 49 bushes and trees from all over France. The French mint has struck off 49 sets of medals, some of them duplicates of medals given to Eisenhower and Patton. The Verdun Veterans Association has donated the original 1916 flag which flew over Verdun, inscribed with the historic words "On ne passe pas" (They shall not pass). The city of Caen, which withstood such devastating bombardment when Field Marshal Montgomery tried to oust the Germans after the Normandy landing, has sent 49 bronze school bells.

These are only a few of the priceless gifts sent by the French people. Incidentally, the French are sending no wines, perfumes, or luxury items—only gifts of sentimental and historic value.

Each of the 49 boxcars will be deposited, with its contents, in the 48 States, while the forty-ninth will go to the District of Columbia to be turned over to Government officials for the Territory of Hawaii, which flew a special plane to the mainland and contributed three carloads of sugar to the Friendship Train.

At a time when so many international projects are being twisted or obstructed by political bias, here is a gesture from the French people to the American people sent in the spirit of openhanded friendliness.

Prodigal Senator

Charitable Alben Barkley, newly elected Vice President, would like to leave the door open for Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho, the Democratic Party's prodigal son, to come back.

The subject was brought up the other day by Illinois' Senator Scott Lucas, probable majority leader in the Eighty-first Congress. At a luncheon in the back room of the Democratic Policy Committee, Lucas suggested that Taylor ought to be purged for teaming up with Henry Wallace.

"Now, Glen Taylor isn't such a bad fellow," gently chided Barkley. "I know two or three sons o' guns who are a darn sight worse. When the roll is called up yonder, let's not be too hard on Glen Taylor."

Merry-Go-Round

Minnesota's political humpty-dumpty, Senator Joe Ball (rhymes with "fall"), will go back to newspaper writing. He hopes to peddle a column to papers across the country.
